Brewster Goes Before Wiretapping Grand Jury

Says He Replaces His Secretary; Pepper Issues Subpenas for Barrett, Businessman

By Thomas Winship
Post Reporter

Senator Owen Brewster (R., Me.) testified yesterday before a District grand jury investigating wiretapping here, it was disclosed last night.

The Senator, who earlier refused comment on a report he had gone before the jury, said he appeared in place of his secretary, who is in Maine.

The secretary, he said, had been called "in relation to a very minor office matter."

Shimon Probed By U. S.

Three former aides of Police Lieut. Joseph W. Shimon have been key witnesses in the current wiretapping inquiry.

Shimon, former chief investigator in the United States Attorney's office, was the subject of a secret police report, later probed by the Justice Department and soon to go to the newly-created Senate District subcommittee investigating wiretapping here.

The Shimon report, according to published statements, alleges that one of Shimon's aides tapped the phone of Howard Hughes during the 1947 Congressional investigation into the planemaker's war contracts.

Senator Brewster was a member of the Hughes inquiry. He has denied any connection with the alleged wiretapping in the Hughes investigation.

Brewster has stated publicly his only contact with Lieutenant Shimon was during the Hughes investigation when the policeman came to his office in answer to a complaint that the Senator was being trailed.

Barrett Gets Subpenas

Meanwhile, Chairman Pepper (D., Fla.) of the Senate Wire Tap Subcommittee, announced that subpenas have been issued for Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett and a Washington businessman, who reportedly has loaned or leased wiretapping equipment, as the first witnesses to testify at the Capitol.

Barrett is under instructions to turn over to the committee the Shimon report, which has been kept secret since last October, when it was prepared on Barrett's orders. That is the chief purpose of Barrett's initial appearance before the wiretap committee which may be Monday or Tuesday, Pepper said.

Gerhard van Arkel, committee counsel, said Assistant Police Chief of Detectives Robert V. Murray, who helped author the Shimon report, may accompany Barrett to the Hill.

The other supenaed witness, van Arkel said, is reportedly the person who loaned or leased the equipment used by Lieutenant Shimon's aide in tapping Hughes wires.

Van Arkel withheld the witness' name until he had an opportunity to tell his story to the committee in closed session.

If enough committee members are in town, Pepper said, the alleged owner of the wiretap equipment may appear at a committee meeting this afternoon.

There was also speculation that Howard Hughes may eventually appear on the witness stand.

Senate Cuts Nondefense Funds by 10%

Byrd-Bridges Move Gets 55-31 Vote; Many Firings Seen

By Jerry Kluttz
Post Reporter

Thousands of Federal workers in many nondefense agencies—25,000 to 40,000 of them—would be fired under the Byrd-Bridges amendment adopted late yesterday by the Senate to the general appropriation bill by a 55-to-31 vote.

The amendment, fought by the Administration, would require these agencies to make a minimum 10 percent cut in their budgets as finally approved by Congress for administrative expenses that go for salaries, travel, supplies, and so forth. It had bipartisan support, 36 Republicans and 19 Democrats lining up for it.

The Senate action makes certain a cut in the budgets of non-defense agencies. The House, in voting the 1951 budget, approved the Taber-Thomas and Jensen amendments that would make sharp reductions in personnel and other Government services.

Substitute For House Riders

Senators Byrd (D., Va.) and Bridges (R., N. H.) led the successful drive for the Senate amendment that would cut about 525 million dollars from the big budget bill. Their amendment is a substitute for the House riders, which would have cut off an estimated 300,000 employes within the next year and reduced the budget about a billion dollars.

A final move to sidetrack the Byrd-Bridges rider was made by Senator O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.) but it lost by a 60-to-25 vote. O'Mahoney proposed that the Senate and House Appropriations Committees be directed to restudy the budget and report back to the full Congress by the end of this month where additional cuts could be made without hampering national defense.

The B-B rider would apply to about five billion dollars of the 34-billion-dollar budget bill. It would exempt agencies that have roughly 1,500,000 of the two million Federal workers.

Marshall Funds Exempted

By a 45-to-40 vote, the Senate exempted Marshall Plan funds from the economy rider. But it refused to exempt the entire Justice Department, and 26 million earmarked for the President's Point Four program to give economic aid to underdeveloped areas of the world.

Also exempted were the following agencies and activities:

House Backs 'Automatic' Control Plan

Vote Is Maneuver By Democrats To Beat Amendments On Floor Today

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

The House last night tentatively approved price, wage and other economic controls so modified as to be almost a burlesque of what the Administration asked for.

The measure, adopted after a day of frantic debating and amending, contains a provision for the automatic freezing of prices and wages when the cost of living increases by 5 percent—a provision President Truman yesterday characterized as an invitation to inflation.

Furthermore, by an anomaly understandable only in the light of the parliamentary "traffic control" rules of the House, the Democrats passed the amended bill yesterday expressly in order to be able to defeat the amendments today.

But—as if to make the situation even more like the outline of a Gilbert and Sullivan opera—the Democrats miscalculated on the rule. They got themselves into one of the worst parliamentary muddles of recent years. They found that if they try to defeat the bill, as previously planned, they may get something much worse.

May Not Defeat It

As of last night, here was the situation:

The Democrats have on their hands a bill they don't know whether they want or not.

If they decide they want it, they may not be able to pass it.

If they decide they don't want it, they may not be able to defeat it.

If they do defeat it, they face a three or four-day wrangle without any idea of what they may get in its place.

As a result of amendments passed during the day, the economic control legislation came out:

1. With a term of life of only seven months.

2. Minus authority to regulate commodity exchanges.

3. Without any mechanism to handle the labor problems the wage control provisions in other sections of the bill are almost sure to create.

4. With an "automatic trigger" provision for the invoking of price and wage freezes that denies the President what he feels is enough discretionary authority to administer them.

It is this last provision, perhaps, which constitutes the most objectionable feature of the bill, from the Administration Democrats' point of view.

It provides that the President must establish wage and price ceilings—it is not clear on how wide a range of items and employments—whenever the Bureau of Labor Statistics' cost of living index rises 5 percent above the levels of last June 15.

The amendment was offered by Representative McKinnon (D., Calif.) while Democratic legislators steering the bill were napping. It passed on a different voice vote, without even a standing division.

Hit On Strategy

As this and other amendments began to whittle down the substance of the legislation desired by the Democrats, they decided on what they thought would be a smart parliamentary maneuver.

It was to pass the bill, as amended, in expectation of voting again tomorrow, on a technically different issue, to defeat all the amendments at one fell swoop.

Jobs, Industries Key to Deferment Policy Announced By Defense Dept.

By V. R. Montanari
Post Reporter

The 163d Military Police Battalion of the District National Guard has been ordered to report for active duty September 3, it was announced last night.

Strength of the battalion and its destination were not disclosed.

This is the third unit of the District National Guard ordered to Federal duty. The 370th Radar Maintenance Unit and the 715th Quartermaster Truck Co. were previously called and will report August 14.

The 163d MPs returned to Washington July 23 after two weeks of training at Fort Miles, Del.

The battalion is commanded by Lieut. Col. George O. Weber, business manager of the University of Maryland. Weber lives at 1737 Kenyon st. nw.

Earlier in the day, the Defense Department announced policies for the occupational deferment from active duty of Reserves and members of the National Guard.

Occupational deferments will be based on a list of 48 major job classifications drawn up by the Labor Department and 72 essential defense industries listed by the Department of Commerce.

The policy does not provide for automatic deferment and the case of each Reserve and Guardsman called to active duty will be decided on its merits if the individual applies for deferment.

Will Consider "Hardship"

Deferments for dependency are not included in the Defense Department policies announced, "inasmuch as members of the Reserve components are liable for call to active duty in time of need," according to the announcement.

However, it was stated, "it is the policy of the military departments to give consideration to hardship cases."

A Defense Department spokesman said no distinctions will be made under the deferment policies between organized, active and inactive reserves.

Two broad policies were enumerated in a directive issued by Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson. One covered deferments of key personnel in industry, the other will apply to key civilians in the Department of Defense.

The deferment policy for Defense Department personnel is narrower than that for Reservists

Sends Harriman to Tokyo

President Enters Disputes; Defends Johnson and Acheson

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

President Truman yesterday announced that he was sending a three-man mission headed by W. Averell Harriman to Tokyo to confer with General Douglas MacArthur on the political situation in the Far East. He then plunged head-on into several torrid controversies.

In a lively news conference, Mr. Truman:

1. Declared flatly that Secretary of State Dean Acheson and Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson would not resign as long as he is President. He cracked down on Representative Percy Priest (D., Tenn.) for saying the two men ought to quit because of world developments.

2. Sharply criticized the Senate for voting for a 100-million-dollar loan to Spain and the House for voting for "automatic" price-wage controls. The Senate later refused to reconsider its action on the loan.

3. Disclosed that he is considering the possibility of establishing formal diplomatic relations with the Vatican and maintaining a regular minister there.

Mr. Truman did not elaborate on his announcement about the Harriman mission to Tokyo, but there was a hint of controversy in this too.

It was reported that the State Department was completely in the dark about General MacArthur's recent flight to Formosa, where he conferred with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek. MacArthur, according to the report, had not informed Washington about the substance of his talk with the leader of Nationalist China, and all that was known about it came from press accounts of Chiang's communique.

Harriman, who is Special Assistant to the President on Foreign Affairs, will be accompanied on the flight to Tokyo by Lieut. Gen. Lauris Norstad, acting vice chief of staff of the Air Force, and Maj. Gen. Frank E. Lowe, a reserve officer, who was called to active duty for the trip. He used to be liaison officer between the War Department and the old Truman Committee.

Mr. Truman told reporters that the three men would leave today (Friday) for Tokyo, and simply explained that they were going there for a briefing with General MacArthur on the political situation in the Far East.

"Can you," a reporter asked, "expand a little on the details of that trip to Japan, and will it include a Japanese peace treaty?"

The Chief Executive replied that it was connected with political matters in the Far East and said that beyond that he could not go.

State Department officials likewise declined to say anything more.

Mr. Truman was wearing a gray summer suit, with blue shirt and vari-colored tie when he appeared before the reporters yesterday. It seemed to most of them that he looked less grave than he had a week before.

At one stage of the news conference, he evoked laughter over a question about Governor-elect James F. Byrnes, once his Secretary of State and good friend, who in the last year has been highly critical of the Fair Deal.

The reporter wanted to know whether the President considered Byrnes a Democrat, and whether he would invite him to a luncheon for Southern Governors.

Mr. Truman said he would cross

Russia Loses Move to Table Korean Issue

Malik and Austin Clash On Red China Question In Bitter U. N. Session

Lake Success, Aug. 3 (AP)—In a bitter session scarred by charges of blackmail and slander, the Security Council tonight rejected a Russian attempt to have the Council consider admission of Red China ahead of the Korean war.

Instead, the Council approved a United States motion to keep on discussing North Korean aggression and try for a way to confine the war to Korea alone.

The vote to substitute the United States proposal for the Russian item was 8 to 1. The Soviet Union voted alone and this did not count as a veto since agenda votes are considered merely as procedure. The United States, Britain, France, Nationalist China, Cuba, Ecuador, Egypt and Norway voted for the resolution. India and Yugoslavia abstained.

The Council meeting was one of the most heated in U. N. history. United States Chief Delegate Warren R. Austin swapped blunt language with Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Jacob A. Malik, who is president of the Council during August.

Malik charged the United States with "flagrant, open and active aggression" against the people of Korea.

Red-faced and angry, Austin shouted back that Malik had uttered "a new slander, a new threat, a new provocation."

Malik countered that Austin was trying to blackmail him but that Austin had "directed his remarks to the wrong address."

Malik started the action by using the bluntest terms he has adopted since he returned Tuesday. In a 32-minute speech he called the Korean conflict a civil war and declared:

"The Security Council must choose between courses that lead to peace or to war. It must choose between the course that leads to war, by dragging in more and more countries, or it must choose the path of peace favored by all peace-loving nations of the world, led by the Soviet Union."

Then, Austin, obviously angry, answered Malik.

"I can't remain silent in the face of a repetition of those ancient charges that we have heard for years coming from the Soviet Union," Austin said, raising his voice.

Marines Hit With Planes; Allies' New Line Shelled

Double Battle Near With Taegu, Pusan As Foe's Objectives; U. S. Armor Growing

Tokyo (Friday), Aug. 4 (AP). A heavy Red attack was repulsed last night by the United States Twenty-fifth Division, hurriedly shifted from the north to the crucial southern front 35 miles west of the vital port of Pusan.

Fast-moving North Korean forces elsewhere began shelling new riverfront positions along a shortened, 125-mile front in the shrinking beachhead of southeast Korea.

Tank-equipped U. S. Marine and Army reinforcements also were racing up to bulwark this line, where a decisive battle may be building up.

U. S. Marine carrier-based planes roared into action today for the first time, blasting Red targets behind the southern front, a Navy announcement reported.

The sudden shift of the 25th Infantry Division from north of Kumchon to the south front was reported in a U. S. Eighth Army communique. It said the Communist attack rolled up yesterday and was beaten back. An estimated 600 North Korean bodies were strewn on the battlefield.

The 25th came to the relief of the battered 24th Infantry Division. The 24th fought a dogged, delaying action in the long retreat from positions south of Seoul, and has been bearing the brunt of the Red drive toward Pusan.

Combat Team Is Mentioned

(In Tokyo, General MacArthur's headquarters reported an unidentified American regimental combat team threw back the Reds in a six-hour battle east of Chinju. That attack began at midnight, Korean Daylight Time (10 a. m. Thursday, EDT). It was repulsed at 6 a. m. Friday, or 4 p. m. EDT Thursday.

A reliable source at United States Eighth Army headquarters said two small Red patrols tried to cross the river southwest of Taegu at 4 a. m. today, were fired upon, and had not been observed since.

Patrols Reported Across

[The United Press said two Red infantry patrols had slipped across the river and disappeared under fire behind the new defense line of the Americans.—Editor's note.]

Field dispatches said American armor was reaching the South Korean battle area in great quantity as a double battle, biggest of the war, appeared at hand.

Communist infantry, hot on the heels of the First Cavalry Division, moved to within seven miles of Taegu, the key rail and highway junction 55 miles northwest of Pusan.

The last American and South Korean soldiers crossed the broad Naktong river to the east bank Thursday and blew up all bridges. Within an hour, swiftly pursuing Red patrols that had marched 20 miles on foot during the night were sighted on the west side of the Naktong, said Associated Press Correspondent Hal Boyle.

Red artillery also moved forward hurriedly and began shelling the east bank of the Naktong by noon Thursday at a point 14 miles southwest of Taegu. Red artil-

Judge Extends Injunction in Railroad Strike

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 3 (AP).—Federal Judge John Knight today extended until August 14 a temporary injunction restraining the Switchmen's Union from striking against the Rock Island Railroad.

Knight then reserved decision on the Government's application for a permanent injunction.

The extension was agreed upon by attorneys for both sides to enable Knight to study testimony given at a hearing today.

At the hearing, Government witnesses testified that military, postal and economic requirements of the Nation would be adversely affected if the union resumed its strike.

Public Would Rather Risk War Than Permit Red Expansion

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Aug. 3.—The American people do not want war—but a substantial majority say in a Nation-wide survey that they would rather risk war than permit Russian power to expand further in Asia or Europe.

The following alternatives were put before a balanced cross-section of United States voters in all parts of the country:

"Which of these two things do you think is more important:

"A. That this country keep out of a major war?"

OR—

"B. That Russian expansion in Asia and Europe be stopped?"

Keep out of war	25%
Stop Russian expansion	68
No opinion	7
	100%

Leaders in the Kremlin may be interested in a striking historical parallel between this survey and similar studies during 1940 and 1941 when Hitler was at the crest of his power.

Institute surveys at that time asked the American people which was more important—that we stay out of war or that Hitler be stopped.

They voted 2-to-1 that stopping Nazism was more vital than avoiding war.

Suppose Russia's next move in what has been called the "smolder war" is a Communist invasion of the American zone of Germany—Should the United States go to war?

The public vote is in the affirmative, judging by this survey question:

"Do you think the United States should or should not go to war with Russia if Communist troops attack the American Zone in Germany?"

The vote:

Should	79%
Should not	11
No opinion	10
	100%

Underlying all of the attitudes today toward Russia is the basic idea that the United States will not initiate a shooting war, that provoking a conflict would be entirely in enemy hands.

At no time before we got into World War II did institute surveys find a vote of more than 2 percent in favor of the United States declaring war on Hitler and taking the initiative in a shooting war.

Today, again, the ratio of Americans who think we should start a war with Russia is again at a low figure. During the period July 10-18, institute interviewers put this question to the public:

"Do you think the United States should declare war on Russia now?"

Yes	15%
No	79
No opinion	6

"Do you think Canada should send equipment to this war, or not?"

The vote:

Truman Studies Establishing A Formal Mission at Vatican

By the United Press

President Truman yesterday disclosed he is considering reestablishing formal diplomatic relations with the Vatican.

His statement, something of a diplomatic bombshell, was made in response to a reporter's question at the President's weekly news conference.

Mr. Truman said that when Myron C. Taylor resigned as his personal envoy to Pope Pius XII last winter, that ended the job as far as a personal representative was concerned. He had never considered the appointment of a successor to Taylor, the President said.

But he added he is studying the possibility of naming a regular diplomatic minister to the Vatican—headquarters of the Roman Catholic Church.

This country has had no regular diplomatic relations with the Vatican since a short period in the last century.

President Roosevelt named Taylor as his personal representative to Rome in December, 1939, shortly after World War II broke out in Europe.

Taylor stayed at the Vatican during the entire war. Afterwards, he was kept on as personal representative by Mr. Truman.

Pauley Favored War in 1946 Over Korea If Necessary

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Some strong but puzzling comments on American policy in Korea by Edwin W. Pauley, oil man and close friend of President Truman, yesterday brought Republican demands for a full investigation of American unpreparedness there.

Pauley, who visited Communist-dominated North Korea as an American representative, appeared before the Senate Armed Services Committee as a "mystery witness."

He told the group that had his 1946 recommendations for dealing with Communist aggression there been carried out by this Government we wouldn't have been caught in the present position. At that time, he said, he warned Mr. Truman that the Soviet Union was a "deliberate aggressor" and did not intend to live up to its commitments to create a united, democratic Korea. Pauley said he then recommended to the President that the USSR be "compelled" to do so.

Under cross-examination, the former treasurer of the Democratic National Committee said he had advocated war with Russia on the

Newswoman Tells Harrowing Tale of Night Infiltration Raid on U. S. Command Post

By Marguerite Higgins
NYHT News Service

With the Twenty-seventh Infantry Regiment, on the Southwest Front, Korea, Aug 3.—North Korean Communists, in a bold surprise attack, closed in on an American regimental command post early this morning but were beaten back after a skirmsih typical of the Indian-fighting tactice with which the enemy is probing the last-ditch defenses of the Pusan perimeter.

Popping up in camouflaged uniforms among hills, directly behind the Americans' schoolhouse headquarters, the Communists fired machine guns and threw hand grenades directly into the build- and its central courtyard from points as close as 15 yards. A coffee pot knocked off the breakfast table by machine-gun fire was the first warning this correspondent and most of the regimental officers had of the attack.

Troops Caught Asleep

The Communists struck when most of the American troops in the area, exausted after the counterattack they made yesterday, were still asleep. Some who were posted in the hills in back of the command post were wounded before they could reach for their weapons.

Within seconds of the opening burst of fire, bullets from enemy heavy machine guns and rifles began to rip and spatter the walls of our end of the school building. Then the firing seemed to be coming at the building from every direction.

Although the firing closed in, we could not see the enemy. It was impossible to judge his position from the firing. A grenade splintered the flimsy roof of the building

"Where is the little beauty who threw that?" muttered an intelligence officer, Capt. Willard Hawle of Seattle, as he looked at his bleeding right hand, torn by a grenade splinter

The insistent machine guns sputtered at us and beyond us into vehicles parked in the front courtyard and at the big American artillery pieces just beyond. We all ducked low behind the thin wooden walls separting us from the fire, which was coming from the hills rising just in the rear of the schoolhouse.

Then we tried to race down the hall, toward the main telephone room, but we had to hit the floor fast and stay there.

We were pinned there for 15 minutes as bullets ripped past, tearing up the wooden flooring and walls.

Frightening Crossfire

We realized that the firing was coming from the courtyard also. This frightening crossfire, from our own side, was due to the fact that some of the American soldiers, disconcerted by the close range of the enemy's fire, apparently thought for a few confused moments that the enemy had actually occupied the school building.

Across a room I could see three scrawny, dirty North Korean Communists who had been taken prisoner the night before. They began to crawl about on their stomachs aimlessly. They were blindfolded and were whimpering in terror. One pulled the blindfold from his eyes and headed for the door, but the fire was too thick. The bullets of his Communist comrades cut off his escape—this time. When next I saw him he was dead.

About this time we realized that the enemy was confined to the hill behind the command post. In just about the swiftest series of leaps ever seen outside the Olympics, six officers, Harold Martin of "The Saturday Evening Post," and this correspondent dived out a window into the courtyard, in the direction away from the hills.

In the courtyard we found a melee of officers and non-coms trying to keep out of the way of the murderous incoming fire from the hills commanding the entire command post and, at the same time, trying to find their men and produce some order out of the chaos. The soldiers in the courtyard, confused, were firing without aiming and dangerously close to some of the American soldiers who had been driven off the hills.

Behind Rock Shelter

We took shelter behind a ledge of rock supporting the schoolhouse garden. We saw small groups of American soldiers, barefooted, come tearing into the courtyard. They said the enemy had approached to within a few yards of their position and then made a Banzai charge. The enemy had infiltrated that close during the night.

On the far side of the courtyard were several wounded soldiers who were calling for help. The enemy had been able to fire, from the high ground in the rear, directly at soldiers asleep in jeeps in the courtyard.

I suddenly recognized the regimental commander's driver, Pfc. Clifton A. Cobb of Kirbyville, Mo., as he came staggering past with a wounded man in his arms. I later learned that he and a comrade made seven trips under fire to bring out men wounded in the first enemy attack.

By this time, officers had pulled telephones and maps out of the bullet-riddled schoolhouse and set up a new command post in a ditch at the side of the courtyard.

Capt. Logan Weston of McKeesport, Pa., who had been on a hill just behind the schoolhouse at the time of the first attack, reported in to tell how—as usual—confusion about identifying the enemy had helped the Communists.

Mistaken Identity

He told how members of the security guard, including himself, who had sighted a group of Koreans approaching the command post through a defile, had believed they were friendly South Korean troops.

"We did not know they were enemy until they started shooting," Captain Weston said ruefully. "Everybody opened up at once, and it seemed as if they were everywhere."

What the modest captain did not mention was that he and two other men stood by and replied to the enemy fire by themselves, giving time for the sleeping soldiers in that area to awaken, grab their weapons and run for cover.

The surprise of the attack was complete. One reason was that the command post was situated far behind what would, in normal warfare, be considered the front line. There were American units in considerable strength down the road in the direction of the enemy. The flanks were exposed, but South Korean police had been placed on the hillsides on the flanks to give warning in an emergency.

So the regimental officers bedded down last night with little anticipation that the Communists would trick them. With the big guns as their probable target, they passed the forward American units along the main road and approached the schoolhouse.

Rallied by Colonel

In the midst of the wild disorganization in the courtyard, the regimental commander, Lieut. Col. John N. Michaelis, suddenly emerged from the schoolhouse, and his appearance rallied the men. A young, capable officer, he ignored the incoming enemy fire and began calling to the other officers and the men to organize and go forward and dislodge the enemy from the high ground.

Noticing the helter-skelter shooting, Colonel Michaelis ordered a momentary cease-fire, to make sure our troops were not shooting at each other. Then he collected two machine-gun units and started directly up the principal hills behind the schoolhouse.

By now, about 40 minutes after the firing had begun, company commanders had started to find their men. They began to deploy platoons against the hills around the position.

At 8 o'clock, the enemy fire began to be diverted away from us.

Suddenly a soldier rushed to the command post and reported enemy troops coming down on unprotected hills. A young captain swiftly selected some artillerymen he found ensconced under a jeep, ferreted them out from their cover and ordered them to go after the enemy.

At 8:40 there was a new alarm. A telephone call said a party of Koreans had been sighted landing from the bay on our flank. Colonel Michaelis sent out a patrol to identify these Koreans, who turned out to be friends.

Fine Work on Wounded

The American troops were advancing now. Medical Corps men began to bring in wounded, who were rather numerous. One correspondent learned how to administer blood plasma. Firing still struck the building from time to time, although the wounded were taken to the safest area, and the shots were nerve-racking for the Medical Corps men. The speed with which the wounded were tended and evacuated was one of the most remarkable performances this correspondent has seen in the Korean war.

My notes show that by 9:30 the enemy had been pushed back over the hills. The courtyard scene had settled into an orderly pattern. More and more American troops were being formed up and sent out.

By 11:30 the enemy no longer threatened the command post directly and the Americans had some North Korean prisoners.

The Americans, in their own way, had fooled the enemy. By sheer luck, there were on hand several extra companies of men who had returned to the command post late last night after the counterattack. Also, a plan to move the command post had been postponed at the last minute. The result was that an enemy attack aimed at the heavy guns ran into far more resistance than the North Koreans had anticipated. The Communists recently have made it a practice, wherever possible, to probe behind the American positions and come in on the flanks to knock out artillery.

The attack was typieal of the fighting in recent days in the Korean war.

By noon, the situation seemed about as well in hand as it ever would be. I decided it was time to go back to division headquarters and get my story out. I asked Colonel Michaelis whether he had any message for the general.

"Just tell him we are damn well going to hold our position," Colonel Michaelis said.

Meeting Postponed

An Arlington County Board meeting scheduled last night was postponed until 8 p. m. tonight because one board member was unable to be present.

lery had not yet hit Taegu, which was within easy shelling range.

The second big Red buildup was aimed at Pusan, the southeastern port of 250,000 persons, now swollen by refugees. It is through Pusan that the American Army funnels its supplies to the fighting front.

Front dispatches predicted action by nightfall Friday for elements of the newly-landed First Marine Division — with their 47½-ton Pershing tanks, flamethrowers and super-bazookas — and the well-equipped Second Infantry Division troops who were hastening to the front.

Combat Team Also There

There was no reference to the United States Fifth Regimental Combat Team of approximately 6000 men, also landed this week.

General MacArthur's headquarters omitted its usual war summary early Friday morning with the statement, "There has been no change in the over-all situation."

Front dispatches, however, reported a reconnaissance in force by a battalion of United States 24th Division troops equipped with Sherman tanks, armored cars and jeeps. This force punched 22 miles through North Korean lines on the southern sector until it made contact with the main Communist reserves massing at Chinju for a knockout attempt on Pusan.

Last reports placed the American lines eight miles west of Masan in the vicinity of Chungam—which is 20 miles east of Chinju. This would place them about 35 air miles west of Pusan.

The situation south of Chungam was not clear. The Reds may have sent advance units a few miles farther east in an attempt to flank American positions.

Main Red Body at Chinju

The main body of Reds, however, estimated at two divisions—or 20,000 men—was building up strength at Chinju for the drive on Pusan.

The tank-led American reconnaissance force rolled within a few miles of Chinju before pulling back.

It retired to 24th Division positions some 13 miles east of Chinju after demonstrating that Communist lines could be breached by a hard-hitting tank-led force.

In the only other major ground action Thursday, South Korean troops of the Third Division reoccupied the battered east coast port of Yongdok, 80 miles north of Pusan, to reestablished it as the eastern anchor of the defenders.

Yongdok has been heavily shelled by United States and British cruisers and destroyers. The warships sent six and eight-inch shells into the North Korean Fourth Division as it pulled back three miles along the coast line with the South Koreans in full pursuit.

Enemy Troops Hit from Air

Fifth Air Force jets and Mustang fighters drubbed North Korean troop concentrations with rocket and cannon fire in more than 400 sorties. The Reds were forced to give up their daylight movements along roads and return to their more cautious policy of building up concentrations by night.

In one action east of Chinju, fighters teamed with American ground troops to rip to shreds a North Korean column sealed up at one end of a narow defile. Shooting Stars and Mustangs dove on the defile with their rockets and machine-gun fire tearing through close-packed ranks of Red infantry who were unable to find cover. The number of casualties was not estimated, but it was believed to be unusually high.

An Eighth Army headquarters communique Thursday night said the only two places in the entire line where "real fighting" was in progress during the day were in the vicinity of Chinju on the south and at Yongdok, the northeast anchor position.

Headquarters of Lieut. Gen. Walton H. Walker, Eighth Army commander, said 24th Division troops east of Chinju stood their ground under heavy artillery and mortar fire. Groups of Red infiltrators attacked a command post and some American artillery positions, but were driven back.

Enemy Activity at Kurchon

Farther north, at abandoned Kumchon, 40 miles northwest of Taegu, North Koreans were showing "considerable activity." They pulled up tanks and other vehicles to support their drive toward the provincial capital of Taegu. Allied air strikes destroyed a number of tanks and cars in this concentration.

The North Koreans also showed signs of renewed activity on the northern roof of the allied defense lines in the vicinity of Yechon and Andong. Two Red divisions occupy those towns and are confronted along the winding Naktong River by at least two South Korean divisions.

The Naktong River barrier was providing both American and South Korean forces with a good natural line. To reach it had cost the defenders space varying from six to 18 miles.

There were strong indications that American and South Korean withdrawals during the past three days had caught the North Koreans by surprise, General MacArthur's briefing officer pointed out.

It upset the Red strategy of heavy frontal pressure and flanking stabs at a time when movement of American reinforcements to the front was at its most critical period.

Allies Can Counter-Attack

From their new and stabilized lines, American and South Korean troops were in position to launch counter offensive action over relatively short supply lines, while the Reds were extended on long supply routes subject to heavy air attacks.

It appeared too early to say that the North Korean knockout blow aimed at Pusan was permanently stopped. There was no doubt about it being checked. This was partly credited to the 24th Division's battalion-strength reconnaissance in the south.

Speaking of this action, Maj. Gen. John H. Church, 24th commander, told AP Correspondent O. H. P. King, "Our timing was fortunate. Our attack stopped theirs from getting under way."

Correspondent Don Whitehead reported the 24th Division armored patrol ran a gantlet of machine-gun fire throughout its 22-mile dash.

Four Sherman tanks and four armored cars were abandoned but two other damaged tanks were brought back by volunteers after their crews were killed or seriously wounded.

Beats Off Force of Reds

The tank force captured North Korean documents, maps and Russian-made equipment, in addition to locating the main enemy force.

After returning to American lines shortly after midnight the reconnaissance battalion was roused by a strong force of Reds attempting to infiltrate American artillery positions. The combat-weary Americans unlimbered machine guns to command both sides of the road approaching their positions. Reds walked into the fire trap.

The infiltration was repulsed with 175 North Koreans dead or wounded.

In strategic support of ground force action, B-29's of the Far East Bomber Command made their third heavy strike within five days at the Hungnam chemical center, 90 miles north of the 38th parallel. More than 400 tons of bombs were dropped on the Bogun chemical factory, making a total of 1300 tons of bombs dropped in this area in the three attacks.

Raid Deep in Enemy Area Big U. S. Victory

By Don Whitehead

An Advanced U. S. Command Post in Korea, Aug. 3 (AP).—A U. S. tank-led battalion has dashed 22 miles behind enemy lines, captured valuable documents, maps and Russian-made equipment and returned successfully to its own lines.

The penetration, classed as a definite United States victory, was the deepest and most daring so far in the Korean war. It occurred yesterday and last night in the crucial Chinju area.

After returning to a command post, the same soldiers were aroused from sleep to help successfully defend the post from an enemy attack.

The reconnaissance task force was under constant enemy machine-gun and sniper fire all the way. The Americans, riding tanks, armored cars, jeeps and trucks, returned the fire as they stabbed a hole in the enemy lines. (Another dispatch identified the battalion as from the Nineteenth Regiment of the Twenty-fourth Division.

Proves We Can Break Line

Officers called the United States penetration a "reconnaissance in force." It proved for the High Command that (1) a hard-hitting tank-led force can breach an enemy line, and (2) that the enemy is building up strong forces around Chinju for a drive eastward toward Masan and the vital Pusan port.

(Field reports of the raid varied as to the number of tanks taking part. One report said five United States tanks were involved and two of them were knocked out. Another said Americans lost eight tanks and armored cars.

(Associated Press Correspondent Hal Boyle reported the United States tank-led thrust went to within three miles of Red-held Chinju, breaking up a Red push before it could gain momentum.)

Besides the tanks, the battalion had a battery of artillery, a platoon of heavy mortars and well-armed infantry. The spearhead infantry unit was under command of Lieut. John L. Buckley, Augusta, Ga.

The crews of two United States tanks were either killed or wounded when the Shermans rounded a bend in the road and ran head-on into three Russian-made 75-mm anti-tank guns. The enemy guns were quickly knocked out.

Reds Losses Are Heavier

The American dead and wounded were placed on jeeps and trucks in the center of the column.

American losses were listed as light as compared with those of the enemy.

As the Americans passed, the enemy closed in behind them on the road leading to Chinju, but the task force blazed its way deeper and deeper into the enemy country.

The advancing tank-led United States force reached the mountain passes east of Chinju, where it smacked into the enemy forces believed to be the main Red reserve building up for a major offensive.

"They let us get into a mountain pass," said a lieutenant colonel, "and then they closed in and let us have it."

The Reds, firing from the hills, poured a steady stream of fire at the Americans, who went right into the hills after them.

It was near there that the United States tanks and enemy guns clashed.

New Guns on Rubber Tires

Capt. Don R. Hickman, Salt Lake City, Utah, said the enemy guns were new weapons mounted on rubber-tired wheels.

The enemy began rushing in reserves to meet the unexpected United States thrust. Air observers said the Communists were frantically pulling back trucks and vehicles to get them out of the way of the Task Force's fire power.

An observation plane dropped an order for the United State battalion to retire. A slim, dark-haired lieutenant colonel called volunteers to man the damaged tanks.

Pfc. Roy Roberts, Texas, said he figured he could drive a tank. He had driven a bulldozer at home, and the tanks shouldn't be too hard to handle.

Pfc. William Horn of Greenville, Ky., volunteered to drive the other one.

"I had driven a caterpillar tractor," Horn said, "and I thought I could do it. Nobody showed me how. I just got in and drove off."

Fight All the Way Back

The two damaged tanks were placed in the lead, and the others in the rear, and they began fighting their way out.

It was a fight all the way back.

When the doughboys got back to a regimental command post, they flopped on the ground and went to sleep. At 7 a. m., they were up and fighting again. An enemy force was opening up on the position from the hills.

Two United States officers were killed and 40 American soldiers injured.

Enemy dead littered the hillside rice paddies.

The battle continued for hours before the Americans drove the Reds back. The Communists set up two machine guns in a rice paddy on the side of the command post and the Americans were caught in crossfire.

The infantry worked their way around the machine-gun positions and knocked both of them out. They were heavy Russian-made weapons.

Loot Goes to Intelligence Center

The loot brought back by the task force was rushed to the Army intelligent center for study. It included a Russian-made field telephone, machine guns and other Russian-made material.

Maj. Robert M. Miller, 32, whose mother, Mrs. Kathryn Duke, lives at 42 Second ave., Glen Burnie, Md., said the American thrust "forced the Reds to show their hand and our artillery hit them heavily. We gained no ground but lost none either, and our losses were light compared with theirs."

There obviously was satisfaction in the battalion that the enemy was hit for a change.

Lieut. Ralph Pongboha of Stillwater, Minn., said "revenge is unbiblical—but it's sweet."

Britain Asks U. S. Aid In Huge Arms Plan

By Arthur Gavshon

London, Aug. 3 (AP).—Britain today announced she plans a $9,520,000,000, three-year program to build up western defenses against Soviet Russia, if the United States will help pay the bill.

In return for United States financial aid, Britain offered to supply her North Atlantic Pact partners with free military equipment made in Britain.

A statement from Prime Minister Attlee's office said the program would increase Britain's total defense expenditure from nearly 8 percent of the national income to 10 percent.

Britain's labor government is ready in principle to make this increase, the statement said, but fulfillment will "depend on the amount of United States assistance forthcoming."

"This burden would be so heavy it would be impossible to carry out the full program without substantial United States assistance in addition to completion of the European recovery program (due to end in 1952)," it said.

Truman Welcomes Idea

[President Truman disclosed he had been informed of the program and said he welcomed the development. He expressed hope other North Atlantic treaty nations would take similar steps. He added that he had discussed a message on it (presumably a report from London to the State Department) with Secretary of State Acheson.

[The United States has called for a speed-up in the defense preparations under the North Atlantic Treaty and Mr. Truman himself has requested Congress for an additional appropriation of 4 billion dollars, of which the lion's share would go to increase American aid to the Western European rearmament drive.]

The proposed outlay totals £3,400,000,000 sterling. The Nation's entire budget for the fiscal year is £3,455,000,000, or $9,674,000,000.

The statement, which was handed to United States Ambassador Lewis Douglas tonight, said the program will slow down the postwar recovery of the United Kingdom but the government is anxious to contribute "to the defense of the free world in the present threatening situation."

Willing to Aid Allies

Britain announced willingness to transfer an unspecified quantity of British-made military equipment to her Atlantic allies to help in the common job of building up a balanced collective defense.

Britain's defense appropriation for 1950-1951 ran to $2,184,000,000. Defense Minister Emmanuel Shinwell told the House of Commons last week immediate rearmament measures stemming from the Korean war would account for a further annual expenditure of 280 million dollars.

The program will be submitted to Parliament for approval only when Britain and the United States have worked out the whole issue, the announcement said.

The United States last week had asked all the Atlantic Pact allies what they proposed to contribute to the over-all defense program.

Replies were called for by August 5.

Conference With Churchill

Attlee showed the statement to Winston Churchill, leader of the Conservative opposition, before publishing it. They discussed it secretly at No. 10 Downing Street.

The statement stressed two aspects of Britain's peacetime military effort:

About one million young men have received compulsory military training since mid-1945.

More than four million older men who were trained in World War II are in reserve.

If the program goes through, tens of thousands of British workers must be switched to key industries.

Britain would have to bear shortages more severe than ever in such scarce things as motor cars and refrigerators in order to maintain her drive to sell goods abroad.

Terrorist Band

Koreans Try To Organize Within Japan

Tokyo (Friday), Aug. 4 (U.P.).—The newspaper Tokyo Shimbun reported today that several North Korean army officers had sneaked into Kyushu and started organizing an underground army of terrorists in Japan's southernmost island.

The newspaper quoted a police informant who said that a North Korean army lieutenant masquerading under the name of Ichiro Yamamoto was known to be meeting with former Korean League leaders secretly. Japanese police regard Kyushu as a stronghold for the outlawed Northern Partisan Korean League.

Yamamoto and others are known to have formed at least four "action units" and engaged in training five or six men from each unit as leaders, the newspaper said.

46 More Cargo Ships To Return to Service

The Maritime administration yesterday announced 46 more cargo ships will be withdrawn shortly from its mothball fleets to meet military needs.

The withdrawels will raise the total of reactivated ships to 123. Of these, 12 have been troop transports.

The new withdrawals include 45 Victory ships and one C-4 cargo type vessel, all relatively fast.

The new withdrawals will be taken from these reserve fleet sites: Hudson River, N. Y., six; James River, Va., five; Mobile, Ala., six; Suisan Bay, Calif., nine; Astoria, Ore., three; Beaumont, Tex., eight; Olympia, Wash., three, and Wilmington, N. C., six.

B-29s in Third Mass Attack On Hungnam

A United States Bomber Base in Japan, Aug. 3 (U.P.).—United States B-29 Superfortresses made their third mass attack in five days today on the gigantic war production center of Hungnam.

More than 400 tons of bombs were dropped on the Bogun chemical plant up the Songchon River from Hamhung.

Fighter and light bomber planes of the Fifth Air Force spent most of the day in support of the ground forces in South Korea, hitting troop concentrations, tanks, trucks and artillery, setting fire to villages and destroying bridges along the enemy supply lines. B-29s joined in the attacks on supply lines.

Total sorties for the day were not yet known. But Fifth Air Force planes had flown 507 sorties Tuesday and more than 400 Wednesday.

The Royal Australian Air Force planes fighting beside the Fifth Air Force spent a total of nine hours over the enemy lines, using rockets and machine guns at targets of all sorts.

The B-29s have now dropped a total of more than 1200 tons of bombs on the Hungnam center in strikes Sunday, Tuesday and Thursday.

They arrived over their target shortly after noon, Gen. Douglas MacArthur said in a communique. The factories they attacked produced materials for war munitions. Because of clouds and smoke from fires, only about one fourth of the bombs were dropped by direct sight. The rest were dropped by radar direction.

The big bombers returned here in rain under a cloud ceiling only 300 to 600 feet high. They landed at four-minute intervals by radar ground control—remarkable speed for such landings.

Aerial photographs must be taken before the result of the strike is known. But bombardiers were confident it was effective and said they might not have to bomb the Hungnam area many more times.

Canada Plans Special Session On Starting Full War Economy

Ottawa, Aug. 3 (U.P.).—The Canadian cabinet will call a special session of Parliment within six weeks to approve sending of ground troops to Kore, an authoritative source said today.

Cabinet sources said Parliament will be asked to approve a program that will outline steps for placing the nation on a full war economy. The program will include wartime controls and a taxation program to finance measures that will dwarf Parliament's last peacetime defense appropriation of 425 million dollars.

Meanwhile, leaders prepared to discuss gaps in Canadian and American defense production at a meeting next week.

The meeting of the Joint Industrial Mobilization Planning Committee August 8 will bring together top industrial defense planners of the two countries to discuss supply problems of the Korean war and equipment shortages among the North Atlantic Pact powers.

Irish Reported Ready To Join Korea Brigade

Dublin, Aug. 3 (U.P.).—Brig. Eric Edward Dorman O'Gowan today said Irishmen's response to his call for volunteers to fight in Korea "would warm the hearts of Americans at home and in the battle area."

In an article in the newspaper Irish Independent, the former British Eighth Army chief of staff said response to his preliminary call had been "most inspiring."

He said he is confident he can raise a tough battle-experienced Irish brigade if American authorities agree to the proposal that Irish volunteers fight under Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

Britain Asks Veterans To Enlist for Korea

London, Aug. 3 (U.P.).—Britain today asked World War II veterans to volunteer to fight in Korea.

The announcement said the battle-hardened volunteers, who must be under 30 and will serve for a period not to exceed 18 months, will be taken into the army immediately for a refresher course.

There was no indication of the number sought or how soon they would be sent to Korea.

The War Office already has called on draftees now serving 18 months with the colors to volunteer for an extra six months. The Royal Navy has been calling up key reservists.

Red Captives Want Names Kept Secret

Somewhere in Korea, Aug. 3 (AP).—The South Korean government will send a complete list of 404 Communist prisoners to the International Red Cross despite pleas of the prisoners that their capture not be reported.

Col. Paik Won Kyo, commandant of the prisoners-of-war camp, said the prisoners were afraid their families will be persecuted by the Communists in North Korea if the list in published.

Paik reported all the men said they had been told to "fight or die" and not to surrender under any circumstances.

'Great Guy' Shields Wounded With Body

Chicago, Aug. 3 (AP).—The story of how a "great little guy" from Colorado shielded with his own body a group of wounded GIs was told today by the Chicago Tribune.

A dispatch by Quentin Pope from an advanced American headquarters in Korea, dated August 2, said the story was told by Pvt. Frank Lovora of Milwaukee.

Lavora said: "My ambulance section got a call to pick up 200 wounded men. I took a jeep and a driver, a 98-pound boy named Lord Medina of Monte Vista, Colo. We drove forward and loaded the wounded, then we started back.

"Suddenly we came under machine-gun fire from a rice field. Medina was shot through the body. Blood spurted out. He jumped up, yelled 'keep going' to me, and threw himself on top of the wounded to protect them.

"The Reds hit a tire, and the jeep turned over.

"I dug myself out and found both my legs were injured. I started crawling and finally reached a point where I was able to send help.

"Medina was a great little guy. . . . The last I saw of him he was under the jeep."

Gen. Noble in Charge At Camp Pendleton

Maj. Gen. Alfred H. Noble, who led the Third Marine Division in recapturing Guam in World War II, yesterday was named commander of the Marine Corps barracks at Camp Pendleton, Calif.

Noble's last command was the Marine Corps recruit depot at Parris Island, S. C.

A native of Federalsburg, Md., he was graduated from St. Johns College, Annapolis, and joined the Marine Corps as a second lieutenant on May 24, 1917. He served with the Fourth Marine Brigade in World War I.

Quake in Venezuela

Caracas, Venezuela, Aug. 3 (AP).—A strong earth tremor was reported today in the vicinity of San Cristobal, in northwestern Venezuela near the Columbian border. A slight earth movement also was felt in Caracas, about 450 miles northeast of San Cristobal. No damage has been reported in either place thus far.

Chinese Seem Undecided on Quemoy Value

Taipei, Formosa, Aug. 3 (AP).—There was some speculation today that the Chinese Nationalists might decided not to defend Quemoy, tiny island just off the mainland of Red China.

Nationalist spokesmen made no comment, but some quarters reasoned that the cost of defending 50-quare-mile Quemoy would be more than it was worth.

One hundred miles west of Formosa, Quemoy has been shelled repeatedly by the Reds, and the Nationalists have forecast an imminent Communist attack upon it. If the Nationalists do abandon it, they are likely to say nothing about it until it is over, as they did in quitting the Chusan Islands last May.

The question of Quemoy undoubtedly was discussed when General MacArthur visited Formosa July 31 to talk over Formosa defense plans with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

MacArthur's visit also gave rise to belief that he would send United States planes to the defense of Formosa if the Reds start to move toward an invasion.

The United States Seventh Fleet now is patrolling the Formosa Strait, which separates the Chinese mainland and Formosa, to discourage a Red crossing.

In the maintime, Nationalist planes were dispatched today for the second consecutive day for unannounced destinations.

Presumably they left to bomb Chinese Communist small craft poised along the mainland for a possible invasion thrust at Quemoy.

MacArthur Formosa Trip Held Trojan Act by Reds

Moscow, Aug. 3 (U.P.).—Gen. Douglas MacArthur's recent visit to Formosa means a "full American occupation" of the Chinese Nationalist island, the Soviet Literary Gazette said today.

The magazine declared, however, that MacArthur's action "will hardly defer the date of liberation of Formosa by the Chinese People's Army."

It said President Truman, in trying to emulate the Greek poet Homer's "Sly Ulysses," had "prepared a propaganda model Trojan horse wherein he concealed MacArthur."

But the Literary Gazette assured that "there is no doubt this maneuver won't in the slightest facilitate the position of the American aggressor."

It said that MacArthur's direct intervention in Formosa testifies to the "extreme confusion reigning in the camp of the American warmongers as the blows dealt to American troops in Korea have deprived the Wall Street rulers of their tranquillity."

West Europe Exports Soar As U. S. Lags

Geneva, Aug. 3 (U.P.).—Western Europe's exports to all markets continued to improve at the expense of those of the United States during the first quarter of this year, the United Nations Economic Commission for Europe reported today.

ECE said in its quarterly bulletin that devaluation and increased trade-liberalization measures largely were responsible.

The bulletin said the total overseas trade balance of the European countries failed to show the usual slump characteristic of Europe's position in the first three months of the year.

It reported that in the six months since devaluation last September Europe's total exports increased 15 percent in volume.

In the same period, Europe's exports to the Western Hemisphere rose by some 40 percent, while exports from the United States declined. Despite devaluation, the dollar value of Europe's exports to the Western Hemisphere increased by 10 percent to a total of $1,160,000,000.

Exports from Europe to overseas areas other than the Western Hemisphere remained constant, while exports from the United States showed a general decline, ECE reported.

Trade liberalization measures taken by Western European countries largely were responsible for a 27 percent increase in trade among themselves, ECE reported.

New High for Exports Set in West Germany

Frankfurt, Germany, Aug. 3 (U.P.).—Western Germany set a new postwar high for exports during the first six months of 1950 and cut the gap between imports and exports by almost one half, the Economic Cooperation Administration reported today.

Exports for the six months totaled $778,400,000, 57.2 percent above the same period last year, while imports remained fairly stable at $1,118,200,000. Imports exceeded exports by only $339,800,000, as compared with a "gap" of $1,113,700,000 for the whole of 1949.

The ECA said that by increased buying in countries outside the dollar area, Germany reduced the "dollar gap" to $185,400,000.

Exports to the United States in June—$5,400,000—were the highest in any month since February, 1949.

Exports to Central America, South America and eastern Europe the first half of this year were larger than in all of 1949.

AEC Names Waters As Security Chief

By the United Press

The Atomic Energy Commission yesterday announced the appointment of Capt. John W. Waters, jr., retired naval officer, as director of its division of security.

He will have over-all responsibility for protecting the Nation's far-flung atomic plants from sabotage or enemy attack, and will supervise security measures for safeguarding atomic secrets.

Waters, a 53-year-old native of Stamford, Conn., succeeds Rear Admiral John E. Ginfirich, who returned to active Navy duty last year. Waters was graduated from the Naval Academy in 1920, and was retired with 30 years' service last June. During World War II, he commanded the Cruiser Quincy in the final stages of the Pacific war.

Nehru Presses United Nations To Admit Communist China

New Delhi, India, Aug. 3 (AP).—Prime Minister Nehru today declared that the war in Korea should be contained and no other question should be tied up with the Korean issue.

In a statement to Parliament Nehru reiterated that Communist China should be admitted to the U. N.

But he said that enlargement of the Korean issue to include such items as Formosa and Indo-China appeared "not only not to be right but also to have dangerous consequences" for world peace.

The Indian leader said a wrongful act of aggression had taken place in Korea and it must be condemned. He said the war should not be permitted to spread and no other question should be tied up with the Korean issue. The future of Korea, he added, must be decided by the Koreans themselves.

Nehru declared the Western approach to Asia's problems "lacks all subtlety" because the West does not understand the heart and mind of Asia.

He said the strongest urge in Asia is an anticolonial, nationalist urge. Another is the social urge brought on by Asia's poverty. Thus, he said, trying to solve Asia's problem without taking the Asians themselve into consideration will eventually come up against a blank wall.

He said he felt that admission of Communist China to the United Nations would have been an initial approach toward settlement of the Korean problem. Without Russia and China, he declared, the United Nations ceases to be an organ of peace and drifts towrd becoming an organ of war or of preparation for war.

President Enters Hot Controversies

that bridge when he came to it. Then, grinning, he suggested that the reporter ask the question of Byrnes, who could answer it better than he could.

The Associated Press reported that Byrnes, at his home near Charleston, S. C., said he had no comment.

In response to another question, Mr. Truman said he had no intention of withdrawing the nomination of Martin A. Hutchinson of Virginia to be a member of the Federal Trade Commission. He said the same thing went for the nomination of Carroll O. Switzer to be a Federal judge for the Southern District of Iowa.

Senator Byrd (D., Va.), has been blocking action on the Hutchinson nomination, while Senator Gillette (D., Iowa) has held up the Switzer nomination.

The President said that Hutchinson was willing to go through with it, and that he always backed a man who was willing to fight. And the same thing, he said, applied to Switzer.

The Vatican issue came up when a reporter asked Mr. Truman whether he expected to appoint a successor to Myron Taylor as Ambassador to the Pope.

Mr. Truman said he had not, and then went on to explain that, when Taylor resigned, the post of personal representative of the President went out of existence. No further appointment of that kind, he said, has been considered.

Then he dropped a bombshell by saying that the possibility of maintaining a regular Minister to the Vatican is under study.

"That will be a regular Minister?" a reporter asked.

Yes, Mr. Truman replied, that would be a regular procedure.

He was asked if the Spaniards were "prematurely enthusiastic about the 100 million dollar loan the Senate voted."

Mr. Truman, talking with some vigor, said he didn't think that the McCarran-O'Mahoney amendment should have been added to the ECA bill at all. There was nothing in the world, he continued, to prevent the Spanish government from applying for a loan to the Export-Import Bank, and getting it favorably considered if they had sound collateral. But the amendment, he said, was entirely out of place in the ECA bill, and he hoped it would be taken out.

Senator Kilgore (D., W. Va.), tried to get the Senate to reverse its earlier decision yesterday, but the Senate voted, 65 to 15, to table his motion to reconsider.

Senate Democratic leader Scott W. Lucas defended the Senate action on voting for the loan.

"We had to make a deal, and I think it was a good deal," he said. "And I don't care what any senator or anybody else says.

"I'm a realist and when I'm licked I don't hesitate to admit it."

Mr. Truman seemingly couldn't believe his ears yesterday when a reporter told him that Representative Priest, Democratic whip in the House, had said that Secretaries Acheson and Johnson should resign because of world developments. The reporter wanted to know if Mr. Truman would agree to that.

Who made that statement? Mr. Truman asked.

Told again that Priest had made it, he said he was surprised. Priest had no business making a statement like that, he added, especially since he was House Democratic whip. Just make it plain to him, he told the reporter, that they are not going to resign as long as he is President.

"Unity of Spirit" Needed

Representative Priest, according to the Associated Press, said in Nashville, Tenn., Tuesday that he felt Acheson and Johnson should be replaced in the interest of national unity.

"I am using my influence toward that end," he said.

He added:

"I feel that above everything else today we need unity of spirit and purpose. In the interest of a completely unified effort in the task ahead of us, I feel that the Secretary of Defense and the Secretary of State should be replaced."

Priest's comment came after four World War II veterans, who were seeking the ousting of Johnson and Acheson, asked him for a definite answer on his stand in the matter.

The quartet included Joe M. Whitson, jr., former paratrooper who holds the Distinguished Service Cross; Will R. Manier 3d, Navy veteran; Fred S. Hamilton, Marine Corps veteran, and Albert Whitson, another Navy veteran.

At yesterday's news conference, Mr. Truman was asked to comment on Britain's action in earmarking $9,500,000 for the rearmament program.

The President said he was very happy over it, and hoped all the other allies would do likewise.

Truman Eyes Vatican Envoy

Taylor stepped out said the Vatican would be glad to have full diplomatic relations with this country, but did not want another personal presidential envoy.

The Vatican was said to desire closer connections with the United States—not only because of the large Catholic population here, but also because of world political conditions.

Up to now Mr. Truman had turned away all questions about relations with the Vatican, saying the matter of sending another representative to Rome was under study. Yesterday is the first time he revealed that establishment of a formal diplomatic mission to Rome is being considered.

The President did not say such a mission will be established. Nor did he say how or when the final decision will be made. He gave no hint as to his reason for revealing at this time that such a step is being contemplated. But it was believed the Korean war and growing world-wide conflict with communism was a factor.

The Catholic Church has vigorously opposed communism and is helping to fight it in many parts of the world.

However, any such move is sure to stir up a violent controversy in this country. Protestant groups have opposed vigorously even appointment of a successor to Taylor, contending any public relationship between this country and the Pope is a violation of the constitutional principle of separation of church and state.

This country's first and only formal relationship with the Vatican was established in 1848. It ended in 1868 when Congress refused to appropriate money for the United States Mission to the Holy See.

Taylor, who quit January 18 this year, served without pay. As the President's representative he did not require Senate confirmation.

Should the President decide to name a formal minister, Congress would have final say over whether he could serve. The Senate would have to confirm the nomination and both Houses would have to pass on funds to run an American diplomatic mission to the Vatican.

in other Government departments and those in critical occupations in essential industry.

Rules Not Binding

Secretary Johnson's memorandum outlining deferment policies emphasized that the list of 48 critical occupations, and the list of 72 essential industries, would be used only as a guide to the armed services in deferments. They will not be bound by them, he said, "if we need the men."

"Deferments, which will be for six months, subject to extension, may be cut off at any time "because of overriding military considerations."

A Defense Department spokesman said the listings of critical jobs and important industries will not affect inductions by the Selective Service system.

Secretary Johnson said any delay in calling a Reservist to active duty will be based on his "current employment in a critical occupation necessary to a highly essential activity."

Professional occupations listed by the Labor Department as critical included:

Agronomist, marine architect, bacteriologist, biologist, botanist, chemist, clinical psycologist, dentist, engineer, entomologist, geologist, ship master, mathematician, metallurgist, professional nurse, osteopath, parasitologist, physician or surgeon, physicist, plant pathologist, teacher, tool and die designer, and veterinarian.

Critical skilled occupations listed by the Labor Department included:

Aircraft and aircraft engine mechanic, boilermaker, refractory bricklayer, coremaker, petroleum driller, die setter, airplane electrician, laboratory apparatus glass blower, instrument repairman, marine layout man, loftsman, mechinist, maintenance mechanic, millwright, model maker, molder, pattern maker, precision lens grinder, iron and steel roller, ship rigger, petroleum processing stillman, and rool and die maker. Apprentices and foremen in critical occupations also may be on the deferment list.

Reservists employed by the Defense Department and its agencies in civilian jobs not considered key posts will be subject to call to active duty as required by their services.

Must Decide Promptly

Each such agency was instructed to decide immediately which Reservists are in key positions.

Non-reservists holding key positions in the Defense Department will receive "special" deferments, but those subject to the draft will be under the same Selective Service procedures as other civilians.

The administration of deferment policies for all Reservists will be handled by the three military departments.

Renewals of deferments will be considered at the end of the initial deferment. Secretary Johnson directed that stricter standards should be used in considering renewals.

Requests in Writing

Applications for delay in being called to active duty should be made only when the Reservist has received his call and should be made in writing. They should be addressed as follows:

Army: A member of the Army Organized Reserve Corps should apply through his unit commander or unit instructor to the commanding general of the Army area in which he resides.

Navy: Applications should be addressed to the Chief, Bureau of Naval Personnel. Non-aviators will send requests via their Naval District commandant. Aviation officers should send their requests via the Chief of Naval Air Reserve Training, Naval Air Station, Glenview, Ill.

Enlisted non-aviation personnel requests should be addressed to their Naval District commandant, while enlisted aviation personnel should address the Chief of Naval Air Reserve Training, Naval Air Station, Glenview, Ill.

Marine Corps: Requests must come from the individual through the chain of command, starting with the local inspector instructor.

Air Force: Requests should go to the headquarters of the numbered Air Force for the area in which the Reservist lives.

National Guard: Requests should go to the adjutant general of the state concerned.

27 Out of 51 Pass Pre-Induction Tests

District selective service officials announced yesterday that 27 men had passed pre-induction physical and mental examinations out of the 51 checked on Wednesday, July 26, by local draft boards 12 and 13.

The percentage of those passing the July 26 pre-induction exams was about twice as high as for the first pre-induction contingent, examined July 24. In that group, only 12 of the 46 reporting from local boards 11 and 15 were accepted.

Another group of about 50 will be sent to the main Army-Air Force recruiting station at Arlington Farms today for pre-induction exams. Next week the number will be stepped up to 100 in the Monday, Wednesday and Friday pre-induction groups.

Thirteen youths were sworn into the Army as recruits yesterday, while eight others were enlisted in the Air Force. The Navy recruiting station accepted seven out of 10 applicants for the Regular Navy, and swore in three. The Marines accepted three of 18 applications.

Adenauer Threatened

Berlin, Aug. 3 (AP).—East Germany's Communist boss, Walter Ulbricht, tonight threatened to have West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer tried as a traitor if the Communists take over all Germany.

Pauley Favored War in 1946 Over Korea

issue if measures short of that failed, and still holds that view.

Senator Chan Gurney (R., S. Dak.) asked Pauley's views on other areas threatened by communism.

"My recommendation would be that we take strong action in other areas like we are doing in Korea," Pauley replied. "We should take affirmative action before another nation is attacked."

But he turned off all questions as to why his proposals for a "tough" policy were not followed, other than to say that President Truman had indorsed his recommendations in most details.

Truman's Reply Revealed

Pauley made public—with the President's approval, he said—a copy of Mr. Truman's reply to his report. In the once secret dispatch, since declassified, Mr. Truman said:

"Our commitments for the establishment of an independent Korea require that we have adequate personnel and sufficient funds to do a good job and that we stay in Korea long enough to see the job through. I am, therefore, requesting the agencies concerned to see that means are found to insure that Gen. (John R.) Hodge has the funds and men he needs to attain our objectives."

Senator Styles Bridges (R., N. H.-asked Pauley why his recommendations were subsequently "ignored." But the big Californian insisted others were better able to answer that.

"I'm not here to pin the responsibility on anyone," he insisted. "My objective looks to the future—so we can prepare for a similar situation."

Tydings Creates Mystery

That was his reply to the blunt question of Senator Lyndon Johnson (D., Tex.) as to why Pauley had come before the meeting. Other Senators also asked that and why the hearing had been called under such unusual circumstances.

Chairman Millard Tydings (D., Md.) scheduled the public session and reserved the big Senate caucus room for it. But he wouldn't say who the "mystery" witness was to be except that his testimony was important and dealt with the Korean war. Even other Senators on the committee and its staff did not know.

There was great speculation beforehand as to who was coming and one rumor had it that General MacArthur was flying back from Tokyo.

As the meeting opened and Pauley appeared, Tydings announced that the White House and the Pentagon had asked that he be heard.

Later, at his news conference, President Truman said Tydings was mistaken, that the Department of Defense and not the White House had asked for the hearing.

Informed of what the President had said, Tydings told reporters that he had been called "by someone from one of the other departments who was in the White House." He indicated that it was one of the military departments, but denied that it was Maj. Gen. Harry Vaughan, Mr. Truman's aide, or Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson.

During the hearing, Pauley told Senator Leverett Saltonstall (R., Mass.) that he had not volunteered to come before the committee. He said he had "initiated talks with the military" after the Korean war began, because he felt as one of the few Americans to get beyond the thirty-eighth parallel there after the USSR moved in he could give information of value.

Pauley added that he had talked with Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, at the suggestion of the White House, and later with other Pentagon chiefs. In the "course of these discussions" he had shown them his report to the President and Mr. Truman's reply and that "out of the discussions came the suggestion that I appear here."

Senator Wayne Morse (R., Oreg.) asked that Pauley return for questioning in closed session and the oil man agreed. Morse said he wanted to "discuss at great length the implications of some of the material presented." He also asked that some State and Pentagon officials as well as American Ambassador to Korea Muccio and Brig. Gen. W. L. Roberts, recently military adviser to Korea, be called for behind-closed-doors testimony.

Speculation on Motives

The circumstances and substance of Pauley's testimony led to some speculation as to possible motives behind it. Some saw in it an effort by someone in the Pentagon to shift the responsibility for Korean unpreparedness to the State Department. Others wondered if someone perhaps hadn't wanted to start public discussion of America's ultimately reversing the present scheme of things and letting us instead of Russia "call the tune" in the cold war.

There was, of course, the likelihood that Pauley's prepared testimony of Russian aims in Korea in 1946 was aimed at bolstering American arguments against the USSR in current U. N. Council sessions.

Pauley, a special ambassador concerned with reparations after the war, visited many countries under Russian occupation. Flanked by other former members of his reparations commission, he read his long prepared statement to the Senators.

His group, he said, was treated "like prisoners" and there was none of the "lip service" shown in Germany at the time that we were allies.

Streets Patrolled by Russians

"Instead, the streets were patrolled both by Russian troops and deputized young Koreans who wore Soviet stars and light blue uniforms," he declared. "These were the 'blue boys' who were to lead the military attack on South Korea six weeks ago.

"The USSR was already arming itself for a stay in North Korea—even if it was to be later propagandized that they had 'gone home.' They may go across the street or down the alley but they don't even do that until they've left their agents so firmly planted that it takes a block-buster to budge them . . .

"I think these impressions are important because Korea may be only the first battleground. Korea in itself is but a symptom, bloody and costly as it may be, of a malignancy that could sweep the world, destroying democracy and the hopes of free people everywhere unless it is checked and checked now."

Boston, Aug. 3 (AP).—Gov. Paul A. Dever today signed a bill intended to prevent Communists and Red-front groups from using the word "labor" in names of their organizations.

The American Federation of Labor's Teamsters Union sponsored the legislation, charging some Communist groups were masquerading as trade unions.

Angry Royalists Egg Belgium's Cabinet

Brussels, Belgium, Aug. 3 (U.P.)—Angry young royalists hurled rotten eggs and tomatoes today at members of the Catholic cabinet they accuse of "selling out" King Leopold.

The pro-Leopold demonstrators, including some girls, loosed their barrage as the cabinet ministers arrived for a party conference on the abdication crisis.

Police stopped the demonstrators, but not before Justice Minister Count Henri Carton de Wiart was hit on the neck with an egg.

Despite Leopold's Plea

The attack took place despite Leopold's plea for peace among his supporters, made after demonstrators threw bombs yesterday in Antwerp in protest against his abdication.

The girls hid eggs and tomatoes in corsages and bouquets, passing them to their escorts to throw. Some girls did their own throwing as the youths shouted "You sold us out! Leopold! Leopold!"

Despite anger in many sections of the party, the Cabinet agreed to carry on as a one-party government. It voted against forming a coalition either with the Socialists or Liberals.

It was clear all Catholics were not pleased with Government acceptance of the abdication agreement, which was made after anti-Leopold Socilists unleashed a nation-wide campaign of strikes and violence.

Formal Abdication in '51

Under the agreement, Leopold will transfer his powers to his 19-year-old son, Crown Prince Baudouin, and then will abdicate formally when Baudouin comes of age on September 7, 1951.

Premier Jean Duvieusart meanwhile went before Parliament and introduced the bill to allow "His Majesty the King to transfer his constitutional prerogatives to the heir presumptive."

The bill probably will be voted on Friday in the House of Representatives and Saturday in the Senate. It was a foregone conclusion it would pass both houses.

The swift action means Leopold probably will step aside on Tuesday when Baudouin is scheduled to take the traditional constitutional oath of allegiance.

German Reds Reveal Drive to Oust 'Western Occupiers'

Berlin, Aug. 3 (U.P.)—The German Communist "National Front" announced plans today for a new and intensified drive to force the Western Powers out of Berlin and West Germany.

The campaign was proclaimed in the Communist press under such headlines as "Out With the Western Occupiers."

The Communists indicated their hopes of driving out the Western Powers were based at least partly on what they called "the collapse of American prestige in Korea."

They figured that West Berliners, who stood up through the Russian blockade of this city, now have lost faith in the West and are ripe for a Communist-inspired revolt.

[So many Communist agents have infiltrated the West German police force that it will be undependable in any future emergency, the United Press reported from Bonn today after talks with informed German and Allied officials. The pro-Communist police, most of whom are not members of the party, began their penetrations in 1945 and 1946 when the state police forces, now numbering almost 100,000 men, were organized, the UP reported.]

Plans for the anti-West drive in Berlin were made at a meeting of the city committee of the National Front. The members were ordered to conduct membership drives in all factories, in the streets and homes.

The Communist press continued to drum on what it alleged were Allied war preparations in Western Germany. Neues Deutschland published a map they purported to detail rocket-launching sites, military air bases, tank depots and huge munitions caches in the Western occupied zones.

East Berlin Agrees To End Power Shutoff

Berlin, Aug. 3 (AP).—East Berlin today agreed to resume electric power deliveries to the three western sectors of the city after a month-long shutoff.

The argument that led to the shutoff June 30 concerned the method of cash payments, on the surface.

West Nations Open Sessions At Strasbourg

Strasbourg, France, Aug. 3 (U.P.)—The Council of Europe, born as the Continent's hope for a "United States of Europe," began its second year today and avoided any dramatic move toward unity.

The Foreign Ministers of 13 western European nations agreed only to an Italian proposal that member nations maintain "closer ties."

Despite the war in Korea, the ministers were forbidden by the Council's charter to discuss defense matters and there seemed to be no chance of anything more than slow progress toward merging other common interests.

The ministers convened for their fourth sesion this afternoon at the Strasbourg City Hall under the chairmanship of Irish Minister for External Affairs Sean MacBride. They began preparing the agenda for the Consultative Assembly's second annual session.

MacBride told a press conference the ministers took the following actions:

1. Sent to the Consultative Assembly for discussion an Italian proposal to guarantee citizens of member nations equal treatment abroad.
2. Rejected an Irish proposal to consider standardization of civil law procedure in all member nations.
3. Decided to ask the Council's secretary general to confer with the Hague Conference on International Procedure on an Irish proposal to free citizens of member nations from paying taxes to two nations at the same time.

The ministers will meet again Friday to consider topics for discussion suggested by the Consultative Assembly.

DP, German Guards to Get Arms Training

Frankfurt, Germany, Aug. 3 (AP).—The U. S. Army has ordered 21,000 of its German and displaced persons' guards to receive small-arms training and to live in barracks.

This was disclosed today by Army officials who said that many of the guards already carry small arms.

The officials said the new order has no military significance and resulted from the merger of the Army's "industrial police" and labor service companies. This took place on August 1, but no official announcement was made by the Army.

Reports of the merger appeared in the German press, however, and today the Communist press was in full cry about the merger.

The Communists charged the guard groups total 180,000 men being molded into a Western army. The Communists made no mention of the "people's police" in the Soviet zone, which Western authorities say constitutes an illegal army of up to 100,000.

Taegliche Rundschau, in Berlin, organ of the Soviet Control Commission, called the merger the "reorganization of the American army of mercenaries in connection with the general reorganization of the U. S. Army in western Europe."

Bridges 'Dangerous', Bail Revoking Asked

San Francisco, Aug. 3 (AP).—The Government today demanded in Federal court that Harry Bridges be jailed as a "dangerous enemy." The labor leader's attorney replied that the Government wanted to lock up the labor leader merely for expressing his opinions.

Special Prosecutor F. Joseph Donohue begged the court to revoke Bridges' $25,000 bail on the ground that "Harry Bridges is a dangerous enemy to our society, a threat to our national security."

Norman Leonard, Bridges' attorney, denied he was a menace and declared "unless the Bill of Rights is to be regarded as no longer the law of the land, the Government cannot jail him for expressing his opinions."

Bridges is at liberty on bail while he appeals his recent conviction of perjury for saying he was not a member of the Communist party at his 1945 naturalization hearing.

Today's hearing was adjourned until 10 a. m. (PDT) Friday.

They had appeared in City Hall to protest passage of a law requiring registration of Communists

McKeesport, Pa., Aug. 3 (U.P.).—Two Communist leaders in western Pennsylvania were arrested today after appearing at a City Council hearing to protest an ordinance requiring Communist Party members to register with police.

Steve Nelson, head of the Communist Party in western Pennsylvania was charged with disorderly conduct and resisting arrest. Dave Grant was arrested and held for investigation. Both were jailed.

They had appeared for the third and final reading of the ordinance. The measure passed by the council requires any group or person promoting the principles of communism to register with the police chief. Violations are punishable by a $100 fine and 30 days' imprisonment.

Civil Rights Aide Silent on Red Question

By The Associated Press

The executive secretary of the Civil Rights Congress yesterday failed to produce records demanded by the House Lobby Investigating Committee.

And the witness, William L. Patterson of New York, refused to tell the committee whether he is now or ever was a Communist.

When Chairman Buchanan (D., Pa.) put the Communist question, Patterson replied:

'I refuse to answer that question. It violates my constitutional rights.'

Among the data Patterson failed to produce in response to a committee subpena were: Records of meetings of the board of directors, a list of officers, a membership list, and all reports by officers, agents and representatives during the last three years. Patterson said most of this information was not available.

The committee counsel, Benedict F. Fitzgerald, still was asking Patterson what he had and had not brought along when the committee told the witness to return this morning.

The Civil Rights Congress, listed as subversive by the Attorney General, has not registered under the Lobby Act since 1948. The reason, Patterson told the committee, is that its "main aim and purpose" is not lobbying but fighting "to maintain the constitutional liberties, the civil and human rights of the American people inviolate."

Yugoslavs in Bonn Talks

Bonn, Germany, Aug. 3 (U.P.).—A 35-man Yugoslav delegation headed by Deputy Foreign Trade Minister Stane Pavlic opened negotiations here today on a proposed $7,140,000 credit agreement with West Germany.

FCC to Set Up U. S. Disaster Air Network

The Government yesterday stepped up plans for "early" establishment of a Nation-wide radio disaster communications service that could be used in case of "armed attack."

The Federal Communications Commission "earnestly requested" amateur and commercial radio station operators and other interested parties to submit comments by Sept. 15 because of the "pressure of recent world events."

Besides being used if an armed attack knocked out regular channels, the network would be available in times of flood, earthquake, hurricanes and explosion.

The Commission issued proposed operating rules but said they would be revised if necessary after the requested comments are received.

The Commission held a public conference in June on proposals for operating the service. But it said that since then "the subsequent pressure of recent world events makes the early establishment of such a service both highly desirable and necessary."

The service will be made up of both amateur and commercial radio stations and government and private operators. The network would operate on a special frequency band. Stations would organize into area networks, and individual stations would use a special "scene of disaster" frequency.

The FCC said it will consider applications for new stations to be used in the disaster network only.

Bomb Hits Rome Movie

On the Town

By Georganne Williamson

THE seven musicians of Louis Jordan's Band, garbed in bright green trousers and orange jackets, were milling about the bandstand of the Blue Mirror again last night. They've come back for a week's stay. And the blues-shouting, sax-toting Jordan has the same exuberance and showmanship that made him famous years ago.

He puts his numbers across with shouts, jumping and the most extraordinary gyrations. Each of his musicians happily wanders about in his own world of jazz, miraculously retaining some slight connection with the group.

In their own right, they're all good jazz artists. Bill Jennings is a wicked left-handed guitarist. As he solos, the others subside. They stand back and watch, and each musical bon mot he pulls out of the guitar is greater with clapping and laughing. As the solo builds up, a few will start punctuating it by jumping about; on a particularly good phrase, the whole band will go into the air.

The audience loves it. A party of a dozen teen-age enthusiasts were nursing the music along last night as if they were playing it. Jordan, on the chorus of "Let the Good Times Roll," turns to his followers and says, "Now tell everybody; don't let anybody play me cheap. I've got 50 cents more than I'm gonna keep." And the room joins in the chorus of "Let the Good Times Roll."

In a slight lull, a man will call out: "Hey, Louis! Let your father on the drums get hot." "He's going to right now," the band leader roars back, and the crowd hears as hot a drummer as any ever to come to Washington. Another top-notcher is the tenor sax man, Josh Jackson. He has an expository way with his instrument that keeps the room right with him. With Jordan's alto sax answering, the duet packs a wallop.

Their dramatic instincts lead them into all sort of pantomines. Playing together against the trumpeter, Jordan and Jackson march back and forth in front of the trumpeter like two toy soldiers on guard duty.

These men love their own show. When a punch line comes up in "Run, Joe," for instance, sound suddenly ceases and each man looks quickly around. None of them can resist putting in that punch line himself, and it ends up a chorus.

Jordan relaxes completely the moment his half-dancing tactics aren't called for, and that way manages to keep up the pace till 2 a. m.

He terms himself a gypsy, but says he now has a home. He's built a place in Phoenix, Ariz., and is going to try to stay home at least six weeks of every year. As for his style throughout the years, he believes it's much different now from his work in the Rabbit Foot Minstrels back in Arkansas. "It's about the same thing," he says, "just a little better. Same beat—a shuffle rhythm with a boogie beat."

Gov. Browning Has 22,000 Lead in Tenn. Poll; Carroll Reece Ahead in Comeback Effort

By The Associated Press

Tennessee took over the center of the primary election stage with gubernatorial and House battles yesterday as President Truman's choice in the Missouri Senate race clung to a faint hope that absentee ballots still might return him the winner.

Tennesseans were voting for the first time in 62 years without having to pay a poll tax.

Democratic Governor Gordon Browning had opposition for renomination. But the hottest scrap was in the First Congressional District, where Carroll Reece, former GOP National Chairman, was trying to unseat Representative Dayton Phillips, who succeeded him in the House in 1946 when Reece resigned to become National Chairman.

In the Second District, also Republican, the Reece forces put up Howard H. Baker, attorney, in an effort to beat Representative John Jennings, jr.

A tabulation of votes from 1528 of Tennessee's approximately 2300 precincts gave the following:

For Governor: Allen, 106,222; Browning, 128,912.

An unofficial tabulation of votes from 199 of 282 precincts in Tennessee's First District in the Republican congressional primary gave Phillips 20,981 votes and Reece 21,104.

A House committee had 19 observers in Tennessee to see that "fair and impartial treatment" was accorded congressional candidates in the First and Second District primary elections.

Gov. Frank Carlson for the Republican Senate nomination and Edward F. Arn, former State attorney general, for Governor.

Paul Aiken, former Assistant Attorney General, Democratic Senate nomination, and State Representative Kenneth T. Anderson for Governor.

Arn won over Willard Mayberry, who was backed by Alf M. Landon, 1936 GOP Presidential nominee, who failed once more to regain control of the State party organization.

Aiken took the measure of the present Democratic National Committeeman, Carl V. Rice, in a contest heralding new leadership for the State party.

Truman to Support Winner in Missouri

By The Associated Press

President Truman yesterday said he will support the winner in the Democratic Senatorial primary in Missouri where his choice, Emery Allison, apparently lost to former Representative Tom Hennings, jr., of St. Louis.

He always supports the ticket, Truman told a news conference.

A reporter had told him it appeared Henning had won. He asked if Mr. Truman would support the nominee.

Mr. Truman said he always does that. At the same time he said that the election of Henning was not certain, that there were absentee ballots to be counted.

On the subject of politics, Mr. Truman also said he is certainly happy over the apparent victory of Paul Aiken in the Democratic Senatorial primary in Kansas.

Aiken resigned as assistant Postmaster General to make the race for the Senate in Kansas against Carl V. Rice, Democratic National Committeeman.

Mr. Truman's warm applause for Aiken indicated Administration hopes for reorganization of the party in that State.

The President said he had not been officially apprised of Aiken's victory but that if it is true, he is certainly happy.

The President was told there was a report he had telephoned Aiken his congratulations. He said he had not.

Autoist Recognizes Escaped Convict; Cops Do the Rest

Suffolk, Va., Aug. 3 (AP).—A convicted murderer who recently escaped from custody of a North Carolina penitentiary was recaptured here today after being recognized by a resident of his home town.

Police said the fugitive, Charles G. Streeton, 50, High Point, N. C., was picked up after a motorist passed him on the highway and recognized him. The motorist said he had sat in on the trial in which Streeton was convicted of murder last year.

The escapee had fled from a Raleigh hospital for alcoholics, to which he had been transferred by the penitentiary.

NLRB Asks Court to Ignore Denham Brief

By The Associated Press

The struggle for authority under the Taft-Hartley Act between the National Labor Relations Board and its general counsel, Robert N. Denham, flared on two fronts yesterday.

1. The five-man board asked the U. S. Court of Appeals at Cincinnati to disregard a brief filed in the board's name by Denham.

2. Denham put into effect the appointment of Anthony Sabella as NLRB officer in charge at Memphis, Tenn. He announced the appointment July 11, in defiance of the board. Yesterday he told the NLRB administrative division, which is under his direction, to put Sabella on the payroll in his new position. Up to now Sabella has been acting officer in charge.

Denham and the board disagree over how closely the board may supervise Denham when he represents the board in court. Since the law giving Denham supervision over all board attorneys, he has the duty of acting as board agent in seeking court enforcement of board orders. But Denham says the board can't tell him how to go about it. The board says it can.

The Cincinnati case involves the Vulcan Forging Co., Dearborn, Mich. The board ordered the company to bargain with the CIO auto workers and directed Denham to seek enforcement of the order. Denham made ready to file a brief with the Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals at Cincinnati. The board didn't like it, and instructed Denham not to file it. Denham filed it.

On Monday the board mailed a motion to the court stating that Denham's brief was against board instructions, and asking time to submit its own brief.

Reinstatement Ordered In Boycott Firings

The National Labor Relations Board ruled yesterday that a union's "consumer boycott" against the Hoover Company, North Canton, Ohio, makers of vacuum cleaners, was protected by the Taft-Hartley Act.

Therefore, said the board, the company had no right to fire the 12-man executive board of the union two years ago. The board ordered the company to offer reinstatement to these employes and make up wage losses.

The board said the law gives to employes the right to engage in "concerted activities for the purpose of collective bargaining or other mutual aid or protection."

W. J. Patterson Wins Fight To Keep $15,000 ICC Job

William J. Patterson became the third member of the Interstate Commerce Commission to keep his $15,000 job beyond the statutory retirement age of 70 as President Truman signed an order Wednesday exempting him from being retired.

Patterson, contending he was entitled to continue in office until expiration of his term December 31, 1952, kept on working after he reached 70 June 4 and after his pay was cut off June 30.

The presidential order provides that the ICC member, a safety expert who lives at 3916 Legation st. nw., may serve indefinitely but not beyond the expiration of his term.

Terms of office of ICC members are for seven years, but the law provides that an incumbent remains in office until his successor is appointed and qualified.

Under this provision Commissioner Clyde B. Aitchison, 75, whose term expired last December 31, is still in office. President Truman previously waived the age limit for him and for Chairman J. Monroe Johnson, 72, whose term expires September 31, 1955.

Auxiliary Police Plan Is Proposed

By Richard Lyons
Post Reporter

The first hint of what part the public will play in District civilian defense plans came yesterday with the announcement that 10,250 auxiliary police and firemen may be recruited soon.

Assistant District Engineer Commissioner Thomas J. Hayes 3d, who has been in charge of civil defense planning here, said tentative plans not yet approved by the Commissioners call for:

1. Recruiting 4000 auxiliary policemen who would be trained to supplement the regular force in the event of attack or disaster.

2. Training 1250 emergency firemen and recruiting an additional 5000 volunteers.

As the city's civil defense plan develops, auxiliary groups probably will be organized in other fields, such as rescue work, water supply and transportation, Hayes said. Block wardens also may be appointed to spread the alarm and give instructions in case of disaster.

Hayes said the plans for creating auxiliary fire and police forces represent the thinking of those departments as well as national civil defense officials.

Inspector John E. Fondahl, police representative on the District civil defense committee, said the police plan will probably be submitted to the Commissioners soon without waiting for appointment of a permanent civil defense director.

He estimated it would take six months to two years to train an effective force after the plan gets started. The men would probably have no function except in case of a disaster, he said.

The unit will be called the Metropolitan Police Department Reserve Corps, Fondahl said, and will operate largely on a precinct level. Men will be recruited by, trained at and assigned to precincts, he said.

Not all aspects of the auxiliary police plan have been worked out, especially where the money is coming from. Fondahl estimated it would cost about $400,000 to outfit the men with uniforms and equipment now planned.

The District has asked Congress for $290,000 to make a start on a civil defense organization. This bill is before Congress, which on Tuesday authorized creation of a civil defense office here.

Fondahl said the Police Department probably would seek funds for the auxiliary unit in its 1952 budget. How it would function in the meantime has not been determined, he said.

Battalion Chief Clarence Quick, Fire Department representative on the civil defense committee, said he could give no further details now on plans to recruit emergency firemen.

Warned of Spreading Blight Tomato Growers in Maryland

By The Associated Press

Late tomato blight is widespread on the eastern shore, has hit other sections of Maryland and growers should get busy with a control program, a University of Maryland expert warned yesterday.

Carroll E. Cox, professor of plant pathology, said "Unless there is a change in the weather, losses from late blight will almost surely be severe."

The long range outlook, Cox said, is for continuing weather conditions favorable for spread of blight.

The blight is now active in every important tomato growing area east of the Mississippi River and in four States west of the river. Potato blight also is widespread.

Paul R. Miller, coordinator of the National Warning Service, said records show "late blight on tomatoes is more widely distributed today . . . than it was on July 28, 1946." It was then that Maryland's commercial tomato crop virtually was wiped out.

Cox gave this procedure for controlling the blight:

"All tomato plants should be sprayed or dusted with copper fungicides now. Where late blight is severe and well established bordeaux mixure, 6-3-100, or 8-4-100 will do a good job of blight control. Fixed copper fungicides may be used as dusts or sprays to protect plants against late blight. Applications of copper should be made every week to ten days. If zineb-containing material like dithane Z-78, dithane D-14, or parzate is used it should be applied at least every five days to keep late blight under control."

Cox also warned that first signs of downy mildew on cucumbers was found near Hurlock. Leaf spot of cantaloupes is widespread and severe in some fields, he reported. He warned Maryland growers to keep an eye out for lima bean downy mildew, already spotted near Milton, Del.

Bill to Divorce U.S., Farm Bureau Is Pigeonholed

By the United Press

The House Agriculture Committee voted yesterday to pigeonhole a hotly contested bill to divorce the Government's Agricultural Extension Service from state farm bureaus.

The vote was on a motion to defer action on the bill for the remainder of this session.

Representative Walter K. Granger (D., Utah), who sponsored the measure, blamed the action on "strong pressure" on committee members by the American Farm Bureau Federation, which strongly opposes the bill.

New Milk Rules Adopted for D. C.

District Commissioners yesterday adopted a new set of milk regulations designed to increase the quantity of the city's milk supply without lowering its quality.

There was no decision on how to rate chemical sterilization, but the Commissioners directed Health Officer Daniel L. Seckinger to give them the answer by August 10.

Chemical sterilization was the most controversial of the regulations on which three days of hearings were held last month. To increase the local supply after September 1, when imported "emergency" milk will be banned, Seckinger recommended that farmers be allowed to use chemicals as well as steam to sterilize dairy equipment. Steam had been required here. The Commissioners decided steam should be given preference and directed Seckinger to decide how much.

Effective Yesterday

The new regulations were made effective yesterday, but cannot be enforced for 30 days. At the same time the Commissioners rescinded a temporary order of June 22 which gave chemicals and steam equal standing. It previously had been announced that the June 22 order would stand until September 1.

However, the new regulations make no distinction between chemicals and steam. The two apparently will remain on an equal footing until Seckinger decides on the differential.

In addition to chemical sterilization the new regulations contain six principal changes recommended by Seckinger.

Changes Listed

Three changes were relaxations designed to increase supply. They:

1. Permit use of loafing barn-milking parlor combinations in place of stanchion barns. The loafing barns, where cows are quartered unfettered as in a corral, and the milking barn, where they are taken one at a time to be milked, are said to be cheaper than the conventional stanchion barn. The loafing barn must, however, be 50 feet from the milking parlor.
2. Permit use of cooling facilities other than "surface coolers" at the discretion of the health officer.
3. Permit the milk house to be part of another building—not a separate structure as had been required.

Regulations Tightened

Changes which tightened up existing regulations included:

1. Milk must have a bacteria count of not more than 100,000 when leaving the farm and not more than 200,000 on arrival at the dairy. There had been no ceiling on bacteria count.
2. Dairy farmers must follow procedures approved by the Department of Agriculture for wiping out the disease brucellosis. They are given two years to comply. The old regulations had not mentioned the disease.
3. Health officials may inspect dairy company records to determine if they are buying milk from sources not inspected by the District Health Department. Buying of outside milk has been approved since 1942 by a Commissioners' order that expires September 1.

Day Sessions Scheduled at Junior College

The recent purchase of the Bliss Electrical School in Takoma Park by the Montgomery Junior College will permit the college to have daytime classes in addition to evening classes, college Dean Hugh G. Price said yesterday.

Technical training in electronics now will be offered by the Junior College with the facilities formerly used by the Bliss School. A one-year course will run 36 weeks instead of the 32 given by Bliss and the two-year course will include general studies in English, sociology, history and similar subjects, according to Price. Addition of a television training program also is contemplated.

Chemistry, physics and biology laboratories are planned and the present infirmary building is slated to be remodeled as a library. Half of the dormitory building will be converted to classrooms and faculty offices. The other half will be occupied by Bliss students until they complete their current training course October 27, after which it will be vacant for the rest of the year. Some Bliss instructors will be retained by the Junior College.

The Junior College, accredited last spring by the Middle Atlantic Association, is situated on the grounds of the Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School in Bethesda. After the college moves to the Bliss property, these ground will revert to high school use.

Day classes will run from 8:45 a. m. to 4 p. m., and evening classes from 6 p. m. to 10 p. m. The Junior College is expected to open in its new location October 2

The Bliss Electrical School was purchased for $350,000 by the county Board of Education.

The board has rejected bids on the proposed Eastern Suburban Junior High School as too high. Plans are being revised and new bids will be asked August 10. Bids for an addition to the Colesville Elementary School also have been rejected.

HEAVY RAINS—A street intersection in northeast Philadelphia is dotted with abandoned automobiles and trucks after a pouring rain flooded some streets to a depth of more than four feet yesterday. Most of the floods were caused when small streams overflowed and spilled into the streets causing drivers to seek safety

Far Eastern Aide Resigns After Arrest

David K. Eichler, 37, deputy secretary general of the Far Eastern Commission, has resigned his post, the State Department disclosed last night.

On July 22, Eichler was apprehended by Park Police and booked on a disorderly conduct charge. Shortly after his arrest, Eichler left on a vacation trip in the South, forfeiting his $25 collateral.

Security officials of the State Department learned of his arrest on July 23, promptly instituted a search and last week succeeded in locating him and summoning him back to Washington.

His superior officiers asked for an explanation of the police charge. Eichler made no admissions of any offense but asked to be permitted to resign his $9000-a-year job. His request was granted.

Eichler is a graduate of Franklin and Marshall College and did graduate work at Princeton and Harvard. He served overseas in the U. S. Army from 1943 to 1946. After the war he did free-lance writing. He was appointed to the technical staff of the Far Eastern Commission on October 23, 1946, and made deputy secretary general on November 28, 1948.

Cooler Today

We 'Enjoy' 86-Degree Heat Respite

The Tide of Perspiration was stemmed a bit yesterday as Washingtonians "enjoyed" an 86-degree day. Enjoyed, anyhow, by comparison with the previous four 90-or-higher days.

There should be even less brow-dripping today. High of 82, sunny and less humid, predicted the weatherman.

The Man also peeked around the corner and allowed the weekend of Saturday and Sunday should see pretty good weather, with no resumption of the big heat wave in sight.

For the weekend he thought it might be a little warmer than today, with probably fair for Saturday and some cloudiness for Sunday.

'Red Feather' Day To Honor Chest Agencies Sunday

"Red Feather Sunday" will be observed Sunday in honor of Community Chest agencies serving the Washington area at Camp Goodwill and Camp Pleasant near Triangle, Va.

Parents and friends of youngsters in the two recreation centers supervised by the Family Service Association are invited to visit. Donors and workers in the last Chest campaign are also welcome.

A feature of the Sunday afternoon program at the camps will be the crowning of a "Red Feather Queen." The 700 campers will show visitors their rainy-day work of packaging Red Feather metal lapel tabs to be given donors in the next Chest Federation campaign.

Floods Plague Three States; Toll Put at 3

By The Associated Press

Major floods plagued three States yesterday, making hundreds of families homeless and running property damage into the millions.

Wichita Falls, Tex., and Hutchinson, Kans., were hardest hit. No injuries were reported in those cities, but at Philadelphia a 3.84-inch rain brought a minor flash flood that causd three daths.

Another flash flood Wednesday night disrupted rail and highway traffic near Haigler, Nebr., but communications there had been restored yesterday.

More than 500 families were homeless at Wichita Falls, and just when it appeared the worst was over another unexpected upsurge of water forced 30 more families from their homes.

A fifth of Hutchinson's residential district was flooded as Cow Creek, unable to handle torrents from week-long heavy rains, poured into the city.

At Witchita Falls a rise of a few inches more at Holliday Creek would endanger another portion of the city.

An unidentified boy was swept into a flooded street and drowned in Philadelphia, and Corpl. Frank Serratore was killed in an automobile accident resulting from the storm.

The third fatality was William White, drowned when his canoe was smashed into a bridge on a flooded creek.

NSRB Nominee Approved

The Senate Armed Services Committee yesterday approved President Truman's nomination of Robert J. Smith of Dallas, Tex., to be vice chairman of the National Security Resources Board. Smith was president of Pioneer Airlines.

Husband Convicted In Plane Bomb 'Plot'

Of Spinster, 74

Doctor-Heir Faces Quiz In Death

Bridgeport, Conn., Aug. 3 (AP). A coroner's inquest today was ordered for next Tuesday in the death of a well-to-do spinster, Elizabeth May Ayres, 74, who shared her home with her doctor and left him all her money.

Medical Examiner John Booth termed the death "bizarre."

Booth summoned as a witness Dr. Donald F. Gibson, 47, who lived in Miss Ayres' Danbury home. Under the will the doctor gets her entire estate, estimated at from $65,000 to $100,000.

Gibson told a reporter he had planned to marry Mrs. Anna Wetmore, 40, a registered nurse, today but that the wedding had been postponed.

He was listed as attending physician in the death of Mrs. Wetmore's husband, Frank, in 1948.

The physician is divorced. Mrs. Wetmore had been his employe for several years.

Booth said extensive tests are being made on the body of Miss Ayres. On a certificate issued by Dr. Frank T. Genovese the causes of death were given as nephritis, a kidney condition and cancer of the colon.

A hearing on Miss Ayres' will, scheduled today, was postponed until August 24, when Frederick Lockwood, a cousin of Miss Ayres, filed a protest.

Santa Monica, Calif., Aug. 3 (U.P.).—John H. Grant, 32, was convicted today on six counts of attempted murder by a jury that deliberated only 45 minutes on charges he tried to set off a time-bomb on an airliner in order to kill his family.

Superior Judge Orlando Rhodes set September 5 for sentencing.

Grant faces a minimum sentence of five years on each of six counts and the judge has the option of deciding whether the terms are to run consecutively or concurrently.

As Grant was led away to his cell, where he had been held in lieu of $50,000 bail, his attorney said he felt there were sufficient grounds for appeal.

The attorney, William Hall, pointed out that the quick verdict after a 10-day trial indicated to him the judge had not instructed the jury properly on the intent of his client and the fact he tried to nullify his plot at the last minute.

Although there were 16 persons aboard the plane when it prepared to take off April 17, Grant was charged with only six counts of attempted murder, one each for his wife and two children and three counts for the crew.

The State charged greed and love for a pretty stewardess motivated Grant's unsuccessful plot to kill his wife and children.

Attorney Hall candidly told the jury Grant was a "coward" who tried to escape from financial difficulties by planning to kill his family.

"But Grant purged himself of criminal liability by withdrawing his act and changing his mind," Hall said.

Admitting his client was "morally guilty of reprehensible conduct," the attorney argued that did not constitute legal guilt.

The State, however, contended there was no question of Grant's guilt and charged freed for $25,000 in flight insurance on his wife and two children motivated him. He was spurred on also by his love for stewardess Betty Suomela, it was charged.

Mrs. Grant and the children had just boarded the San Diego-bound transport when the timebomb was discovered after a cargo handler dropped it while loading luggage.

The explosives had started smoldering when Grant rushed out on the loading ramp, grabbed the suitcase in which the timebomb was encased and rushed to a parking lot. Two attendants ran him down and held him while the suitcase was doused with a fire extinguisher.

Grant testified, and his statement was corroborated by a clerk at the airport, that he frantically asked something be done to remove the suitcase because it might explode. It was just at that moment the timebomb dropped and threw out heavy smoke.

Cabbie Freed In Shooting Of Policeman

A charge of assault with intent to kill, sworn against a Colmar Manor cab driver by a former Hyattsville City policeman, was dismissed for lack of prosecution yesterday in Hyattsville Police Court for the third time.

The case against William A. Terry, 3d, 24, of 4210 Newton st., was dismissed by Trial Magistrate Henry H. O'Neill when the former poleceman, Thomas R. Bladen, did not appear in court.

Bladen, 32, was shot in the shoulder last March 31 on his way from one Bladensburg night spot to another. He refused to identify his alleged assailant until April 18, when he obtained a warrant against Terry.

Since the that the case has appeared on the Hyattsville Court docket five times. Dismissed for lack of prosecution on April 20, it was re-scheduled on June 8 with the same result. The case was reopened and set for June 15 and continued to June 23 and again ot yesterday. It is definitely "dead" now as far as Assistant State's Attorney Hervey G. Machen is concerned.

"The whole thing is a matter between the two men," the prosecution said after yesterday's dismissal. "And if Bladen refuses to prosecute, that ends it."

Cabbie Jailed After Chase In Which Bystander Is Shot

A fast cab in Prince Georges County was fast in a garage yesterday and its driver was in jail—in default of $500 bond on a reckless driving charge.

Arrest of the driver, Donald Eli Brennan, 19, of 5607 Chillum Heights dr., Hyattsville, followed a series of pistol shots, one of which struck a bystander, and the crash of the cab into a parked car.

Brennan was knocked unconscious with a gun butt when he attempted to escape from his crashed cab.

Police Chief Lawrence C. Miller of Brentwood, Md., who began the chase, said he had received reports of the cab being driven fast and reckless in Brentwood.

Wednesday, at 11:15 p. m., he spotted the cab and got out of his scout car to talk to the driver. But the driver took off quick. Miller took after the cab and radioed for help.

From the 4400 block of Rhode Island ave., Brentwood, the chase continued toward the District. Mount Rainier and Washington police cars joined the pursuit.

The Brentwood police chief said his car was doing 86 when they hit 4th st. and Rhode Island ave. ne.

At 2d and U sts. nw., it failed to make a turn and crashed into a parked car. The driver leaped out and ran. Miller fired four shots into the air. A Washington scout car, carrying Pvt. Anthony Parucci, also raced up to the scene and Parucci fired twice.

Attempting to escape from Miller, Brennan ran smack into Parucci. He reversed his field and ran back toward Miller. The Brentwood police chief stretched him flat with his revolver.

One of the shots struck Air Force Corpl. Zavan Felton, jr., 23, of Bolling Air Force Base, in the chin. Felton was reported in good condition yesterday at Walter Reed Hospital.

Miller said Brennan was recently arrested for reckless driving in Prince Georges County. He was arraigned in Municipal Court here yesterday on charges of reckless driving, failing to show his permit and colliding. His case was continued until next Wednesday and he was held in $500 bond.

Greece 'Saved' by U. S. Aid

James van Fleet, just returned from service as head of the military mission to Greece, today said aid received under the Truman Doctrine averted a "catastrophe" in Greece and western Europe. Speaking at ceremonies in his honor at City Hall, Van Fleet said, "The credit should go to the American taxpayer and the Greek spirit."

Bank Bandit Plays Teller, Flees With $850

Elk Point, S. Dak., Aug. 3 (U.P.).—A gunman who played teller while robbing a bank and then fled by airplane eluded police again today.

Sheriff Ed Ekren said the bandit held up a bank at Bronson, Iowa yesterday, chartered a plane at Sioux City, Iowa to fly here and then took a train back to Sioux City. The fugitive was armed with a .32-caliber pistol.

The gunman tied up Manager O. J. Smith in a vault before he began stuffing an estimated $850 into a paper bag.

When two customers walked in, the bandit courteously played teller and even cashed a check for one.

He fled in a late-model automobile, which was found at the Sioux City airport. Representing himself as a businessman, he hired pilot Tommy Martin to fly him to Vermillion, S. Dak.

While in flight, however, the passenger told Martin he wanted to land at Elk Point instead.

Mrs. Porter Maynard said the man hitched a ride to the Elk Point bus depot in their car. He tried to buy a ticket to Vermillion, but there was no bus leaving.

However, the sheriff was told a "man carrying a suitcase" had thumbed a ride in another car to the railroad station.

All 26 on French Plane Killed in Sahara Crash

Algiers, Aug. 3 (U.P.).—All 26 persons aboard the French airliner that crashed in the middle of the Sarah Desert last Saturday were killed, rescue teams reported today.

A motorized rescue column and a French army plane which reached the scene said wreckage was strewn over the dunes for nearly a mile. They said the plane apparently had exploded in flight. The plane disappeared while on a flight from Paris to Gao, on the Niger River.

Man Accused Of Murder in Wife's Death

A North Brentwood, Md., truck driver yesterday was held without bond for the grand jury, charged with murder, following the finding of his estranged wife's body Wednesday in a swamp on the edge of Hyattsville.

The man, John W. Gilbert, jr., 22, of 4540 41st ave., was charged after a prolonged grilling by Hyattsville and Prince Georges County police. He was arrested Wednesday afternoon by Hyattsville Police Chief Howard H. Holmes and Privates Silas Dennis and Emil Husk.

The woman, Peggy Jean Gilbert, 20, was reported missing on July 4 by her mother, Mrs. Alice Ward, with whom she lived at 4526 39th pl., North Brentwood. She was last seen, police said, on July 2, walking with her husband toward the spot where her body was found.

Discovery of the body was made by two men who were searching for bugs to use as fish food, police said.

Cause of death could not immediately be determined, Dr. John T. Maloney, county medical examiner, said. Laboratory tests are being made.

Liquor Board Profit Hits Record High

Net operating profits of the Montgomery County Liquor Control Board reached an all-time high during the fiscal year ended June 30, General Manager James F. Ervin announced yesterday.

Subject to the authorized audit by certified public accountants in Baltimore, the gross sales from operation of the seven dispensaries and beer warehouse amounted to $3,999,094.88, an increase of approximately $692,502.98 over the previous fiscal year, Ervin said.

Net profits before depreciation, but including license fees, amounted to $456,203.95, an increase of about $60,500. Sales tax collected and paid to the State of Maryland amounted to $44,386.77. Maryland State beverage tax collected and paid to the controller amounted to $215,533.98.

The net profits are turned over to the county general funds to reduce the county tax rate.

Alexandria Moves to End Injunction

The City of Alexandria yesterday asked dismissal of a temporary injunction issued three weeks ago restraining the city from enforcing a new ordinance banning self-service gas stations.

In answer to a suit filed earlier by Peoples' Self Service Gas Stations, Inc., City Attorney V. Floyd Williams contended in the Circuit Court that the prohibitive ordinance was enacted properly. He asked dismissal on the ground that the complaint was "insufficient."

Court officials said a date for actual arguments on the injunction suit will be set at the opening of the September term of court.

In his answer to the firm's suit, filed through its president, W. C. Wills, the city attorney denied that Wills had been given a permit to operate a self-service station before the ordinance became effective. He contended that the permit was for a conventional filling station and with full understanding "that the gas station's operation would be subject to any regulations subsequently approved by the council."

The city's answer termed "not relevant" the complainant's charge that council members were influenced in their vote by the fact that three councilmen are gas station owners and a fourth is a law partner of one of those owning a filling station.

Truman Signs D.C.-Baltimore Parkway Bill

President Truman yesterday signed the bill authorizing completion of the Baltimore-Washington Parkway.

The measure permits resumption of work on the roadway from Fort Meade, Md., to the District line—a 19-mile stretch.

Best hope for securing the necessary funds lies with the House-passed Federal Aid to Highways bill which is now before the Senate. That measure carries a provision that would make three million dollars immediately available for the parkway, and a like amount next year.

It is estimated that about thirteen million dollars in Federal funds will be required to complete the District end of the road.

The State of Maryland is building the portion from Baltimore to Fort Meade. Six miles of the road from the District into Maryland were graded when work stopped early in the last war.

1st Marine Unit Meets Today

There will be talk of Guadalcanal and Okinawa—and of Korea, too—when the First Marine Division of World War II assembles today at the Hotel Statler for its three-day reunion.

Recollections of what the Leathernecks of the First Division accomplished in the Pacific in the last war will be mingled with hopes and boasts for what the 7000 Marines of the First will do in Korea now that they have landed.

John L. Sullivan, former Secretary of the Navy, will be principal speaker at the reunion's Saturday night banquet.

Banquet guests will include Admiral Forrest P. Sherman, Chief of Naval Operations; Undersecretary of the Navy Dan A. Kimball, and John F. Floberg, Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Air.

And some of the First Division's more prominent members—Gen. Clifton B. Cates, now commandant of the Marine Corps; Gen. A. A. Vandegrift, previous commandant, and Senator Paul Douglas (D., Ill.)—will be in attendance.

The reunion program calls for a parade, a supper tonight at the Marine Barracks, followed by a cruise on the Potomac. The division will parade down Constitution ave. at 10 a. m. Saturday.

The reunion will close with a memorial service for the division's World War II dead at 10 a. m. Sunday at Arlington Cemetery.

GI Held for Jury In Laurel Man's Death

A Fort Meade Army sergeant was held for the Prince Georges County grand jury yesterday on a manslaughter charge arising from the fatal beating of a Laurel man Saturday night.

Judge Henry H. O'Neill, in Hyattsville Police Court, ordered the soldier, Sergt. John J. Mahoney, jr., 30, held without bond. Mahoney was charged following the death Sunday in Leland Memorial Hospital, Riverdale, of Victor Chesnoski, a gasoline station attendant.

PUC Grants Partial Changes On CTC D-4 Bus Line Route

The District Public Utilities Commission yesterday granted half of the route change requested in the Capital Transit Co. D-4 bus line near the intersection of Foxhall rd. and MacArthur blvd. nw.

The PUC ruled that eastbound buses should continue to travel on MacArthur blvd. to Q st. and then on Q st. to Foxhall rd. Westbound buses, however, will follow Foxhall rd. to its intersection with MacArthur vlvd., a quarter mile east of Q st.

A petition signed by 600 persons living in the triangle formed by the three streets had asked for the rerouting in both directions for convenience and because Q st. is in a poor state of repair.

Spokesmen for the transit company as well as District traffic officials objected to the change for eastbound buses because of the hazardous obtuse angle turn from MacArthur blvd. left into Foxhall rd. The PUC ordered the change made August 13 and four new stops established on Foxhall rd. and MacArthur blvd. to accommodate it.

House Backs 'Automatic' Controls in Maneuver By Democrats to Defeat Amendments Today

Consideration then would revert, it was thought, to the language of the bill as it was originally brought to the House floor.

That language was almost exactly what the Administration wanted—controls over allocatons, priorities, requisitioning, production financing, and consumer and real estate credit. It contained no powers, even on a permissive or standby basis, for price and wage control rationing.

Acting on this expectation, the Democrats mustered the votes to pass the measure. The tally was 159 to 128.

Under the complicated parliamentary rules of the House—it took half an hour for the parliamentarian to explain the situation to Democratic leaders, after it was too late—the majority found it was boxed.

It will have the option this morning of trying to make permanent the bill it tentatively adopted yesterday, or of trying to defeat it. But if successful in the latter course, the measure will be back where it was three days ago—again subject to any amendment any member may offer

If the Democrats decide on the first alternative—trying to pass the bill—they may not have the votes to do it. For at least 25 votes in yesterday's majority were obtained by Speaker Sam Rayburn (D., Tex.), by the promise that the whole measure would be voted down today.

If, on the other hand, Democrats try to defeat the measure, they may find the Republicans suddenly making a switch and upholding the bill.

Even if they succeed in defeating all the amendments and getting back to the original bill, the prospect is for at least three or four days of considering new amendments—a process equivalent in rewriting the bill on the floor.

Truman Told of Action

As of last night, the Democrats had not decided what to do. Presumably they will have a plan of action when the House convenes at 10 this morning.

Shortly after the House passed the McKinnon amendment, reporters advised Mr. Truman of the action at his weekly news conference.

The President said he didn't think much of the idea, it amounted, he said, to an actual invitation to raise prices up to the 5 percent cost-of-living increase permitted. That automatic price rise would cause a wage rise. Then the old spiral such as we had in the last war would be repeated.

He added that he had never asked for price controls, but if the Congress insisted on giving them to him, he hoped there would not be any restrictions on the legislation.

He would like authorization, he said, to freeze prices, but not legislative direction saying he had to.

Meantime, the Senate Banking Committee, which is considering the economic controls legislation, battled most of yesterday with alternative proposals similar to that in the McKinnon amendment.

Initially, it heard testimony in closed session from W. Stuart Symington, chairman of the National Security Resources Board. He relayed the Administration's objection to automatic invoking of price and wage freezes.

Then, in a long session with Ewan Clague, Commissioner of Labor Statistics, further objections to the scheme—initially proposed Wednesday by Senator Fulbright (D., Ark.)—were developed.

As the day ended, committee staff members were given the task of trying to work out a semipermissive, semiautomatic scheme. The proposal called for giving the President discretionary authority to set prices and wages, and in addition, requiring him to affix ceilings to certain commodities and labor if the cost of living rose by as much as 6 percent.

Food Up 2 to 3%, Survey Indicates

A retail food price rise of 2 to 3 percent between June 15 and July 15 is indicated by a partial survey made by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, it was reported yesterday.

The estimate was made by Ewan Clague, BLS chief, at a closed meeting of the Senate Banking Committee yesterday.

Clague said BLS checks of food prices in four cities as of July 15 "lead us to expect a total increase of the same general magnitude as from May to June (mid month in each case)—that is, 2 to 3 percent for food."

Clague said the BLS index remained almost unchanged for 15 months prior to April, 1950, but has increased steadily since then. The rise between mid-April and mid-June has been "almost wholly due to higher prices for meats," he said.

Clague said part of the rise of 2 to 3 percent in food prices between mid-June and mid-July was due to "scarce buying and hoarding by some consumers." Part of it, he added, reflects higher raw material costs, like coffee and sugar, "which have been passed on with great rapidity to the consumers."

This week, retail prices of pork, beef and veal were down 2 to 5 cents a pound generally in the Washington area as retailers found customers were resisting current prices.

However, eggs were up about a cent a dozen, soap powders went up 2 cents and other increases went into effect on flour, cookies, dog food, shortening, canned meats, cigarettes and other items, grocers reported.

Pork prices, which rose generally by about 20 cents a pound in two weeks during July, have come down again, District retailers pointed out.

As an example, one chain which sold rib end pork loin for 49 cents early in July, increased the price to a high of 69 cents on July 17. Yesterday the same cut was 51 cents.

One large grocery chain featured chuck roast yesterday at 55 cents a pound, down 8 cents from last week.

Butter prices also dropped two cents generally, retailers said.

Balchen Spurs Rescue

Juneau, Alaska, Aug. 3 (AP).—Col. Bernt Balchen, Arctic explorer and head of the 10th Air Rescue Squadron, took personal command today of efforts to reach the wreckage of a C-54 transport that crashed last Saturday 90 miles west of here. There has been no sign of its six crewmen.

Dutch Girl Defies Efforts to End Moslem Marriage

Singapore, Aug. 3 (AP).—A 14-year-old Dutch girl, reared in the jungle by a Malay foster mother, today defied efforts to break up her two-day-old marriage to a Malaya schoolteacher.

Bertha Hertogh, who now calls herself Nadra Adabi, was married to Mansoor Adabi only four days after a high court awarded custody to the native nurse who had cared for her since the Japanese invasion of 1942 separated her from her parents.

"I married the man I love," Bertha told newsmen. "I am fortunate to have met and married him."

The girl was brought up as a Moslem. The Moslem religion permits marriage for girls when they reach 14.

Dutch Consul-General J. Vandergaag said the marriage is not recognized under Dutch law.

At Amsterdam, Netherlands, former army sergeant Adrian Hertogh said he will go to Singapore and try to void the marriage of his daughter.

Passport Voided To Bar Robeson's Trips Abroad

By the United Press

The State Department has canceled the passport of Paul Robeson, left-wing singer and admirer of Soviet Russia, to prevent his leaving the country, a department spokesman disclosed last night.

An official said Robeson's passport record was stamped "null and void" a week ago after the Negro baritone refused to surrender the document itself at the request of the department.

He said the action was taken because the department does not consider Robeson's travels abroad "in the interests of the United States."

He said the Bureau of Immigration and Naturalization, and customs officials, have been notified and will not allow Robeson to board an outbound ship, plane or train.

Miner Gets Back Pay for Wages Lost By UMW Action

Chicago, Aug. 3 (AP).—Lloyd H. Sidener, Canton, Ill., coal miner, will get $1721 in back pay for wages lost while the United Mine Workers kept him out of work.

Sidener, now restored to his job, was fired on union demand after he tried to go back to work during last spring's coal strike.

Terms of the settlement were disclosed today by the Chicago regional office of the National Labor Relations Board.

Richard C. Swander, NLRB senior attorney, said the union and the United Electric Coal Company each will pay half the account.

Shelley Says Labor Backs Control Bills

By the United Press

Representative John Shelley (D., Calif.) yesterday said organized labor favors a pending bill to give the president standby powers to invoke price and wage controls.

Shelley, president of the California State Federation of Labor, said in his maiden House speech that he had contacted Presidents William Green of the AFL, Phillip Murray of the CIO and leaders of the Railroad Brotherhoods.

"They subscribe wholeheartedly to wage stabilization," he said.

Shelley agreed with the statement that labor traditionally is opposed to measures that curtail collective bargaining. But, he said, "In this emergency situation where labor's very existence is threatened" labor leaders supported the provision.

Mothers in Fairfax Join Political Drive

By William H. Smith
Post Reporter

Fairfax County women voters have resorted to a ombination of kindergarten and workshop in their campaign to promote a county manager form of government for the county.

In a series of "county manager campaign meetings," held every Thursday at the home of Mrs. Omer Hirst in Annandale, the League of Women Voters spreads the welcome mat for small fry as an inducement to harrassed mothers who otherwise would be too burdened with household chores to take part in the program.

While parents devote their energies to preparation of newsletters, pamphlets and other forms of "propaganda" to win county voters over to the county manager pla., their children engage in an orderly and organized recreation program designed to keep them out of mischief and their parents' hair.

Since the workship sessions were started in June, Mrs. Hirst said yesterday, from 10 to 16 women have attended regularly. From 12 to about 20 children gather weekly at the "kindergarten."

5000 Illustrated Charts

With their children occupied, the mothers have mailed out more than 5000 illustrated charts showing the difference between the county manager form of government and the existing county executive form; some 1000 "newsletters," issued at intervals to outline the progress of their campaign, and reams of miscellaneous material plugging the county manager form.

The basement of the Hirst home has been converted into a full fledged business office with typewriters and mimeograph machines. Once a week for 2½ hours it hums with activity not unlike that of a busy city room on deadline.

Before each meeting, a group of the "older" youngsters get together and prepare a schedule of activities which is followed rigidly when the parents are at work.

Site and Eats Provided

Mrs. Hirst, who devised the idea of combining the children's program with the workshops, provides not only the site, but also the refreshments for the youngsters. She frequently entertains fellow members of the league for luncheon whenever their work hasn't been completed by the 12:30 "quitting time."

Others instrumental in the success of the program are Mrs. Edward Macy of Annandale, president of the Fairfax League of Women Voters, who is responsible for most of the art work on illustrated material prepared by the group; Mrs. Walter Crater, special services chairman for the league, who lives near Pimmett Run, and Mrs. Pierre Palmer of Annandale, county affairs chairman.

Although the project is fostered by the League of Women Voters, it is not restricted to league members. The group says it will welcome any mothers who are interested in the county manager plan.

Of course, the invitation includes their children.

Iron Curtain Lifts So Olga Can Be Bride

Berlin, Aug. 3 (NYHT).—East and West suspended the Cold War for a moment today and the Iron Curtain was raised long enough to get Olga through. She is the 10-year-old fiancee of Kanutschke, the beloved 7-year-old hippopotamus of the West Berlin Zoo.

The division of Germany into two hostile parts created an embarrassing situation for the respective zoos because the female hippos were caught in the East while only a male was in the west. In the interests of the animal kingdom and German children, East and West agreed last year to suspend their differences so the hippos could get together.

Nuptial Agreement

The agreement stipulated that the zoo at Leipzig, in the Soviet Zone, would supply Knautschke with a bride and their offspring would be assigned alternately to the Leipzig and Berlin zoos. (The East, of course, claiming the first one).

Under this arrangement, Leipzig sent 14-year-old Grete here last September for a honeymoon. The offspring of this union, a male, was born about two months ago and will remain with his mother at Leipzig.

It was Berlin's turn next and a few days ago it wired Leipzig to send another bride. Leipzig, keeping its word, offered to send Olga, Grete's daughter. When everything was prepared, Berlin cabled: "Olga welcome."

Diplomatic Privileges

East and West authorities were informed beforehand and Olga was allowed to pass the zonal border with full diplomatic privileges. There were no interrogations and no customs inspection.

When she reached the Berlin zoo, Olga stretched a bit in a special truck in which she had been traveling, hesitated a moment, caught sight of Knautschke and then dived into the pool. The couple will be separated by an iron curtain in the water for a few days so they can get to know each other. The zoo director said the nuptials will be observed Sunday.

Children Play as Mothers Map Campaign

COUNTY PLAN—Mothers who attend county manager campaign meetings at the home of Mrs. Omer Hirst, Hummer rd., Annandale, Va., find that their children can be kept at play while they work to win Fairfax County voters over to the county manager plan. Air-Temp Strike Ends

Dayton, Ohio, Aug. 3 (AP).—A strike at the Air-Temp division of Chrysler Corp. ended today with an agreement based on a 15-cents-an-hour general wage increase, union and management spokesmen reported. Some 1050 hourly-rated employes had been on strike since midnight Monday.

Czech Ban on Salvation Army Work Reported

London, Aug. 3 (AP).—Communist Czechoslovakia was reported today to have halted the work of the Salvation Army in that nation, confiscated its property and imprisoned at least two officers.

The army's international headquarters here said it has received no word directly, but heard from other sources that the organization was banned in June on the ground that army workers engaged in political activities. This charge was challenged in a statement by Gen. Albert Orsborn, the international chief.

Czechoslovakia has ousted a number of foreign missionaries—including a score of American Mormons—in recent months under a law requiring that all practicing clergymen must be Czechs, swear allegiance to the government and receive their pay from the state.

All the Salvation Army's 30 officers and 13 assistants in Czechoslovakia are Czech citizens. They supervised eight Evangelical branches and three social institutions. International headquarters said "there must be some hundreds of workers."

U. S. Set to Continue Slum-Clearance Work

The Government plans to go ahead with the slum-clearance and redevelopment program—unless the war situation worsens.

Raymond M. Foley, administrator of the Housing and Home Finance Agency, so announced yesterday in response to community inquiries.

"Subject to such later adjustments as the international situation may require, the slum clearance and redevelopment program authorized by the Housing Act of 1949 will proceed as planned," he said.

The same is true of the low-cost public housing program, he said, except as to a limit of 30,000 construction starts during the last half of 1950.

Two Kallen Songs Top Mediocre Field

By Orval Hopkins
Post Reporter

KITTY KALLEN sings a song at the Capitol called "Take Me Home This Instant—'Cause Nobody's Home Tonight," and it's my duty to report that that's about the high spot of a somewhat overcrowded bill up there this week.

The rest of it includes a movie entitled "A Lady Without Passport," three other acts of vaudeville, a two-reel comedy, a cartoon, a newsreel, a performance by Milt Slosser on the organ, and another by Sam Jack Kauffman and his band in which Roy Roberts and a cute young soprano rather savagely attack some helpless Victor Herbert melodies. If it's quantity you're after, this is your week at the Capitol.

Miss Kallen also gives a nice account of "How Are Things in Glocha Morra," from "Finian's Rainbow," in which she appeared on Broadway. Her performance of "Bewitched, Bothered and Bewildered," however, was much too slow for a gaffer whose memory runneth all the way back to "Pal Joey."

She's an altogether gracious little lady and a good song singer besides.

From Miss Kallen, things go mostly downhill at the Capitol. The movie features John Hodiak and Hedy Lamarr and is all about people trying to get into this country from Cuba and how the Immigration Service outwits them. Excuse my gravelly voice, but it's the same old stuff: leering, dark-skinned natives, murky hotel rooms, sinister go-betweens, the endless chase through the swampy jungle, and even the wriggly Cuban dancing girl. I'm afraid Miss Lamarr is over the hump. It's time they were asking waivers on her. Hodiak hasn't much to do and I'm sure it's a good thing. The wriggly Cuban dancing girl is excellent.

"A LADY WITHOUT PASSPORT," produced by Samuel Marx, directed by Joseph H. Lewis. A Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture. At the Capitol.

"Tzena, Tzena" and "Goodnight, Irene," two numbers with which I am compleetly surfeited, having played both several thousand times during a recent sojourn at the beach. This is no fault of Milt's and I hope he will excuse this mild disaffection.

The vaudeville bill is led off by Billy & Joyce Reedy, a young tap team. They are followed by George Kaye, a comedian who I suspect is kind of funny. The truth is, I couldn't catch some of his jokes, either because he spoke too fast, or because the amplifying system distorted him a little, or because my faculties are simply beginning to unravel and I am no longer able to pick up things.

After Kaye come the Gaudsmith Bros. This is an old-time comedy vaudeville act which features, besides the two brothers, two talented poodles. I found it pleasant, amusing and, in a couple of places, amazing.

The two-reel comedy features Eddie Quillan and Wally Vernon, two guys who weren't funny 20 years ago and are even more so now. It's terrible. Even the cartoon, normally a medium in which I can at least get my feet down, is unsatisfactory, being a clumsy adaptation of the idea pursued so skillfully by Charles Chaplin in "City Lights."

New York, Aug. 3 (NYHT).—Eric Johnston, president of the Motion Picture Producers Association, arrived at Idlewild Airport today from London after completing an agreement that will permit American motion picture producers to take a basic 17 million dollars of their annual British film earnings out of Great Britain.

He said a bonus plan still to be worked out will permit Americans to take out additional dollars in proportion to the amount they spend on film production in the United Kingdom.

Deportation Sought For Missouri Convict

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 3.—Deportation proceedings will be started soon against Charles Carrollo, Kansas City underworld character now serving a term in Leavenworth, the Federal Immigration Service reported today.

Federal Judge Richard M. Duncan earlier denied a motion by Carrollo, a native of Sicily, that he not be deported.

Carrollo was sentenced July 7 to two years in prison after he was caught operating a $1,500,000-a-year illicit liquor business in dry Oklahoma. His present term followed a long series of previous convictions.

Engineer Jumps From Train, Saves Family From Fire

Baltimore, Aug. 3 (AP).—Trainmen on a passing switch engine saved a family of six from a burning house early today.

Engineer Calvin Purdum spotted the blaze as he was running his Baltimore and Ohio Locomotive between two switch yards. One man ran to a nearby fire station and Purdum pounded on the back door of the house. Mrs. Charles Narer, thinking it was a neighbor performing his regular morning chore of waking the family for work shouted:

"It's not Jack, lady," Purdum replied. "Your house is on fire."

Mr. and Mrs. Narer and four children got out safely.

Australia May Get World Bank Loan

The World Bank yesterday said it was discussing a loan to Australia for economic development of that country.

Officials indicated the loan negotiations probably will be finished in a few weeks. Australia's Prime Minister Robert Gordon Menzies discussed it with executives of the 48-nation bank Wednesday. Australia has not sought World Bank aid before.

No information was given on the types of development projects contemplated or the amount involved. Reports from Australia mentioned a $100 million figure.

Tap-Dance

The time has long since passed when it was a joke for a Government official to say "I think my wires are being tapped." The decision of the Senate District Committee to investigate wire tapping in Washington and the procedure of a District grand jury in questioning police officers about telephone taps amount to official recognition that something very smelly has been going on. Drew Pearson started the ball rolling in this respect by his reports on the activities of Police Lieut. Joseph Shimon during the controversy between Senator Brewster and Howard Hughes that culminated in Senate hearings in 1947. According to Mr. Pearson, Lieutenant Shimon tapped not only the telephone of Mr. Hughes, but also that of the late Senator Josiah Bailey. Senator Neely has increased the mystery by his disclosure that the wires of "a very prominent Senator" had been tapped within the past year. The discomfiture of Congressmen in this respect can hardly compare with that of Government officials, many of whom live in constant suspicion of their telephones.

In the case of Lieutenant Shimon, the fact that he was transferred to other duties after the alleged episodes makes it a pertinent question whether police officials had knowledge of his actions. Reportedly the Department of Justice has looked into the case, and it would be interesting to know why the matter was not pursued further. The pressing factor here is likely to be time, since the statute of limitations expires in a few days. But the Senate District Committee is working under no such deadline. If it does not have indictment powers, it at least has powers of exposure so that Congress and the public can know what was going on.

Wire tapping is questionable even when used officially in espionage and kidnapping cases; for its legality has never been clearly established. It becomes dirty business when used by individuals acting privately with no law enforcement sanction. A thorough probe is in order, and the investigators should not stop after they learn who did the technical job of tapping, but should get at the more significant and basic question: "Who authorized it?"

Lattimore's Ordeal

There is an excellent reason for buying Mr. Owen Lattimore's book, Ordeal by Slander; it will be a contribution to the expenses which Mr. Lattimore had to bear as a result of Senator McCarthy's irresponsibility.

Mr. Lattimore was fortunate in obtaining the legal services of Arnold, Fortas, and Porter, who helped him without charge, as well as the volunteer aid of his students and co-workers at the Walter Hines Page School of International Studies at Johns Hopkins, of which he is director. Nevertheless the bill for expenses was not inconsiderable, and he had to meet it out of his personal savings. To be sure, it is fortunate that he had the savings; some of the victims of McCarthyism were not so fortunate, and must have suffered much harassment, in consequence, from their ordeal. However, they would be the first, we should think, to applaud the buying of Mr. Lattimore's book as a way of replenishing Mr. Lattimore's savings account. For Mr. Lattimore provides an eloquent restatement of that freedom of inquiry which these victims of McCarthyism had exercised.

Senator McCarthy has joined the company of such historical figures as Captain Boycott and Mr. Lynch; he has given his name to a word. Some future distionary-maker is likely to define McCarthyism as a refinement of election-year demagoguery which, by an appeal to fear and with the support of modern technological methods of communication, subverts liberty in the name of security. Our Mr. Friendly in his review of Mr. Lattimore's book laments his omission to relate his ordeal to Republican election-year politics. However, politics is unfamiliar ground to Mr Lattimore, and he doubtless thought this was a job for other writers.

Certainly the spectacle in retrospect is one of the most outrageous politicking. Heckling was indulged in for the sake of heckling. The outsider must have been reminded of the fiddling of Nero or the looking back of Lot's wife while the clouds were showing more and more stormy weather ahead. Secretary Acheson had to spend most of his time in defending the State Department against a campaign of calumny scheduled to last till the November election. The manhunt disabled the President in getting the right man in the right job, so that executive positions of great importance in the emergency were left vacant for months. Acheson's budget had to be explained and reexplained. There were no funds available and no time afforded adequately to combat the propaganda from Moscow preceding the invasion of Korea which culminated in the world-wide "Stockholm" campaign.

Korea has now fallen over McCarthyism like a shroud. It was a sordid indulgence, destructive of unity at home and goodwill and respect abroad, offering no alternative in action, impeding preparedness. Till Mr. Lattimore's book appeared, the only thing about the episode to be remembered with any degree of satisfaction was the declaration of conscience on the part of those Republicans—too few, alas—who were unable to stomach McCarthyism.

Maritime Push

Concurrently with the selection of new permanent members of the Maritime Board, an interesting private effort has been launched to "educate" the public about shipping legislation. Six subsidized shipping companies have joined forces with the CIO Maritime Committee in a new Labor-Management Maritime Committee. Presumably the new group's first job will be to press for passage of the Magnuson long-range shipping bill which, so far, has had a lukewarm reception in the Administration and Congress.

What makes this effort particularly interesting is that it represents a complete turnabout on the part of the CIO Maritime Committee. Up till now the CIO has taken the lead in opposing the predecessors of the Magnuson bill to increase tax deferment and subsidy benefits to shipping operators. But in a talk last week commemorating the new labor-management drive, Chairman Joseph Curran of the CIO committee indulged in a rare bit of breast-beating. Some CIO stands in the past, he confessed, had been caused by "lack of information," "erroneous evaluation of the facts at hand," or inexperience.

More interesting still is the report that the six shipping companies are contributing $50,000 annually and apparently are bearing the entire expenses of the new committee along with the salary of its codirector, Mr. Frank Pellegrini, who now is counsel of the Magnuson subcommittee of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee. A not incidental fact is that the Labor-Management Committee and the CIO Maritime Committee have the same address.

Certainly there never can be too much genuine labor-management cooperation which takes account of the public interest. It is highly questionable, however, whether enactment of the Magnuson bill would be in the public interest. It would extend construction subsidies to all United States shipping on foreign trade routes, would drastically expand tax-deferment and depreciation privileges and would greatly reduce the risk assumed by shipping operators in the case of passenger vessels financed almost entirely by the Government except for a small down payment.

While a case could be made that some parts of the 1936 Merchant Marine Act need modernizing, it would be hard to prove that the lack of sufficient subsidies has held up construction of new shipping. A 33 1/3 percent subsidy is provided under the present law, and in exceptional cases up to 50 percent. (The old Maritime Commission recently exceeded the 33 1/3 percent limit in 24 of 26 cases.) Rather, it is probable that it is the hope of getting even higher subsidies or similar advantages that has caused shipping companies not to venture their money. The important thing for advocates of a strong private merchant marine to remember in this connection is that the less the risk assumed by shipping operators and the more the financial burden loaded on the Government, the easier it would be to heed the demands for a completely nationalized merchant marine.

War Claims Delay

One of the lingering tragedies of World War II is the way in which payments to former prisoners of war have been delayed. Under the War Claims Act, Americans who were prisoners of war in enemy countries are granted $1 for each day of their imprisonment, a sum designed to compensate them for violations of the Geneva Convention with respect to humane treatment, food and the like. Although civilian internees were not covered by treaty, they likewise suffered inhumane conditions and are to be reimbursed a flat sum per month. Such payments come, not from the taxpayers, but from proceeds of enemy property impounded by the Alien Property Custodian.

Of the 135,000 claims received so far by the War Claims Commission, only 7000 have been paid, although five years have elapsed since the end of the war. The appeals that come in from men broken in health and now destitute are heart-rending. At least 150,000 more claims are expected, since Filipino soldiers mobilized into the United States Army also are entitled to compensation for their treatment at the hands of the Japanese. Settlements are now running at the rate of 2000-3000 claims a month. Even allowing for a doubling in the rate of payment, it is apparent that nearly four years will be required to pay out the remaining claims.

The delay has resulted from no negligence on the part of the War Claims Commission. The staff has worked overtime to bring cases up to date; but it is simply inadequate to handle the volume. The appropriation for 1950 was only $286,000; for 1951 the request of over one million dollars has been pared by the Bureau of the Budget and stands at $700,000 in the Senate bill and $600,000 in the House bill. Since the money comes out of enemy funds and is only indirectly a charge against the Treasury, why cannot the claims commission be given the appropriations it needs to work at a maximum rate? One of these days war claims from the Korean conflict are going to be coming in, and certainly a better procedure for payment ought to be worked out before then.

ECA And Defense

The expanded rearmament program of western Europe will inevitably hamper efforts to raise the living standards of ECA countries. For labor and material resources that would otherwise have been available to increase the output of consumer goods will have to be diverted to the production of arms and the building up of armies. As a consequence, many projects formerly considered essential will have to be deferred, and public welfare expenditures curtailed.

This shift of emphasis does not mean that these countries can get along with less Marshall Plan money. On the contrary, the need for aid has acquired a new urgency. Changes in the production pattern mean that Europe will be in the market for strategic materials and equipment for expansion of defense industries, and that in turn will reduce the capacity of ECA countries to earn dollars from exports. The net result may well be an increase in the size of the dollar gap, disappointing expectations that dollar aid can be dispensed with when the Marshall Plan ends in 1952.

"Clear And Present Danger"

The opinion of the United States Court of Appeals, upholding the conviction of the 11 leaders of the Communist Party on charges of conspiracy to overthrow the Government by force and violence, is an important and possibly historic document. Its author, Judge Learned Hand, seeks to find an escape from the dilemma into which the Communist conspiracy has plunged the democratic order of society. The nature of this dilemma was indicated on this page last October 13, shortly after the convicted Communists had been sentenced by Judge Medina. We wrote:

> The truth is that traditional American political theory affords no really satisfactory means of dealing with such a problem as is now presented by international communism. Jefferson and his school envisaged revolution as a means whereby society could, when necessary, assert its priority to the state. The Constitution, as we have seen, has been interpreted as the instrument that enables society to assert this priority without recourse to revolution. But neither of these theories takes account of the possibility of a revolutionary conspiracy that is directed not only against government but also against society, that is, against "the social order," and existing social institutions. If the Communist Party in the United States were merely a negligible sect like, let us say, the Bakuninite anarchists or even the Trotskyite Communists, the problem would not be particularly urgent; but the fact is that the Communist Party is a powerful international conspiracy that already has under its domination nearly half the world and is striving to dominate the rest.

With all this Judge Hand evidently agrees; for he observes that while it is one thing to permit the "unhappy, bitter outcast" to "vent his venom before any crowds he can master and in any terms that he wishes," it is quite another thing to give the same freedom to an "highly articulated, well contrived, far-spread organization, numbering thousands of adherents, rigidly and ruthlessly disciplined, many of whom are infused with a passionate Utopian faith that is to redeem mankind."

Thus it is not merely a question whether heretical or unpopular opinions, or opinions contrary to the premises upon which our democratic society is based, may be tolerated. It is rather a question whether by tolerating such a dangerous conspiracy, democratic society does not become an accessory to its own destruction. The Communists, observes Judge Hand:

> claim the constitutional privilege of . . . indoctrinating their pupils, preparing increasing numbers to pledge themselves to the crusade and awaiting the moment when we may be so far extended by foreign engagements, so far divided in counsel, or so far in industrial or financial straits that the chance [of revolution] seems worth trying. [The Communists] presuppose that the [First] Amendment assures them freedom for all preparatory steps and in the end the choice of the initiative, dependent upon that moment when they believe us, who await the blow, to be worst prepared to receive it.

More than thirty years ago, in the case of Schenck vs. U. S. (249 U. S. 47), the late Justice Holmes in a majority opinion by the United States Supreme Court laid down the famous dictum that the right of free speech guaranteed in the First Amendment applies in all cases unless > the words used are used in such circumstances and are of such a nature as to constitute a clear and present danger that they will bring about the substantive evils that Congress has the right to prevent.

But Judge Hand holds that the court in determining what constitutes "clear and present danger" must apply a principle suggestive in some ways of the famous Jesuit doctrine of probabilism. The courts "must ask whether the gravity of the 'evil,' discounted by its improbability justifies such invasions of free speech as is necessary to avoid the danger." And in doing so they must take account of existing circumstances. In other words the problem of free speech is not one that can be decided in vacuo like a problem in plane geometry. It cannot be separated from the context of the times. At present, observes Judge Hand:

> We do not understand how one could ask for a more probable danger unless we must wait till the actual eve of hostilities [with Soviet Russia].

In short, it has become folly to deal with the Communist conspiracy in terms of the politico-philosophic abstractions formulated in the eighteenth century. We must deal with it in terms of what we know to be present realities. Judge Hand's argument is the argument of irrefragible common sense.

Douglas' Economy

It is indeed heartening to note, with the country at war and problems of transcendental magnitude to occupy the thoughts of our statesmen, Senators Williams, Douglas and Kem can be torn away from the study of these problems long enough to think about the government worker.

These gentlemen, distinguish between a "defense agency" and a "non-defense agency" by the simple rule of thumb that "one fights, the other doesn't." They would prevent the "non-defense agencies" from filling half their vacancies and would cut 5 percent from their funds; they would save half a billion from the "pork barrel," (which any seasoned politician knows cannot be done, even if we were being invaded from Mars) and cut another half a billion by not permitting the "non-defense agencies" to travel, communicate, transport, rest or print as much as they have been asked to.

The Senator from Illinois, it appears has made 68 proposals along these lines at this session without result. This is the sixty-ninth. The Senator will someday learn that "economy" is a multi-ordenal term, which when extensionalized means "Senator —'s pet agency is being cut!" As long as "economy" is preached by Senator ———, on a high level of abstraction, no one is being hurt. But bring this high level abstraction down close to the process level and begin cutting "agency," and the Senator begins to rebel.

As to the matter of leave, the Senator from Illinois is far too logical. He wishes to place government clerks on a basis of equality with employes in private business. The difference between the two must have escaped him. If people are expected to work in World War I "temporary" buildings until the temperature reaches 95 degrees and the humidity 55 percent, you cannot expect to have efficiency; if, everytime a clerk is five minutes late in the morning, or five minutes late returning from the 30 minutes allotted to him for lunch in a crowded cafeteria, you dock him an hour of annual leave; if everytime he wants an hour or two off for shopping or to get his hair cut, you dock him annual leave; then to speak of him having 5½ weeks for vacation is utter nonsense.

"Immoral" Weapons

In your July 31 issue there is a letter from Mary Lawrence, in Alexandria, which is the most sensible thing concerning the "immorality" of using the atom bomb that has come to my notice.

Miss Lawrence says "why pick on the atom bomb as being immoral as distinguished from saturation bombing and other forms of slaughter," or words to that effect, and I echo her question, "Why?"

When William the Conqueror arrived in England he would surely have considered it quite immoral if the natives had opened up on him with a few repeating rifles, or even a muzzle-loading shotgun. Supposing Pizarro had been met in Peru by a few natives wielding "Tommy" guns; he would most certainly have considered that a very inhumane way to slaughter his bullies.

As Miss Lawrence says (and I believe some one else said it, too), "War is hell," so why go squeamish on how quickly you can end it by the use of this or that destructive device?

Point IV Drawbacks

Somewhat in reply to Charles D. Oranger's letter of July 17, I should like to say that one reason why we do not, or rather cannot, sell our "American tenets and beliefs" is because of their very nature. It is impossible to pump or pour such ideals into the minds of men.

The concept of free thinking and freedom of action must start practically at birth. It is understood, otherwise, only through some shock awakening within the mind and soul of an adult. By this time during the years following World War II, we have all read enough accounts of the underdeveloped minds of soldier and peasants behind the Iron Curtain to realize that without reindoctrinating and educating them, those minds cannot possibly comprehend the moral codes that make up the conduct of our American life.

That is why Point IV—if I comprehend Point IV correctly—cannot be considered workable; except perhaps as a very slow untiring operation covering generations—a plan too expensive and exhaustive for any one government to undertake. However, other peoples who have initiative and resources enough to make training mutually beneficial to the United States and to themselves should be traded with, encouraged, advised and assisted in every way possible to improve their welfare.

In this process of educating and promoting welfare we come smack up against birth control. Unless these underprivileged people can be taught the need of birth control the benefits which they derive from any sort of aid would boomerang.

Untrained Army

The primary function of our Regular Army is to form a hard core of well-trained, well-armed and disciplined troops who may be a nucleus of our citizen armies in time of national emergency. The recent performances of the Regular Army in Korea has exposed the fact that this "hard core" consists of ill-trained, ill-armed and undisciplined kids with even less stamina then we might expect from a good Boy Scout troop.

As a veteran of the previous two unpleasantnesses, I suspect that the softening of old-fashioned military discipline resulting from the "Doolittle Board"; the lowering of the morale and prestige of the officers resulting from the same, and the general relaxation of training requirements in order to make the Army "popular," have had a lot to do with the personnel failures in Korea.

Asian Loyalty

Let's face it. Our reverses in Korea were no accident. The Asiatics don't like us, and they just do a better job of fighting us than they do each other. After enduring generations of colonial exploitation, the people of Asia have become united in their determination to relieve the white man of his burden there. The fact that a particular political ideology seems to offer the most effective instrument for effecting this relief is purely incidental.

After condemning colonial exploitation for generations, America has now cast her lot with the exploiters; and, from Singapore to the Amur River, only cold steel bearing the "Made in America" stamp, wielded here by the French, the Dutch and the English, and there by Asiatic mercenaries, has stood between the Asians and their common aspirations for an "Asia for the Asiatics." America's new role does not become her. It ill recommends "Americanism" in its struggle against communism "for the minds of men."

A. E. BASSETT.

Charlotte, N. C.

Blame For Korea

Now that this Nation is again involved in a crisis, the typical American habit of seeking a scapegoat reappears. The blame for our present international situation has been placed on Congress, the President, the Administration's leaders as a whole, and even the armed forces. This is an outright case of ducking the blame on the part of the American people.

Republican members in Congress have been pointing an accusing finger at their Democratic opponents. The latter have been tossing the charge right back. Then there have been far too many newspapers, columnists, reporters, etc., who have been laying the blame at the feet of Congress as a whole. But one cannot rightfully blame this body, for it is an elected body and only reflects the wishes and desires of the people.

Thus, when Congress, faced with the mandate from the people they represented to find an easy and cheap way to provide for the national defense, bought the Air Force theory of defense through strategic bombing with atomic weapons. This solution would cost money, but probably not as much as maintaining a draft or some form of universal military training. And it would permit the youth of America to lie fallow and untrained.

A small part of the blame may be placed on those officials of our Government, who having had reliable information on the world situation, including Korea, failed to act accordingly and acquaint the people with the facts and the steps that needed to be taken.

The attack in Korea came as no surprise to many Army officers. In the early days of our occupation there plans for its defense were based on the fact that attack, even then, was imminent. A congressional committee visited General Hodge to be briefed on the situation. But one member of that committee was so concerned that he slipped away from the briefing to take scenic photographs. Yes, we can blame this individual, but who elected him?

Intelligence on Korea was repeatedly transmitted through the armed forces to responsible civilian officials. But, as Time magazine recently pointed out, the President slashed the defense budget in order to pay off campaign promises. It was a time that called for a John Adams, who sacrificed his own personal political ambitions and those of his party for the welfare of the Nation. Instead we elected a clever politician who chose to give the people their "bread and circuses." I think that it is time that the American people, regardless of political affiliation, recognize that the blame rests squarely on their own shoulders, and think of the future and not the past.

Malik Return Means Trouble

By Marquis Childs

Aggression Brewing?

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y.—What is happening here seems at times like pure fantasy. It is a kind of unreality that, like very rapid sleight of hand, defies the eye and the ear.

There may be a parallel in the traditional theater of China. You put up a stick on the stage and announce that this is a grove of trees; this is the shoreline and this other stick is a ship. So here is what is labeled truth, what is labeled lie and what is called debate have the same relation to reality.

But behind the controversy over Rule 30, Paragraph 19, which moves like an old-fashioned quadrille, is one frightening and inescapable reality. It is the plain intention of communism to move on to new aggression in Asia.

Everything that has happened in the past 20 years should have taught us to recognize this intention in the words of Jacob Malik, the Russian delegate. It is the strategy of the dictator to accuse the enemy of those acts of aggression which the dictator intends to commit or inspire.

Wherever Malik in his long harangue used the name of the United States as intending to "pocket" Formosa, to flood arms into Indo-China, to seize the Philippines, one can substitute the word communism. Then the pattern of the future becomes ominously clear.

After what has been said here no one can have any doubt about why Russia returned to the United Nations. It is in the first instance to use the U. N. as a sounding board for Russia's peace propaganda. Part of this effort is to build up the United States as the aggressor.

Then when communism strikes again, the Russians will be prepared to fight against any concerted U. N. action such as took place with respect to Korea. The Russians will use the veto and every other instrument of delay and obstruction.

IN MY opinion the next blow will be aimed at Formosa, and it will come soon. Malik devoted at least one tenth of his cold-blooded harangue to America's designs on Formosa, dealing specifically with the United States Seventh Fleet, which is trying to maintain a neutrality patrol between the island and the mainland.

If the Seventh Fleet succeeds in stopping the invasion, then the propaganda against the American imperialists can be stepped up to an even shriller pitch. If the invaders get through and American forces are committed to the aid of the Nationalist Chinese on Formosa, then Russia can sit back and watch the United States become more and more deeply involved with the millions upon millions of Red Chinese soldiers. That will be a carefully calculated trap to draw in more of America's tragically small reserve of military strength.

In view of all this it may be the moment to consider taking the final step of reshaping the United Nations without the Soviet Union. Most thoughtful Americans have shied away from such a step. They have clung to the belief that as long as Russia stayed in the U. N., the hope of a peaceful solution still remained.

But that hope may now have passed and the time may have come to say so frankly. Malik's every word seems to show that this is the case.

WITHOUT Soviet obstructionism a reorganized U. N. might become a vital force for watching over and preserving the peace of the world. Perhaps, if there is still time enough, the boldness and the resolution can be mustered even with the USSR present. This could happen next month at the meeting of the General Assembly where the veto cannot be used.

What makes Malik's harangue seem pure fantasy is his charge that the United States had directed a "premeditated" attack against North Korea. This is at the very moment when United States troops seem about to be pushed off the Korean peninsula into the sea.

The individual who retreats into unreality may destroy himself. Who can doubt that the same thing applies to nations? This is the moment for the most unflinching and ruthless realism.

Can this country commit any more of its limited reserve in Asia without seriously endangering the defense of this continent?

Do we under any circumstances dare to commit American land forces to a struggle with the millions of trained and experienced troops now on the mainland of China?

At almost the very moment that Malik was speaking here at Lake Success, Chiang Kai-shek on the island of Formosa was trying to make the world believe that we were so committed. But General MacArthur, who has shown that he can be a realist as well as a great romantic, has given no confirmation of this.

Negroes In Battle

The news article of July 28 headed "Negro Troops Battle Hordes To Standoff" was a source of untold consolation in our home. It is not often that we are able to read such straightforward accounts of the effort of the Negro in publications other than our own papers. It is hoped that we can consistently look forward to reading the news as it develops, giving the facts as they are regardless of the makers.

Matter Of Fact

By Stewart Alsop

Korea And November

SINCE Korea, the professional politicians have been groping in a great dark. For Korea has knocked into a cocked hat every single one of the assumptions on which the professionals were basing their strategy for the November elections.

At first, the evidence seemed to suggest that the Democrats and the Truman Administration would profit from the boldness and decision with which Truman responded to the Korean aggression. The story of the polls on union labor in Ohio, conducted by the organization of Senator Robert Taft, was one such piece of evidence. Before Korea, these polls showed a surprising 40 percent of labor favoring Taft. But in a poll taken immediately after the Korean aggression, the pro-Taft percentage dropped sickeningly, down to 24 percent.

Yet the weight of evidence is now visibly beginning to point in precisely the opposite direction. Democratic Congressmen who have visited their districts, particularly in the last few days, privately admit that they are desperately worried. They report that as the news from Korea continues worse each day, the voters are more and more inclined to turn with fury on the Truman Administration.

Moreover, there are signs that the more astute Republican leaders, like Thomas E. Dewey, are getting ready to hammer the Administration's pre-Koren defense record as mercilessly as that record deserves. A few days ago, for example, Dewey asked why "our national Government ended its fiscal year 30 days ago with a billion dollars appropriated by Congress for the Defense Department lying in the Treasury unused." This question, in any number of forms, is sure to be asked more and more insistently, and the Administration will be hard put to it to give a rational answer.

NOR IS this all. The record of the past, as compiled in a forthcoming book called The Mid-Term Battle, by the brilliant statistician, Louis H. Bean, the only forecaster who was right in 1948, clearly suggests that the Korean crisis will help the Republicans and hurt the Democrats.

From the first the fact that the November elections are mid-term elections has been an important Republican asset. Democratic Chairman William Boyle estimates that out of every 10 votes cast over a 40-million total, seven are Democratic; and Bean's careful statistics tend to confirm Boyle. Thus a big turnout is of absolutely crucial importance to the Democrats—and voting in a nonpresidential year is always light.

Moreover, it is likely to be even lighter than usual. In a war situation the voters lose interest in politics. In 1942, for example, the vote dropped far below normal—and the Republicans almost captured Congress.

The Democrats, before Korea, were counting on three major assets to offset the basic disadvantage of a light off-year vote. The first of these was a continuing trend in favor of the Fair Deal, which, according to Bean, set in after the 1946 Democratic debacle, and has shown no signs of abating. The second asset was the tried-and-true Truman technique of focusing attention on the campaign and pulling out the vote by a rip-roaring political junket, reaching into most of the States of the Union. And the third asset was continued prosperity.

CONSIDER these assets in the light of what has happened. A war situation kills the sort of domestic legislation which makes up the Fair Deal. Truman is perfectly aware that a slam-bang partisan junket by the President of the United States in these times would be political suicide. And finally, the country is clearly faced, not with pleasing prosperity, but with savage inflation—and it was high prices which caused the voters to turn and rend the Administration in 1946.

Thus the three assets, on which the Democrats were counting heavily before Korea, are cancelled out, and all the signs seem to point toward bad times for the Administration and the Democratic Party. Yet there remains the evidence first cited—the sudden drop in Taft's labor support after the Korea attack.

This can be explained in only one way—an instinctive response to Truman's initial display of leadership, in contrast to Taft's isolationist record. In time of great danger, a President really has only one political asset—bold, disinterested leadership. Undoubtedly the President, quite apart from his own political fortunes, wants very much to exert this kind of leadership. Yet he can hardly do so while those who have advised him so disastrously remain his chief advisers. That is certainly one reason why the first response after Korea to Truman's leadership, is so rapidly seeping away.

Cast in Final Rehearsal for Sesqui Pageant . . .

The Washington Post

ON STAGE—A chorus is spotlighted on the stage of the huge amphitheater in Rock Creek Park during last night's final dress rehearsal for "Faith of Our Fathers," Paul Green's symphonic drama

Sesqui Show Opens Tonight For Invitees

By Sonia Stein
Post Reporter

"Faith of Our Fathers," the original symphonic drama celebrating Washington's Sesquicentennial, will be previewed tonight at Rock Creek Park before an audience of especially invited guests including President Truman and his family.

But no audience will ever watch the production with more interest than the audience at last night's dress rehearsal.

A tiny scattering among the 4059 seats under the sky, this audience was composed of members of the cast watching the scenes in which they did not participate, as they took final shape after four weeks of day and evening rehearsals.

Boys in pastel satin knee breeches, girls in flowing robes of theatrical gauze and colorful brocaded satin dresses befitting Colonial ladies, the director, the author, the prop men, the carpenters. And sitting in a row half way back in the amphitheater were nine gentle-faced nuns in their black and white habits, watching the lighting and scenery tricks since they are students of theatrical arts at Catholic University.

Rain Threatens

About 8:30, when a stiff wind blew rain clouds overhead, all the eyes turned upward in apprehension—rain meant no rehearsal, and no rehearsal last night would have meant rehearsals all day today. But the wind that brought it also blew the cloud away and the rehearsal continued on the great coverless stage.

Before curtain time, there was much scurrying back stage. A striped couch was getting a green velvet slip cover so it could double in brass like the actors do. Burley Lou Aiken was easing a ruffled cuff over the cast on a broken right hand, so he'd be able to double as John Adams and the Town Crier.

The director, William Vorenberg of George Washington University, was running around with a turban of red, white and blue bunting, telling the cast he'd understudy Columbia who was woefully without understudy at the last minute. The author of the play, Paul Green, was painting flats for George Washington's office until the sun went down and expects to paint again otday. He was not upset by the job; he remembers that former Governor Colgate Darden of Virginia helped paint the set for Green's "The Common Glory" a few hours before curtain time when that historical drama was first presented at Williamsburg.

Emergencies kept cropping up. "I've got to have a pin to hold up my britches," explained one boy, grasping at a pair of sky blue satin knee pants. "My pants are too tight," explained another one, blushingly exhibiting a bulging posterior.

A costume girl stopped making pin curls in a wig long enough to fit a young actor who was trying not to show embarrassment at the wavy pompadour he is to wear. Another strapping actor came thudding in, pointing mutely to the brown and white saddle oxfords and sun-burned legs protruding below his satin knee britches.

George Washington himself, George McClelland, came in to have his shoulders broadened. He's already had his nose lengthened. One of two rubber noses, made especially for him, will be glued on nightly with Duco cement. The customary spirit gum and surgical adhesive wouldn't hold. McClelland had spent his day cooly splashing in the Hotel Ambassador pool.

The rehearsals—there were two—went on until last but not as late as they did Wednesday night when the cast stayed until 2 a. m. and a handful of production men stayed until 4 a. m. standing in for members of the cast so lighting cues could be worked out.

The idea is to get the extravagant production into shape for the preview as well as to get it into shape so the cast will learn the discipline of doing its best. The cast is composed almost entirely of dramatic and dancing students. Except for the leading roles of George Washington and that of Martha Washington which is played by Mary Miller, the cast, the prop men, set builders and backstage crew are amateur or semiprofessional. The whole production is conceived by its author as an educational piece for the actors, as well as an enjoyable experience for the audience.

"Faith of Our Fathers," which is about the man Washington, as well as the city Washington, is the third in a trilogy of outdoor historical dramas written by Green. The first one, "The Lost Colony" is now in its tenth season at Roanoke Island, N. C. The second "The Common Glory," which is presented yearly at Williamsburg, Va., began in 1947. Both of these plays also use student actors and crew members.

"Faith of Our Fathers" will have its first public showing Saturday night at 8:30 in the huge amphitheater in Rock Creek Park, on Colorado ave., just off 16th st. nw. A "Massing of the Colors" ceremony with more than 200 color guards and standards will precede the performance. Tickets for this and succeeding performances are being sold at the trailer in front of the District Building, the Stabler Ticket Mart in Brentano's at 1323 F st. nw. and the Super Music City stores at 1350 F st. and 1110 7th st. nw. Performances will be nightly except Monday through September 30.

THE LEADS—Mary Miller, the Martha Washington, and Charles McClelland, the George Washington of the Sesquicentennial drama, relax awaiting their call to the stage. They're occupying the seats reserved for President and Mrs. Truman

Special Transit Service For Pageant Patrons

The Capital Transit Co. has announced the following bus service, for those attending "Faith of Our Fathers," will start Saturday and continue daily except Monday:

Route S-2 buses, marked "Sesquicentennial Amphitheatre" will leave 11th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw. at 7:15, 7:30 and 7:45 p. m, traveling on the regular route to 16th and Decatur sts. nw., thence by way of Decatur st., 17th st. and Colorado ave. to the amphitheater entrance

Route M-2 buses, marked "Sesquicentennial Amphitheatre," will leave Friendship Heights at 7:27 and 7:57 p. m., operating on the regular route to 14th and Colorado ave. nw., and then to the amphitheater entrance.

House Quickly Reverses OK of Profits Tax

By the United Press

The House, in a parliamentary uproar, yesterday approved and then quickly turned around and rejected a move to restore the World War II excess-profits tax.

The action was taken as the House was rushing through amendments to a bill to set up economic controls for the Korean war emergency.

Representative Walter Huber (D., Ohio), offered one to imose an excess-profits tax. He gave no details. The amendment was adopted. Then it was discovered Huber's proposal would restore the World War II excess-profits rates. Republicans forced a second vote and it was thrown out, 153 to 112.

The original adoption was a mistake born of confusion. But, it reflected a strong sentiment in Congress to impose an excess-profits tax on corporations.

Earlier, the House rejected an amendment that would have held up any wage controls until an excess-profits tax was enacted. That amendment was sponsored by Representatives Daniel F. Flood (D., Pa.) and Helen Gahagan Douglas (D., Calif.) who argued that if wages are to be controled profits should too.

Tax leaders in both Houses have said excess-profits taxes will be considered after President Truman's stop-gap proposal for tax increases of five billion dollars to finance the rearmament program is out of the way.

The President's immediate plan, calls for a boost in the regular tax on corporation profits and a return to the 1945 tax rates on individuals.

The AFL protested the President's proposals yesterday and submitted an alternate plan with the Senate Finance Committee calling for an excess profits tax on corporations and a boost in personal income taxes only on higher bracket individuals.

The labor organization said Mr. Truman's program would be unfair to low-income groups.

The AFL agreed with Mr. Truman, however, that tax loopholes should be plugged, estate and gift taxes raised, and special tax advantages for mining and oil industries be cut or eliminated.

The Senate committee voted yesterday to kill House-approved tax concessions for mining and related industries which would have cost the Government 40 million dollars a year in revenue.

Senate Democratic Leader Scott W. Lucas (Ill.) said the Administration did not ask for an excess profits tax now because it wants the emergency program approved quickly.

"If we get into a real war, we are going to take the profits out of war," he said. "Nobody is going to get rich at the expense of the GI."

Douglas Departs On Another Trip Round the World

La Grande, Ore., Aug. 3 (AP).—Justice William O. Douglas of the United States Supreme Court is off on another globe-girdling jaunt.

He came out of his isolated mountain summer quarters yesterday to start the trip, which will carry him around the world. In between will be mountain climbing in Iran and study for a book on the Middle East. He'll be back in time for the Supreme Court session opening in October.

The Justice has recovered completely from his most recent accident with a horse—a kick on the left shin that put him in a Portland hospital. He insisted he will ride horses in Iran.

"But I hope I have better luck than in this country," he said.

Double Hormone Aid in Arthritis

Newark, N. J., Aug. 3 (AP).—A new double-hormone treatment for arthritis was announced today by a team of physicians.

They used insulin, the diabetes hormone, along with cortisone, one of the wonder hormones that relieve rheumatoid arthritis. The insulin seems to step up the anti-arthritis action of cortisone, they reported in the Journal of Clinical Endocrinology.

Patients got relief of pain with half or less the usual amount of cortisone when they also were given insulin, they said.

Cortisone is still scarce and expensive. A day's dose usually costs about $12. The addition of insulin may reduce the cost of treatment, and stretch the supply of cortisone.

If smaller doses of cortisone are used, there is more chance of avoiding bad effects that the hormone sometimes produces. These effects include moon-like rounding of the face, growth of body hair, mental upsets, and diabetes-like sugar in the blood.

Red Cross, Chest Get Site Offers

Sites for location of Montgomery County Community Chest and Red Cross headquarters buildings have been offered those organizations by Sam Eig, real estate developer and builder.

Eig has offered 50,000 square feet on East-West hwy. at the Western ave. triangle, where Eig already has donated a strip almost a mile long for extension of Western ave. to an apex at East-West hwy.

Each organization would receive 25,000 square feet for construction of its county-wide headquarters building. Members of the Red Cross board of directors will meet at 9 p. m. Wednesday to consider the offer and Community Chest officials are expected to meet within a short time. The executive committee of the board of trustees met this week and voted to send the proposal to board members before September 1.

With her late sister Annie H., and another sister, Miriam M., she ran the exclusive Misses Eastmans' School for Girls, at 17th and Massachusetts ave. nw., for more than two decades.

Wythe County Polio Count Rises to 117

Wytheville, Va., Aug. 3 (AP).—A bulletin board in the heart of this small mountain community tells the news. Wytheville's citizens stream up to it all day long.

Mist sifts through the eyes of some as they move away. Many have sober faces. The voices of little children have been silenced. The laughter is gone from this village resting in the mountain shadows.

For Wytheville is gasping with infantile paralysis, or "polio." The dread disease struck here with the rapidity of a thunderstorm July 1. Some are dead. Others are dying. Crippled youngsters and adults are scattered in hospitals and homes throughout the area.

Today the bulletin board gave the number of victims as 117 in Wythe County—75 in this town. The town, County seat, reported four new victims today, the County two. A total of 261 cases for the whole State has been reported to the State Health Dept.

The mothers and fathers of stricken children are being taught to care for their own in their own homes. Virginia Public Health nurses and March of Dimes physical therapists provided by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis are the teachers. A month's time has shown they are good ones.

The new plan in post-polio treatment was introduced in the midst of this epidemic by the Roanoke Memorial and Crippled Children's Hospital of nearby Roanoke, Va. Hospital beds are freed quickly for new acute cases as the number of victims steadily rises, and children get back home more rapidly to gladden the hearts of saddened parents.

Within a month since the epidemic came, 41 Wythe County polio patients have returned from hospitals. Before they came back, their families were visited by county health nurses, taught to give bed baths and hot packs, to do simple chores of bedside nursing.

Free Europe Net Expands

New York, Aug. 3 (NYHT).—Daily broadcasts to Poland and Hungary will be started Friday by Radio Free Europe. Broadcasts to Czechoslovakia and Romania were started July 14, and the organization hopes to reach a large section of the 80 million people of eastern Europe with news of democratic countries with the voices of their exiled leaders.

Nation's Polio Case Total Less Than Half Last Year's

New cases of infantile paralysis in the United States are now running at less than half the numbers reported at this time last year.

The favorable trend, however, is not shared by the District of Columbia and Virginia, where new polio cases exceed last year's seasonal rate.

The figures, released yesterday by the Public Health Service, show that for the week ending last Saturday there were 964 new cases recorded nationally. This compares to 1935 new cases recorded during the corresponding week of last year.

The totals do not include Colorado, which had but seven new cases reported for the previous week.

In the District, nine new polio cases were reported during last week, to but one new case during the corresponding week of last year. And Virginia produced 82 cases last week, the majority of them in Wythe County, as compared to the 1949 week's toll of 13.

Maryland's polio toll was shown as comparable to its 1949 picture. The State reported nine new cases last week, for a total "disease" year to last Saturday of 19 cases. At the same time last year, the State had recorded seven polio cases for the week and a cumulative "disease" year total of 18.

The Maryland figures for last week included one new case reported from Prince Georges County and one from Montgomery County. Last year, Prince Georges County had four new cases for the week, and Montgomery County had none.

Virginia's 82 new cases last week included 8 from the area nearby These included one reported in Alexandria, and seven widely scattered cases in Fairfax County. No new cases were recorded during the week in Arlington County.

No D. C. Polio Cases Reported Yesterday

For the first time since July 22, no new cases of infantile paralysis were recorded in the District Health Department's daily polio count yesterday.

The District's latest, and 45th new case of the year, was officially recorded on Wednesday. It concerned a 20-month-old boy from the 2000 block of Maryland ave. ne.

Three new polio cases were recorded yesterday in Prince Georges County, Md. They included those of a four-year-old boy of the 4900 block of Beal dr., Washington 20; a four-year-old, College Park boy, and a 10-year-old girl from Clinton. They bring the county's polio total to 17 for this year.

Montgomery County, Md., had no new cases yesterday, maintaining its polio toll for this year at 11 cases. Similarly, no new cases were recorded in nearby Virginia, leaving Alexandria with three cases this year; Arlington, 5, and Fairfax County, 13.

Georgia Ave. Widening Surveys Now Complete

Surveys and half of the planning work have been completed for the widening of Georgia ave. from Silver Spring to Glenmont, Md., Chief Engineer William F. Childs, of the State Roads Commission, has announced.

Most of the rights of way remain to be acquired, he said, with approximately 150 transactions involved and he would not estimate when the project will be ready for bids.

The Federal Diary by Jerry Klutz

Air Force, Post Office, Mutual Defense Assistance, General Services' funds for stockpiling of critical and strategic materials, the legislative and judicial branches, Atomic Energy, trust funds, funds of Government corporations except those made available in the bill for administrative expenses and from Treasury's general fund; all hospital and medical funds except administrative expenses not directly connected with the operation of a specific hospital, dispensary, or clinic; and expenses of the Federal employe health program.

Law Enforcement Agencies

Also exempted were the operations of law enforcement agencies such as the FBI, Coast Guard, Bureau of Customs, Immigration and Naturalization Service, Secret Service and Internal Revenue; all VA activities except those for general administration; payments to States and political subdivisions; payment of obligations incurred under prior appropriations and authorizations; appropriations for awards, refunds, and indemnities, and payments toward pensions, retirement, and disability annuities.

The agencies that would be hard hit by the rider would be Agriculture, Interior, Commerce, Justice, Treasury, Labor, Federal Security, State, and all of the independent agencies such as Civil Service, Housing & Home Finance, Federal Housing, National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, Interstate Commerce, Federal Power, Federal Trade, Federal Communications, SEC and many others.

The rider would not apply to the District Government nor to the eleven million dollar Federal contribution to it.

Larger than Advertised

If the rider is written into law, the agencies covered by it would have to make an over-all reduction somewhat larger than the advertised 10 percent. Here's why:

1. The 10 percent cut would have to be made on their budgets as finally approved by Congress, and many of the budgets already have been slashed by the House and the Senate.

2. The bill provides operating funds for Federal agencies for the 1951 fiscal year that began on July 1. It will be another month or so before the agencies could fire employes and pay them their terminal leave, and by that time we will be well into the 1951 fiscal year.

The Senate also rejected an amendment by Senator Morse (R., Oreg.) to knock out the riders that give the Commerce and State Secretaries the authority to fire employes who are judged to be security risks. Morse explained the Senate would soon take up a House-approved bill which would give accused employes the right of appeal to Civil Service.

Falls Church Council Unit Backs Dunn

Court Injunction Prevents Wells From Acting as City Manager

By Judy Spivak
Post Reporter

Roy F. Dunn, ousted as acting Falls Church city manager 24 hours earlier, last night was recommended for the post of city manager by a 3-2 vote of a special City Council committee.

The committee's action was apparently an attempt to save the city's $700,000 school bond issue.

At a stormy Wednesday night council session, City Clerk Harry Wells was appointed city manager by a vote of 6 to 2. Mayor Albert M. Orme told the council that the primary reason for appointing a city manager then, was that an acting city manager's signature on the bonds might not be legal.

The bonds, already sold, must be properly signed before delivery, due August 15.

A temporary Fairfax Court injunction, issued yesterday afternoon, enjoins Wells from performing any acts as city manager—including signing of the school bonds.

The temporary injunction, valid until a hearing scheduled for August 15, was issued by Judge Arthur Sinclair at the request of the following petitioners:

Councilmen Samuel E. McCrary, Dunns' leading supporter on the Council; Mrs. Merrill Lee Chanel, former councilwoman; Frank N. McElroy, 401 East Broad st.; Alvin Tasker, S. Oak st.; and Lytton H. Gibson, former assistant Fairfax County Commonwealth's Attorney.

The injunction petition alleged that Wells' appointment was "illegal" and that his signature on the school bonds "may result in the illegal issue of the bonds."

The petitioners also alleged that Wells was not qualified under the charter to serve as city manager, since he has "no college or university degree of any kind," or any "actual experience," in the city manager's job.

Wells, 33, was appointed, with McCrary and Durant dissenting. Councilman Sherman Wells, father of Harry, did not vote.

The committee met last night to consider a candidate for the job of permanent city manager. McCrary moved that Dunn be recommended for the job, in view of the injunction granted yesterday afternoon and the "serious situation" arising over legality of the school bonds.

Voting with McCrary on the motion were Councilmen John McRae and Carl Hink, both of whom supported Wells' appointment Wednesday. Voting against the motion were Councilmen Karl Anderson and Lee M. Rhoads.

The heated Wednesday session closed with an exchange of blows involving five of about 75 spectators.

The brief fight apparently started when an unidentified man struck William A. Van Allen, 606 Langston la., Falls Church, in the face. Van Allen said he had previously closed a window on a "noisy crowd" outside the council chamber. He said they were making "personal attacks" on council members and spectators who favored Dunn's ouster.

Van Allen reported that Dudley C. Bostwick, 402 N. West st., came to his aid. W. M. Herring, sr., a bystander, said he was "grabbed" by Bostwick in the melee, whereupon his son, W. M. Herring, jr., sought to protect him.

Some council members at a meeting about 10 days ago indicated open dissatisfaction with Dunn's performance. Then, a motion by McCrary for a vote of confidence in the acting city manager's performance failed for want of a second.

Dunn's critics have opposed his handling of street repair and drainage problems in the city.

McCrary said yesterday that charges against Dunn were "manufactured" by his opponents and "have no basis in fact." He said the council majority rather than Dunn is responsible for any failure to handle drainage problems.

Funds Urged For Future U. S. Buildings

The National Capital Park and Planning Commission yesterday urged the Public Buildings Service to seek congressional funds as rapidly as possible for acquisition of sites needed for completion of Federal plans for the downtown section of the District of Columbia.

The commission, which reviewed with PBS threats to encroachment on areas designated for future development, did not recommend purchase of all such sites, but only those that are vacant or in run-down condition.

If funds are available for emergency purchase either now or later it would be cheaper than waiting until a million-dollar building, say, is erected on a site, John Nolen, jr., planning director, reported.

The areas in mind are the northwest rectangle—bounded by 19th st., Potomac River, S st. and Constitution ave.—and the southwest triangle—bounded by Independence, Maryland, Virginia and Delaware aves.

Parking Possibilities

Nolen, who made it clear that the commission was not proposing that permanent Federal buildings be erected now, said the land acquired could be used meanwhile for parking or temporary buildings.

Cost of acquisition of the sites would not be "substantial," he said.

In other action, the NCPPC requested its coordinating committee to meet with Fred M. Kramer, chief architectural and engineering assistant in the office of the Architect of the Capitol, to discuss plans for extension of the Capitol grounds, including widening of Independence ave., a tunnel for a proposed new Senate Office Building annex, and developing of East Capitol st.

The commission indorsed: H. R. 8952, authorizing a study of widening of Independence ave. nw. in the vicinity of the Capitol; H. R. 8534, authorizing acceptance by the Interior Department of gifts of land to fill out the Potomac River pkwy. right-of-way to Great Falls along the B. & O. Canal; H. R. 9205, providing authorization for acquisitation of certain lands in the vicinity of Hunting Creek to provide protection for Mount Vernon Memorial hgwy.

Plat Under Way

Nolen in a progress report on plans for extension of Fourth st. through the Soldiers Home grounds said that a plat is being prepared and a public hearing will be held later.

The commission and the District Recreation Board were said to be in "satisfactory" agreement on items in the land acquisition program for the fiscal year 1952, much of which includes playground projects.

Frederick Gutheim, member of the newly established Upper Montgomery County Planning Commission, told the NCPPC of the Montgomery body's basic views concerning its territory.

pital after doctors despaired of saving his life.

Of the seven injured, one was in critical condition. All were taken to Emergency Hospital. They are:

Mrs. Minnie M. Weaver, 61, of 328 Ridge rd. se., condition critical, severe head injuries and possible skull fracture and internal injuries.

Thomas F. O'Brien, 34, of 2306 Eccleston st., Silver Spring, Md., operator of the streetcar, possible fractured pelvis.

Pvt. Hubert Hoke, 50, Metropolitan policeman of Duke st. extended, Annandale, Va., treated and released.

Mrs. Ethel Hoke, 51, his wife, cuts and bruises.

Mrs. Birdie Wilson, 65, of 1962 West Virginia ave. ne., treated and released.

Mrs. Virginia Gregory, 28, of 1535 Simms dr. se., cuts and bruises.

Moore was transferred to Mt. Alto Hospital after preliminary treatment at Emergency Hospital.

Phillips, who was fatally hurt, and Mrs. Weaver were passengers in a Yellow Cab driven by Moore. Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Gregory were aboard O'Brien's runaway streetcar. Hoke, a station clerk in the police Traffic Division, was driving the automobile involved. His wife was by his side.

Pvt. Hoke

Police said that at least 20 witnesses told them the streetcar, traveling west on Pennsylvania ave., raced through a red light at 3d st. nw. at a speed of between 30 and 40 miles an hour.

It first struck the right side of a Ritz cab, headed north on 3d st. and driven by Alvin L. Thomas, 28, of 1022 8th st. ne. This cab was knocked aside. Thomas was unhurt. He had no passengers.

A few feet further on, the streetcar rammed broadside into the left side of Moore's Yellow Cab. The cab was bent around the front of the streetcar.

Moore's cab was headed south on 3d st. Right behind or slightly to the right hand side of it was Hoke's car, also headed south on 3d st.

Car Swung Around

Either the rear of the Yellow cab or the streetcar itself caught the left front of Hoke's car and it was swung around so that it faced west.

The streetcar then pushed the crumpled Yellow cab ahead of it for a distance of about 80 feet. When a passenger finally succeeded in braking the streetcar, the rear of the cab had been forced part way up on the west end of a loading platform, which stretches west just beyond the intersection of 3d st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw.

Funny

Funny said he was sitting in the third seat behind the operator of the streetcar as it approached the intersection.

"I didn't think we were going fast," he said later. "All of a sudden the car jolted. I heard a woman shout out, 'That man's sick.' I looked up and saw the motorman had fallen back in his seat. His head was lolling and his arms hung limp. He seemed to be unconscious.

"I ran up to the motorman. The foot that was on the power pedal was jammed to the floor. I tried to pull his leg away. It seemed stiff. I finally got his leg loose and then I stepped on the brake pedal.

"The whole thing happened very quickly. There weren't many people on the streetcar. One woman was thrown into the aisle. Another woman I saw just stiffened and froze in her seat."

When the fatally injured Phillips was taken to Emergency Hospital, a Catholic medal was found around his neck. A nurse called St. Matthew's Cathedral and the Rev. Thomas Lyons went to the hospital to administer last rites of the church.

For the past five years, Phillips had been employed as a truck driver at Rockville, Md., by Peterson's Construction Co. He was a native of Upper Marlboro, Md.

He was single and lived with his 70-year-old mother, Mrs. Clar Phillips. He is also survived by rother, Harold Phillips, of 110 4th pl. se., and a sister, Mrs. Ielda Radice, of 5500 O st., Hillside, Md.

His cab companion, Mrs. Minnie Weaver, who was in critical condion, is the mother of 11 children. ier family said Phillips had been a friend of the family for many years.

According to Capital Transit officals, O'Brien, operator of the streetcar, has been a CTC employe for nine years. It is not yet known what caused him to collapse at the control of his streetcar.

Moore, according to his superiors at the Yellow Cab Co., had been driving for them for 10 years and had a good traffic record.

Of the two women passengers on the streetcar who were hurt, one, Mrs. Wilson is a widowed former Government employe. The other, Mrs. Gregory, is the wife of a Washington Gas and Light Co. employe and the mother of five children.

James L. Martin Named Deputy District Assessor

Martin

Except for two brief periods Martin, 54, has worked for the District since 1914. Before his appointment as assistant assessor in 1942 he had been secretary to a succession of engineer commissioners, executive secretary of the Public Utilities Commission and special investigator for the budget officer.

Martin has been in charge of the personal property tax division which includes three assistant assessors. Assessor Edward A. Dent has recommended to the Commissioners that John C. Ahearn, personal property tax examiner, fill the vacancy of assistant assessor. Dent would later designate Martin's successor as chief of the personal property tax division.

False Alarms Keep 4th Prec. Police Busy

A flurry of false fire alarms kept the Fourth Precinct scout cars busy last night.

The first false alarm was at 8:58 p. m. at a box at 1st and K sts. sw. Within six minutes false alarms had also been pulled at 1st and K sts. se., and on 1st st., between G and H sts. sw.

The precinct had no scout cars available to search for the pranksters so motorcycle police were drafted from the Traffic Division to patrol the area. No suspects were picked up.

Hazard Hints

5 Nosebleed can be serious. Sit up, holding your head tilted back slightly. Press the nostrils together, holding pressure for several minutes at a time.

Apply a wet, cold compress over the nose and face. Don't talk, exercise or blow your nose. Moving around stirs up movement of the blood and delays clotting. Sit still.

Boom Kills Foreman, Hurts Worker as Crane Cable Snaps

An Arlington construction foreman was killed and a fellow worker critically injured in Fairfax County yesterday when they were struck by the steel boom of a power crane after a supporting cable snapped.

Robert J. Henderson, 54, 1200 S. Thomas st., Arlington, was killed instantly in the accident on Route 236, about half a mile west of Alexandria, police reported. He was foreman for DeLashmutt Bros. of Arlington, a construction firm engaged by the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. to install an underground conduit system along Route 236.

Reported in "poor" condition at Alexandria Hospital was Samuel Johnson, 36, of Shipman, Va., who was standing beside Henderson when the boom fell. He suffered a fractured skull, two broken legs and a broken right arm and shoulder.

Fairfax Police Pvt. J. G. Hollowell said Henderson apparently caught the full impact of the "free" end of the falling boom, while Johnson was struck a glancing blow.

Police had to call a wrecking truck to raise the boom so that Henderson's body could be removed. Earlier, police and firemen had used shovels to extricate Johnson from beneath the midsection of the steel extension.

Edward M. Morrison, 49, of 4636 N. 26th st., Arlington, was operating the crane when the accident occurred. Police said he had no explanation for the cable break.

Henderson, according to his employers, is survived by a wife and four stepchildren. Johnson, who boards at 2022 S. Lincoln st., Arlington, reportedly has a wife and several children at his home in Shipman.

Houtteman Hurls Tigers to Sweep Over Yanks, 5-2

Both Trained at Ripon

Yank Gridmen, GOP Alike in One Respect

By Red Smith

RIPON, WIS., AUG. 4 (NYHT).—For a while they thought Larry Olsonoski, a big guard from Minnesota, was the most obstinate of holdouts, for after they mailed his contract to him they didn't hear a word. Turned out, though, that a spring storm in Lancaster, Minn., had blown away his mailbox, with the contract in it.

Red Smith

There was some concern about John Clowes, a 240-pound tackle from William and Mary, because he didn't arrive in camp on schedule.

He showed up several days late, with the most reasonable of explanations. His wife had thrown out his railroad ticket with the garbage.

Such minor difficulties having been overcome, the women's dormitory at little Ripon College now bulges with large and meaty employes of the professional football team known as the Boston Yanks-Brooklyn Dodgers-New York Bulldogs-New York Yankees-Los Angeles Dons-Chicago Rockets-Buffalo Bills-Chicago Hornets-New York Yanks.

The Yanks, as they are called for short, are the hybrid off-spring of peace, the strange whatzit that resulted when war between the National League and All-America Conference ended and Mr Ted Collins took his homeless franchise into Yankee Stadium, merging with the already combined New York and Brooklyn teams and absorbing some of the Chicago, Los Angeles and Buffalo players left stranded in the A. A. C.'s surrender.

THIS IS their training camp, and an appropriate site for experiments. It was here that the Republican Party was born about a century ago. From their windows in the ladies' dorm the players can see the house in which that accouchement took place, a white frame building slightly larger than a telephone booth.

"Just big enough, in fact," says George Ratterman, the quarterback, "to hold the party today."

The job of creating one good team out of the remnants of a half-dozen belongs to Red Strader, who was coach of the New York Yankees when peace broke out. He is a painstaking coach given to meticulous attention to detail. He doesn't know yet what the Yanks will look like when they show up in Yankee Stadium to play the Detroit Lions on September 29—if there's no World Series there—but he has operatives who have distinguished themselves in the past.

Shirley Povich On Vacation

Shirley Povich, The Washington Post's sports columnist, is on vacation. His column will be resumed upon his return.

There are, for example, the extraordinarily able Ratterman, three-season star of the Buffalo Bills; the indescribably rapid Buddy Young, top runner and scorer for the Yankees, and Spec Sanders, a splendid performer with the Yankees who took last year off to repair old injuries.

CONCEIVABLY, Ratterman could direct an attack engineered by three Negroes—Young, the bold and gifted George Taliaferro, core of Bo McMillin's last Indiana team, and Sherman Howard, who used to run 100 yards in 9.7 seconds.

The squad has fair depth and better than fair speed. Ratterman's chores can be shared by Johnny Rauch and Pete Layden. Besides Young and Howard, there are assorted sprinters who can travel 100 yards in less than 10 seconds, including Jack Morton, a 200-pound fullback from West Virginia, and Ben Aldridge, of Oklahoma A. and M.

Familiar names stud the roster—Joe Aguirre, Chet Adams, Joe Signaigo, Joe Domnanovich, Joe Golding, Chris Iversen, Lou Kusserow, Lowell Tew, Barney Poole.

There are rookies of some renown, like Art Weiner, who specialized in catching touchdown passes for North Carolina, and Mike Swistowicz, a dashing fullback at Notre Dame.

There are two Phi Beta Kappas out of the southwest who majored in cooking during their four college years. There's a guy named W. Scott Beasley, an end from Nevada, who has only six of his own teeth. All the rest were kicked out of his face one lively afternoon.

A BURLY TACKLE from Utah State rejoices in the name of Morini A. Schwab. Filling out a questionnaire before reporting to camp, he acknowledged that his greatest thrill in sports was experienced when he wrestled with, and won from, the Swedish Angel. He did not mention a somewhat more earnest wrestling match which he had during his day with the Seabees in the Pacific. His opponent was a large octopus and the match took place under water.

Guys like these are swearing monstrously through central Wisconsin's steamy afternoons. It can get hot here in the summer, and Ripon wasn't picked for its climate. Ted Collins chose this training site on the recommendation of the Chicago Rockets and Chicago Hornets, who had worked out here in past years.

The Rockets, of course, are dead, so are the Hornets.

When they walk to the practice field, the Yanks pass a graveyard. A large tomb stands at the gate. On the face of the tomb, a placard hangs suspended by purple crepe. Departing college students left it there before the Yanks arrived.

The placard reads, "Welcome." Below that, the name, "Rockets," has been crossed out. Below that, the name, "Hornets," has been crossed out. Below that, the sign says, "Yanks," followed by a large question mark.

Braves Trim Cards, 5-1, Take 2d as Bums Rest

Boston, Aug. 3 (AP).—Right hander Vern Bickford's second straight four-hit pitching performance, a 5-1 decision over the St. Louis Cardinals, today boosted the Boston Braves over the rained out Brooklyn Dodgers into the National League's second berth.

Bickford, equally effective against the Cincinnati Reds here Sunday, was supported by a seven hit attack that included homers by Bob Elliott, Sam Jethroe and Walker Cooper. Those terrific blows, all over the left field wall, accounted for all but one of the runs given up by Lefty Alpha Brazle.

The first hit off Bickford was Red Schoendienst's sixth homer with one out in the fourth inning. But Elliott evened the count in the lower half of that frame by bashing his 17th four-bagger.

The braves filled the bases on two singles and a base on balls in the fifth and Roy Hartsfield registered the second Boston run when Sid Gordon grounded to third baseman Tommy Glaviano.

Hartsfield was aboard in the sixth when Jethroe homered, his 11th of the season. Cooper equalled that four base total in the seventh inning.

Stan Musial collected two of the St. Louis hits, a single and a freak double, to go five for 15 tries in the four game series that saw the Redbirds defeated thrice. But Enos Slaughter, the other St. Louis powerhouse, was blanked by Bickford. As a result, Country was limited to three hits in his 17 batting tries during his wigwam visit.

Tigers Buy Hank Borowy

Detroit, Aug. 3.—Hank Borowy, one-time Yankee pitching star, returned to the American League today after a five-year absence to try help Detroit's pitching staff in the stretch pennant drive.

According to Detroit General Manager Billy Evans, the Tigers paid "considerably in excess of the $10,000 waiver price" to the Pittsburgh Pirates for the 34-year-old righthander. Borowy had a 1-3 record for the Pirates this season.

He came up with the Yankees in 1942 and won 15 games in helping them to the pennant. He won 14 more in 1943 and added a World Series victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

But his best year was 1945. He won 10 and lost 5 for the Yankees in the first 15 weeks when suddenly Larry MacPhail, Yankee president, announced that Borowy had been waived out of the American League and sold to the Chicago Cubs for $100,000.

Other American League club owners protested vehemently that MacPhail had put one over on them, and Borowy proceeded to pitch the Cubs to the pennant with 11 more wins against 2 losses. Borowy beat Detroit twice in the World Series.

Babe Fires 70, 2 Under Men's Par in Tam

Chicago, Aug. 3 (AP).—While a huge men's field maneuvered in qualifying play, Beltin' Babe Zaharias lashed a record-breaking 70 in the opening 18-hole round of the All-American Women's Open Golf Tourney today.

Mrs. Zaharias' scintillating 36-34 round on Tam O'Shanter's women's par 38-38—76 course, was two strokes under men's par in the All-American 72-hole merry-go-round.

She had seven birdies and was over women's par on only one hole, the 380-yard No. 1 which she three-putted.

Babe finished six strokes ahead of Professional Betty Jameson of San Antonio, Tex., and the day's top amateur, Beverly Hanson of Pasadena, Calif., who tied for second at even feminine par 76.

With three-quarters of the 192-player men's qualifying field home, Jimmy Clark, Huntington Beach, Calif., set the pace with a sizzling 66, six under par. He was a stroke ahead of Pete Cooper, Ponte Vedra, Fla., who had a 67. Another par-wrecker was Ted Kroll, from New Hartford, N. Y., with 68.

Kroll, making his first start in the Tam spectacle, wrapped together a pair of 34s. He was one stroke ahead of long-hitting Chick Harbert of Detroit, who banged an opening 32 but took a big 37 on the back nine.

Doering, Bassler Low Area Scorers

Chicago, Aug. 3 (AP).—Art Doering of Richmond, Va. and Charles Bassler, Catonsville, Md., topped the Washington, D. C. area golfers in today's qualifying round for the $15,000 All-American golf tourney.

Doering shot 34, 36—70 while Bassler carded 36, 34—70. Lew Worsham, former National Open champion from Washington, registered 38, 33—71 while Otto Greiner, Baltimore, chalked up 37, 36—73.

Tigers Park Lucky for Griffs

Bob Kuzava Faces Ted Gray As Nats Play Detroit Today

Detroit, Aug. 3. — The Nats spent their off-day today trying to learn how to beat the Tigers, whom they play tomorrow.

They didn't learn much, however, as the league leaders polished off the New York Yankees for the third straight day.

Despite this, the Nats aren't too concerned about the three-day stand against the Detroiters. Briggs Stadium has been Washington's favorite park this season. They've won six out of eight here, but the Tigers have made up for that by taking all seven games from the Nats at Griffith Stadium.

The Nats-Tigers series opener will be a duel of lefthanders, with Bob Kuzava, a 5-7 pitcher for Washington, opposing Ted Gray, winner of ten and loser of four.

So far, the Nats' western tour has netted them four victories and five setbacks. They were hitting well until they bumped into Early Wynn and Bob Lemon in Cleveland, and lost, 8-2 and 11-0.

Manager Harris said he was happy to leave the Indians' ballpark because of the low wire fence and comparatively short centerfield fence which helped the Tribe to whale seven homers in the two-game series.

"I believe Cleveland's ball park is more hazardous for pitchers than Fenway in Boston with its short leftfield," said Harris.

"Despite those fairly long 350-foot distances in right and left fields, and the 410 to the centerfield wall, those line drive homers would have been doubles or outs at almost every other park.

"Those three homers which Larry Doby hit last night were well tagged, but in most parks the only one which would have been a homer would have been his shortest one, his high looper which landed about 350 feet away in right. The others would have been outs." Doby's other two homers sailed over the centerfield fence on the line.

Rogers, Leith Eliminated

Kalamazoo, Mich., Aug. 3 (AP).—The only two remaining Washington, D. C., area players in the National junior and boys tennis tournament were defeated here today.

Ted Rogers of Chevy Chase, Md., was defeated by Bob Perry, Los Angeles, 6—3, 6—1, in the fourth round and Malcolm Leith, also from Chevy Chase, bowed to Lawrence Axtell, San Francisco, 6—2, 6—3, in fourth-round boys competition.

Gumpert Beats Athletics, 1-0

Chicago, Aug. 3 (AP).—Pitcher Randy Gumpert needed only one run to put the Chicago White Sox in the win column today with a 1-0 triumph over the Philadelphia Athletics as the veteran right hander gained his fifth decision with a four-hit performance.

Eddie Robinson's triple, a seventh inning fly which right fielder Elmer Valo overran, and Hank Majeski's single accounted for the only run in giving Gumpert the nod in a tight pitching duel against Hank Wyse.

One of the Chicago hits was Chico Carrasquel's sixth inning single as the White Sox rookie shortstop sensation extended his hitting skein through 22 straight games. It was hit No. 108 for him.

Night Racing For Marlboro Turned Down

Baltimore, Aug. 3 (AP). — The Maryland State Racing Commission today flatly refused to approve a night meeting for thoroughbred horses at Marlboro.

H. Courtenay Jenifer, chairman of the commission, announced the decision. Asked to amplify it, he replied:

"No, no other comment. That's sufficient."

The half-mile Southern Maryland track had applied last Thursday for the night dates. Although the State's four harness racing plants have been operating under the arclights, Marlboro was the first of the flat running tracks to request permission to stage night competition.

Like the other four half-mile tracks, it is allotted ten days a year by the commission.

The application was taken before the commission by general manager L. Ed O'Hara. He contended harness racing's popularity at night has shown that the thoroughbred sport also could prosper under the lights.

The commission had taken the request under advisement, in the meantime asking operators of the other half-milers what they thought of the idea.

4-Run-First Ruins Lopat; Champs Skid To 3d Place

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Detroit, Aug. 3.—The league-leading Detroit Tigers dealt the sagging New York Yankees their third straight defeat as Art Houtteman pitched a 6-hitter and won, 5-2, today before 31,713 fans.

The Tigers stunned the Yanks with a four-run first-inning explosion which sent Starter Ed Lopat to an early shower. The demoralized Yanks never recovered, and they tumbled into third place, three games behind the Tigers, and a half game behind 'dle Cleveland.

Only once did the Yanks flash any of their old-time power. That was in the fourth inning when John Mize smashed a Houtteman pitch far into the upper right-field stands with Hank Bauer aboard. It was Mize's twelfth homer of the year.

Except for that one slip and a minor Yankee threat in the second, Houtteman was in complete command, gaining his 13th victory against nine losses. He showed no sign of having an aching side, an ailment which kept him from starting either of the first two games of the Yankee series.

Tigers Shell Lopat

The Tigers got to Lopat right away as leadoff hitter Johnny Lipon singled and Jerry Priddy walked. Lopat then botched up Kell's attempted sacrifice to load the bases, and Vic Wertz, in the midst of a terrific slugging spree, sent two runs home with a double to right-center.

Hoot Evers lofted a foul which second baseman Jerry Coleman caught and then juggled behind first, and the alert Kell streaked for home in the confusion. Don Kolloway's single to left knocked in the fourth run, and brought Fred Sanford in from the bullpen.

Sanford walked Johnny Groth and Bob Swift to load the bases. Houtteman then missed the ball in a squeeze attempt and Kolloway was trapped at the plate. Sanford walked Houtteman to reload the bases, and finally ended it when Lipton flied to Joe DiMaggio.

Sanford Finally Checks Tigers

After that Sanford was untouchable. He gave up no hits and only two more walks in the next five innings. He was lifted for a pinch-hitter in the seventh, and the Tigers rounded out their five-hit total with two in the eighth.

The Yanks threatened in the second when DiMaggio singled and went to third on Yogi Berra's double with one out. However, Houtteman got Bobby Brown and Jerry Coleman on infield taps. That was all for New York except for the aforementioned fourth when Bauer walked and Mize homered.

The Tigers completed their scoring and hitting at the expense of the third Yankee pitcher, Joe Page, in the eighth. Kell doubled, was sacrificed to third, and driven home by Evers' long fly.

Redskins Get Rowdy Tackle

Special Dispatch to The Post

Los Angeles, Aug. 3.—Paul Lipscomb, one of the biggest, roughest and toughest tackles in the National Football League, today became the property of the Washington Redskins.

The 6-foot 5-inch, 250-pounder, a veteran of five years of NFL warfare, was obtained from the Green Bay Packers in a trade for Len Szafaryn, 6-foot 2-inch, 229-pounder who came to the Redskins last year from North Carolina.

As an additional factor in the trade, the Packers will be given first choice on any guards the Redskins may choose to turn loose this season. Lipscomb, a 27-year-old former Tennessee performer, is well known to the Redskins.

In fact he was booted out of games on two different occasions in the past, once for teeing off on Sammy Baugh and another time for pasting Clyde Ehrhardt, one-time Redskin center.

Lipscomb is due here tomorrow night while John Steber, one of the loop's top guards last year, is expected to arrive early tomorrow from Mobile, Ala.

MacPhail Changes Horsemen in Midstream; Nats Gave Bearden, Kuzava Their 1st Wins

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

LARRY MacPHAIL, who served as an aide to authorities who closed down horse racing in World War II, is on the other side of the fence now. The National Association of Thoroughbred Breeders has named him chairman of their committee to try and head off any contemplated ban on racing this time . . . Since leaving the presidency of the New York Yankees, MacPhail has joined the horsey set and owns a large horse farm near Bel Air, Md. . . . Boxing Matchmaker Gabe Menendez, long past his school days, was awarded his first diploma yesterday—it was from a learn-how-to-drive-a-car agency . . . the only two persons who ever drew capacity crowds to the University of South Carolina football stadium were Halfback Charlie Justice and Evangelist Billy Graham . . . When the Philadelphia Eagles meet the College All-Stars at Chicago a week from tonight, they will have every right to preface their between-plays remarks to the collegians with "son," since the average age of the pros, 29, is eight years higher than the average age of the All-Stars . . . both Gene Bearden and Bob Kuzava of the Nats, won their first major league games at the expense of the Nats and both did it with Cleveland and by the identical score, 4-0. Kuzava's came in the tail end of the 1947 season, Bearden's in the first three weeks of 1948 . . . When Fullback Rob Goode of the Redskins, failed to gain in a scrimmage session at Los Angeles the other day, Coach Herman Ball told him: "Rob, you're running too high." Ball was stunned when Goode replied, "I gotta coach, they're tackling low." . . .

Larry MacPhail

BOXING PROMOTER Goldie Ahern, who branches out as a girls' baseball promoter at Griffith Stadium tonight, has unfond memories of another non-boxing venture. In 1944, he promoted a dance featuring Tony Pastor's band at Uline Arena . . . "It snowed, it rained, it sleeted and there was only four couples there, including my wife and me," he recalled. "So I look around and see I'm hooked for $1200 and I say to Pastor, 'since I'm throwing this party, Tony, how about playing a song for me, Rosalie?' To make the night a complete loss, they didn't have the number. Oi, what a night." . . . Chief Bender, former pitching great for the Philadelphia Athletics and now one of their top scouts, is an expert jeweler and diamond cutter by trade . . . Coach George Halas, of the Chicago Bears, has ordered nine of his overweight players on a strict diet. "Cutting down on their food and restricting their diet will bring their weight down quicker than extra work," Halas said . . . Ann O'Dowd, catcher for the Springfield Sallies gals' baseball team appearing here tonight, is a niece of Milwaukee Mike O'Dowd, middleweight champ of long ago . . . two pitchers the Nats almost had have already won 24 games between them this season. Bob Lemon (17-4) was offered to the Nats in 1947, but Cleveland quickly withdrew his name from the waiver list when the word got out prematurely. This spring, the Detroit Tigers offered the Nats Paul Trout (7-2), but they reconsidered and withdrew also . . .

Virginia Fish Supply Will Be Doubled

By Ralph Murdock

HERE'S SOME NEWS items which should be of particular interest to the fresh water anglers who fish the streams of Virginia.

Murdock

Work is progressing nicely on the new small-mouth bass hatchery being built in Smyth County. The project is being supervised by the Game and Inland Fisheries Commission's own personnel and the cost of the entire hatchery will be nominal.

When completed and put in operation next year it will double the output of small-mouth bass and other species now being produced at the Front Royal hatchery.

Also two 14-acre ponds at the Stevensville hatchery are nearly ready and will be in operation as hold ponds for brood stocks.

CHUMMING, so far, has produced the better catches of rock-fish, perch and trout in the lower Patuxent River and the Chesapeake Bay. Guides, during the last few days, are having a hard time trying to locate enough grass shrimp for their fishing parties. To avoid disappointment, we suggest that you make preparations for your chum in advance.

An influx of small bluefish has been reported in Chesapeake Bay. Joseph E. Murdock, my brother, Jane Lanehardt, Bill Gage and yours truly picked up 49 off Cove Point in 1½ hours while fishing with Capt. Edgar Bowen of Solomon's Island.

Pvt. Freddie Hack of the Metropolitan Police Department, made a catch of 71 rockfish and blues off Franklin Manor. The stripers were of the pansize variety and were taken from an outboard motor.

Weekend Suggestions:

ROCKFISH.—Point Patience area at Solomon's Island best. Chumming does a better job. Grass shrimp scare.

BLUEFISH.—From Solomon's Island to Point Lookout—the early run are just under a pound. Trolling best.

SPOT.—Diamond Shoals near Sharpe's Light. Between red and black buoys. Use bloodworm.

WHITE PERCH.—Holland Point pearch are usually larger. Catches nominal. A light chum line and bottom fishing should produce.

U. S. Park Police Pistol Tourney Opens at Ft. Totten

About 200 men and women are expected to fire in the sixth annual United States Park Police pistol tournament opening today at Fort Totten Park and continuing through Sunday.

Five individual matches and one team match are listed for each day, starting at 8 a. m. Today's firing will be limited to .45 caliber automatics, Saturday's to center-fire pistols or revolvers, and Sunday's to .22 caliber pistols or revolvers.

The Metropolitan Police won the civilian team championship last year and the Quantico Marines the service title.

Pitcher Charley Walther rapped out two doubles and drove in four runs to lead Sealtest Milk to an 8-2 triumph over Lacy's yesterday on the Ellipse. The victory gave Sealtest the second half championship in the Washington Boys' Club 14-and under league.

Walther also pitched a three-hitter.

It Happened In Old Monterey

Monterey, Va., Aug. 3 (AP).—It isn't a fish story but an experience H. H. Terry likes to tell about. He was wading in the creek when he felt a fish run up his pants leg. Instantly, he caught the pants leg—and the fish—and held on until Terry got to the river bank.

—'Silly,' Says Joe—

DiMag, Stengel, Yanks Deny Clipper, Casey Are 'Feuding'

New York, Aug. 3 (AP).—The New York Yankees today scoffed at reports of dissension between Joe DiMaggio, their star outfielder, and Manager Casey Stengel.

The two principals involved and General Manager George Weiss termed a recent printed story by Joe Trimble of the New York Daily News that DiMaggio was not on speaking terms with Stengel as "ridiculous." They asserted that harmony prevailed on the club.

"It's silly to say that Stengel and I are not getting along," DiMaggio said. "We haven't exchanged a harsh word. I've always followed orders, have never broken a training rule and always do my best to respond to all that is asked of me. In my book the manager is the boss."

Taking cognizance of the feud report, Weiss issued the following statement:

"Anyone who knows Casey Stengel's reputation as a manager and DiMaggio's reputation as a team player will realize how ridiculous is any talk of a disagreement between them.

"For this reason the Yankees will not dignify the story by making any further comment on it."

Stengel obviously embarrased about the entire situation, simply said:

"I've been in baseball a long while and I've known a lot of team players. DiMaggio is one of the greatest and I'd be a poor sort of manager if I didn't think the world of a guy like that."

Trimble, in a story written last Tuesday, criticized DiMaggio "for sulking like a sophomore" because Stengel had dropped him from the cleanup spot in favor of Johnny Mize.

2 Cuban Girls Pitch Tonight

Two Cuban pitchers will take the mound tonight at Griffith Stadium though neither Senor Marrero or Senor Conseugra will be around.

Isabel Lucila Maria Alvarez de Leon y Cerdan, and Lorenza Migdalia Perez Martinez will oppose each other, hurling for the Chicago Colleens and the Springfield Sallies as Washingtonians get their first look at women hardball players who bat, field, throw and run the bases under men's rules.

Senorita de Leon y Cerdan is better known at "Lefty" and Senorita Martinez answers to "Mickey" so vocal fans won't have any jawbreaking monikers to contend with.

200 See Salas Work Out Here; Williams in Today

Charley Salas, young Phoenix, Ariz., welterweight, stepped through a fast and impressive 10-round workout at Turner's Arena yesterday as he opened local drills for his 10-round battle with Ike Williams, world's lightweight champion, at Griffith Stadium Monday night.

Some 200 local fans turned out to see the Mexican-Italian scrapper work two rounds each with Marshall Clayton and Harley Mims and then go another six rounds on the light and heavy punching bags.

Williams, who has been training for the past week and a half at Trenton, N. J., and Philadelphia, is scheduled to report here today and train at Turner's at 2:30 a. m.

How To Get a Husband

Body Beautiful Can Be Arranged for You

By Cora Carlyle

THE woman who is not born beautiful need no longer consider herself an ugly duckling. One of the luckiest things that has happened to women since their emancipation is that they are allowed to improve their looks by obvious and artificial means. These means are not to be scoffed at. The largest laboratories in the world and the foremost chemists are devoting their skill to producing the unguents and lotions that will make milady perpetually young and beautiful. The modern girl has her powder blended to match her skin, and a different shade of eye shadow for each night.

With all the available paraphernalia, there is no reason for not using it to make yourself as attractive as possible. You may say "I don't care what I look like" or, "I can't be bothered." If this is really true, which we very much doubt, you ought to care and you ought to be bothered. In your program to get a husband you cannot place too much emphasis on your personal appearance. In a long relationship a man may forget what woman looks like and be conscious only of her charm and goodness, but those qualities take too long to discover. A good first impression will get you your first date.

You may object that all men are not aware of details, that they will not notice anyway whether you are a few pounds overweight, and not too fastidious about your hair and nails. But what about yourself? Don't you honestly find that you are ready to conquer the world when you have just had your hair done; you are wearing a new suit that fits and you feel trim because you've just finished that gym course?

On the contrary what does it do to your morale when your nail polish is cracking; when you have a new pimple sprouting because you finished that box of chocolates; when you are wearing a dress that should be at the cleaners? You find yourself crossing the street to avoid meeting an old friend. So you didn't bother to doll up because you were spending an evening alone with your aunt? You were sorry when the son of a friend of hers dropped in to return a book. It never happened? But the girl who is looking for a husband must be prepared to meet him anywhere and any time.

Let us pretend this is the beginning of a new year and you are going to take stock of yourself. Turn on a bright light and stand before a full length mirror. Look at your figure. Don't protest that you haven't got your good girdle on. Face the facts. Are you overweight? Are you underweight? Or perhaps your hips are bulging and your chest sags. How is your posture? Do you carry yourself like a queen or do you resemble a sack of flour?

IF you are too heavy, start your new regimen tonight. Draw up a chart with your present weight and what you would like to weigh at the end of a month. You will weigh yourself every night at this same time and keep a record of it. The discipline of this nightly weighing is invaluable. Every girl knows what constitutes a reducing diet; but let us remind you that you can start by eliminating deserts, ice cream sodas, candy, pies and pastries, potatoes and bread. Until you reach your goal you must put these things out of your life.

For the girl who has the bumps in the wrong place, exercise and massage are the only corrective means. Join a gym and go at least once a week. And don't be too lazy to do some extra work at home. Massage parlors have sprung up all over the country and for very little money you can have a cabinet and a pounding.

HAVE you a hair brush? Is it an ornament on your dressing table or is it a wooden, washable one with stiff bristles? More important than a fancy hair-do and a new permanent every three months,, is the cleanliness of your scalp and the texture of your hair.

When your hair is in good condition, experiment until you get a hair-do which is most becoming to your face. Don't be misled by what is considered fashionable. On the other hand, don't be afraid to try something new. A new hair-do can change your looks from a dull, colorless creature to an exciting young person. When you find the coiffeur that is really becoming, keep it at its best by regular visits to your hairdresser.

Most women put on their make-up hastily and carelessly. Rouge that is uneven, eye-shadow that has smeared, mascara that has caked, lipstick on teeth, are some of the most common faults. Get yourself a magnifying mirror, place it in a good light, and learn how to apply your make-up smoothly and efficiently.

First tie your hair back. Cleanse your face thoroughly with cold cream. Now wash your face thoroughly with soap and warm water. Don't be afraid to scrub your face; use a washcloth or even a brush. Now your skin is clean and glowing. The next step is the powder base.

If your skin is dry, use a cream base. If your skin is oily, there are some excellent liquid preparations. Experiment with bases until you find the one best suited to your complexion. Apply the base slowly and carefully and don't forget to give the neck the same treatment. Now you are ready for rouge. One of the most glaring faults in make-up is the excessive use of rouge. Use a cream rouge and use it sparingly.

NOW YOU are ready for powder. Pat the powder on rather thickly. Don't rub it in. Leave it on for a few minutes, then with a soft brush, brush away the excess. Now brush your eyebrows, and if necessary, pencil them lightly. For daytime wear, brush the lashes after applying a little vaseline to the brush. In the evening apply eye shadow and a little mascara. Don't let either the shadow or the mascara smear. Now you are ready for the lipstick. Don't try to draw yourself a mouth that has nothing to do with the one God gave you. Stick to the natural lines, no matter what size your mouth is. If your mouth is really large and full, go easy on the lipstick and accentuate some other part of your face.

When you reapply lipstick, be sure to remove all of the old lipstick first. The more carefully your make-up is put on, the less repairing you will have to do on it. There is nothing more disconcerting to a man than to watch a woman repairing her face every few minutes. A woman who is sure of herself does not have to pull her compact out every few minutes to glance at herself. And no matter what kind of woman you are, never, never comb your hair in public.

If you are not gifted with a perfect figure and a flawless skin, there is only one solution for you. You must apply yourself relentlessly to the task of making nature over so that you can take your place without self-consciousness in the race for a husband.

Psychological Drama

Decides to Kill Wife, Barely Calls It Off

By John Crosby

THE PSYCHIATRISTS have explained a great many things, but glib as they are, I doubt that any of them can explain away "Detour," though one of them tries awfully hard.

CROSBY

"Detour" (ABC—WMAL, 9 p. m. Wednesdays) is billed as a psychological drama and it even has a resident psychiatrist, Dr. Richard Hoffman, to add tone to the proceedings. Dr. Hoffman talks dolefully about "the slaves of suspicion . . . the invisible ghosts which make untrue things true. Too often the mind of a man beset by suspicion is locked in a logic-proof compartment. He may be forced by the agony of life itself to find a detour."

These dreary platitudes are intended to excuse a woeful little drama about a man who was so beset by suspicion of his innocent wife that he hires a man to kill her, and then has a terrible time calling the whole thing off. At intervals, Dr. Hoffman interrupted the narative to advance the cause of science by such statements as "a cancerous thought can grow like a cancer cell. Suspicion can grow into delusion." These profound observations didn't conceal the fact that the story was written on a soap opera level and that the man who played the husband sounded more like Ozzie Nelson than a man obsessed with jealousy to the point of insanity.

Couldn't Get Out

IN ANOTHER of these delectable dramas, Dr. Hoffman was overheard to remark: "Fear, greed, malice may soundproof the mind against conscience. We lose the distinction between right and wrong and take the detour . . . There are two basic sources of conflict — something you want and can't get, something you have and can't get rid of."

The hero of this epic suffered from the last one. His first wife had disappeared and presently was declared legally dead, leaving him two million dollars. He had remarried when the first wife showed up again. Seems she had been in an insane asylum, suffering from amnesia as well as insanity.

He decides to drive her looney again so he can settle down and enjoy his second wife and his two million dollars. He even kills a blackmailer and tries to pin the murder on her. But, as Dr. Hoffman so wisely observes, this "path is beset by many dangers." The husband succeeds only in driving his second wife out of her wits and the murder stays pinned on himself.

"When conscience is murdered, madness enters the human soul," concluded Dr. Hoffman sadly. After listening to this thing, a good deal of madness entered my own soul which, being that of a critic, is only partly human. Conscience had nothing to do with it, Dr. H. My feeling is that the psychiatrists should stick to their sofas. By trying to add a little respectability to these deplorable melodramas, Dr. Hoffman is just putting his own profession in disrepute.

SOME time ago, on Kraft Theater, I watched another psychological murder story by the name of "Macbeth." The psychiatry was a good deal more penetrating than Dr. Hoffman's, but it was expressed by laymen. Shakespeare didn't need any assistance from psychiatrists. This is the second time "Macbeth" has hit the television screens and it should now be clear to everyone that you can't boil "Macbeth" down to an hour. I'm not one of those who feel that Shakespeare shouldn't be excised here and there, but I doubt that anyone can find any fat on "Macbeth" to cut off. It is Shakespeare's leanest tragedy.

Uta Hagen is a very good actress indeed, but she hasn't the ferocity or the stature of a Lady Macbeth. I simply can't believe she would pluck the nipple out and dash her baby's brains out against a tree. She's much too nice a girl.

The DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

"If You Can't Lick 'Em, Join 'Em"

Mrs. Richard L. Hiner of 110 Gallatin st. nw. has some advice for Howard Mitchell, conductor of the National Symphony Orchestra.

When Mitch conducts at the Watergate, he's plagued by low-flying airplanes, which sometimes drown out the music.

Mrs. Hiner thinks we ought to tell Mitch about Richard Duncan, who conducts the Omaha Symphony Orchestra in its Peony Park pop concerts. Conductor Duncan's pet peeve was a train whistle that invariably distracted the audience about half-way through each program.

One night recently, Duncan raised his baton to start a new number just as the train came thundering past the park, whistle blowing.

Pulling an engineer's cap out of his pocket, he signaled his men to swing into a rollicking rendition of "Casey Jones"—with the train whistle supplying the sound effects. It brought down the house.

Mrs. Hiner thinks Mitch might try "Wild Blue Yonder."

AGAIN & AGAIN & AGAIN

Latest traffic tie-up on the 14th st. side of the District Building was caused by a big D. C. Division of Printing and Publications truck, which loves to park where it will block autos moving past the loading platform. Space for trucks is provided in the rear of the District Building to avoid just such tangles.

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

We in Wesley Heights used to have a mail collection around 9 p. m. Now the last pickup is at 5:55.

Can't you talk the Post Office Department into cutting out the 3:45 p. m. pickup and giving us back the one at 9 p. m. instead? One of these days I'm going to miss that eleventh-hour postmark on my insurance premium payments.

Cecil J. Wilkerson
2544 44th st. nw.

Dear Cecil:

I'm sure that if Mr. Donaldson could afford to keep a man on duty for that late pickup, he wouldn't have eliminated it. Nevertheless, I sympathize with you.

Just the other day I made out my D. C. Personal Property form, put it in envelope, and said to myself: "This is one time I'm not going to wait until the last minute. I'm going right out and mail this."

And I did. It was only 8 p. m., and I was four whole hours ahead of the midnight deadline.

Believe me, I felt real good until I dropped the letter in the box and looked at the pickup times posted in front. The last collection for the night had been made at 7:05.

I tell you, sir, it's an outrage. What do they expect a man to do—mail these things the day before? Bill

MISCELLANY

The NBC television network has permitted broadcasts of recent history-making United Nations sessions to run past their scheduled program time—bringing a flood of calls to the WNBW switchboard here from small fry who want to know: "What's happened to Howdy Doody?" . . . Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hoffman of 3631 Minnesota ave. se. are back from Warm Springs with pictures of their 7-year-old Chuckie standing up (with braces) for the first time since polio struck last year. "You never see a sad face or a tear down there," says Mrs. Hoffman, "except on an occasional parent" . . . Jonda Riley of 29 Williams lane, Chevy Chase, Md., writes: "The Loafers Club of Chevy Chase are presenting a play titled 'Miss Minerva and William Green Hill.' It will take place on August 11 at 7 p. m. in the back yard of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Emmet. Admission will be 10 cents" . . . Gee, I hope they get good reviews from our drama department . . . Eunice P. James of 317 Varnum st. nw. thinks I shouldn't have argued with the Massachusetts doctor who complained about our water. Mrs. James also came here from Massachusetts about six years ago, and says she couldn't stand the water at first, either . . . Ray Garcia of 619 M st. sw., Jerry Stern of 618 G st. ne., and Bill Hasker of 1742 D st. ne. are looking for a cellist who would like to help them form a string quartet. Bill can be reached on Franklin 1971 . . . Leon Funk of 8206 New Hampshire ave., Silver Spring, Md., reports that low-hanging leaves on a tree at the southeast corner of 14th st. and Florida ave. nw. obstruct the traffic light for northbound traffic at that intersection . . . Harry P. Long of Culpeper, Va., notes that a recent news story included the sentence: "One student worked out a parking ticket by painting the ceiling of the city (manager," and suggests: "This might not be a bad idea for bald-headed men" . . . Karel de Rooy of 3701 Jackson ave., Brentwood, Md., thinks Wrestling Announcer Jimmie Lake and TV's Jimmy Gibbons ought to brush up on their geography. He says that Lake introduced "The Mighty Fritz" the other night as coming from "Luxemburg, Germany," and Gibbons repeated it that way on the air . . . Let's hope Perle Mesta doesn't get wind of this.

Connally Challenges ECA Outlay

By Drew Pearson

As congressional leaders gathered in his office to discuss the President's request for an additional four billion dollars to arm our allies Truman opened the meeting by urging everyone to "speak freely and give me your opinions." He got his wish.

Connally

There were two verbal explosions at the secret session, one from Democratic Senator Tom Connally of Texas, who demanded that some of the four billion dollars be diverted from ECA spending; another from GOP Congressman Dewey Short of Missouri, who objected to by-passing congressional committees.

"Are all these millions for economic (ECA) aid necessary at a time like this?" demanded Connally, pointing out that if the United States must tighten its belt economically for war, our European friends should expect less economic help from us.

"We can't cut off food to those unfortunate people," explained Secretary of State Acheson. He added that this was more important than sending arms—certainly more important in keeping the friendship of western Europe.

"Yes, but we don't have to feed them for five years," roiled the acid-tongue Texan. "Some of our own people need feeding. Besides, not all this ECA money goes for food. Some of it is spent for such things as hydroelectric projects in Europe."

Acheson agreed, but reminded Connally that western Europeans need electric power not only for peace, but to manufacture arms for defense.

"It takes two or three years to build a dam and the other facilities needed to produce electric power," shot back Texas Tom, in no mood to be argued down. "We are dealing with a current emergency—the problem of providing military aid now. If an amendment is offered to use some of this ECA money for arms, I'll vote for it."

Decision on Wire Tapping

Betting odds on Capitol Hill are that the Federal grand jury now probing police-state methods and the wire tapping inspired by Senator Brewster of Maine will end in a whitewash.

Despite efforts of conscientious James McInerny, chief of the Justice Department's criminal division, alibis are arranged to get Senator Brewster and his friends, Pan American Airways, off the hot spot.

In the first place, the Justice Department held the wire-tapping report for almost a year and only fished it out of the files after the facts had been exposed in the press. As a result, the statute of limitations is about to expire, and but one scant week remains—seven days from today—in which the grand jury can act.

Second, the chief parties concerned have careful stories claiming "no divulgement." Lieut. Joseph Shimon, the District of Columbia cop who directed the tapping of Howard Hughes' telephone wires, claims he divulged no information from Hughes' tapped wire to Senator Brewster or anyone else.

As long as he divulged no information to others, the Justice Department contends he did not violate the law against wire tapping.

Sen. Brewster's Version

Meanwhile, Senator Brewster's story is that his life was in danger and he called in the Washington police. While they may have tapped some wires in protecting him, he had no knowledge of what they were doing and received no information from them.

Significantly, other policemen who tapped Howard Hughes' wire under Lieutenant Shimon's direction had instructions to listen especially for conversations pertaining to the airplane industry and to Hughes' Trans-World Airlines.

This seems a long way from protecting Senator Brewster's life. It also fits in with the testimony during Senator Brewster's probe that unless Hughes consolidated his TWA with Pan American, he would be investigated by Brewster.

Note—The Justice Department took the position in the Amerasia stolen-documents case that it could not prosecute because evidence regarding the stolen documents had been obtained by tapping telephone wires and by illegal entry. The Justice Department has also quite rightly maintained that we should not emulate the police-state domestic espionage methods of Moscow, especially in the Capital of the United States. The record of J. Edgar Hoover and the FBI in regard to wire tapping is excellent. They are scrupulous in refraining from any wire tapping except in cases of espionage, kidnaping and where the national security in involved. That's why so many people are watching the Federal grand jury now considering wire tapping.

It's Pickling Time in Country Kitchens

By Lucia Brown

SNIFF the sharp fragrance of boiling vinegar? Smell the sweetness of allspice and cinnamon on the soft midsummer air? Pickling time is here again! And from city and country kitchens comes a tantalizing promise of wonderful relishes, pickles and chow-chows to brighten next winter's meals.

Particularly mouth-watering is the atmosphere in the kitchen of the John Auths, out in Fairfax County. Mrs. Auth is a canning and pickling champ. Last year, she put up 425 jars of canned goods, most of it grown in the big garden on the Auth farm. Forty of these jars went into the exhibit that won the blue ribbon for the Fairview Home Demonstration Club at the Fairfax County Achievement Day last fall.

Mrs. Auth cans all sorts of things—even herring and venison—but pickles are practically her favorite product. And one of her prized recipes is this one for green tomato pickles crisped with lime water:

GREEN TOMATO PICKLES

- 4 pounds small green tomatoes
- 2 cups hydrated or slaked lime
- 4 gallons water
- 1 quart vinegar
- 1 teaspoon whole cloves
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon bark, broken in bits
- 4 cups sugar
- Salt to taste.

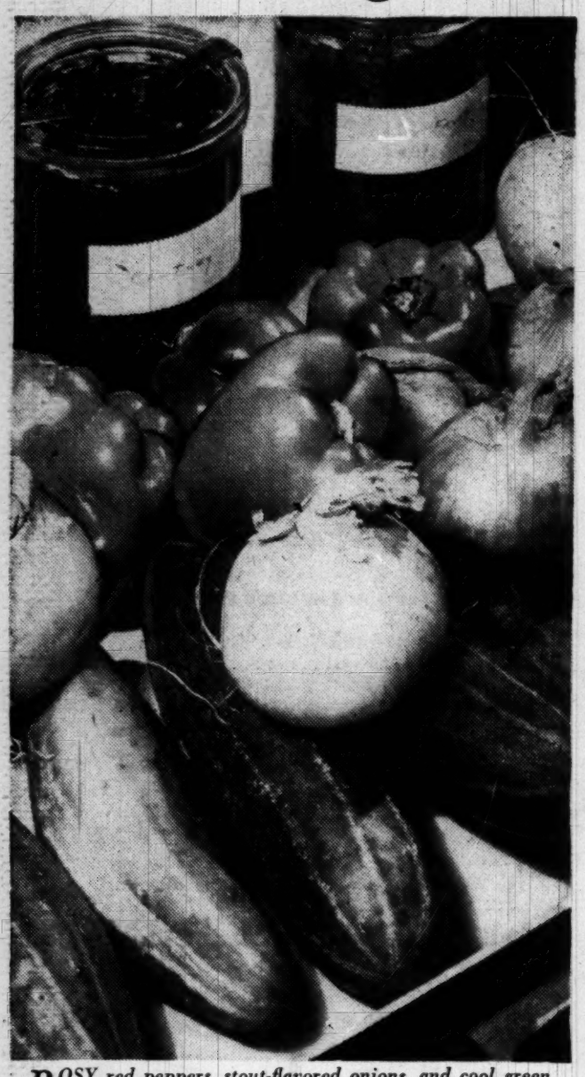
Slice small green tomatoes ¼-inch thick. Make a solution of the lime and the water. Soak the tomatoes in this for 24 hours. Rinse well in at least four waters. Combine vinegar, spices, sugar and salt. Cover tomatoes with this solution and cook about 30 minutes. Remove tomatoes and continue cooking liquid, until it is a thick syrup. Pack tomatoes in sterilized jars. Pour hot liquid over them and seal.

PICKLED watermelon rind is another of Mrs. Auth's favorites. She makes it this way:

PICKLED WATERMELON RIND

- 2 pounds watermelon rind
- 1 tablespoon cinnamon
- 1 teaspoon whole cloves
- 1 teaspoon whole allspice
- 2 pounds sugar
- 1 pint vinegar
- 1 pint water
- 1 lemon, sliced thin

Soak watermelon rind overnight in salt water (¼ cup salt to 1 quart water). Drain off the brine and cook the watermelon rind in clear water until tender. Drain. Tie spices in a cheesecloth bag and remove before rind is bottled. Make a hot pickling solution of remaining ingredients and spices, add drained rind, then boil rapidly until rind becomes clear. Fill sterilized jars and seal. Makes about 2 pints.



ROSY red peppers, stout-flavored onions, and cool green cucumbers give promise of fine pickle treats to come next winter

By Tom Kelley—The Washington Post

OLD-FASHIONED dill pickle is made by Mrs. Auth with fresh dill grown in her own garden. Here's how she does it:

DILL PICKLES

Scrub about 40 or 50 cucumbers, about 3 inches in length. Place a layer of dill plant and spices in bottom of a 5-gallon crock or keg. On top of the spices, put two or three layers of the whole cucumbers, another layer of dill and spice, and repeat until jar is almost full. You'll need about 1½ ounces of mixed pickle spice and 1 pound of dill plant for the 5-gallon jar.

Cover with brine (1 pound salt, 10 pounds of water, and 2/3 quart vinegar). Place weighted plate on top of pickles to keep them down in the brine. Let stand two or three weeks, adding new brine when necessary to keep cucumbers covered.

At end of curing period remove any scum from top of brine. Heat brine to boiling point, pack pickles in clean glass jars, and pour brine over them. Fill jars to top. Seal at once and store in cool place.

ROW upon row of beautiful canned goods in her basement testify to Mrs. John Auth's skill at putting up delectable things to eat. Last year she stored away 425 jars of produce from garden and orchard

Market Memo

Cabbage Is Week's Best Vegetable Buy

CABBAGE gets the nod from the Department of Agriculture as the "Food Headliner" of the week. This member of the mustard family is outshining itself this summer with a huge crop of fine firm heads—ideal for crisp slaw, kraut, even main dishes.

CHEESE AND CABBAGE CASSEROLE is thrifty and tasty. Use 4 cups chopped cabbage, cooked quickly in a small amount of water, 2 cups white sauce and 1¼ cups grated or cut cheese. Melt 1 cup of the cheese in white sauce and add a teaspoon of salt. Alternate sauce and cabbage in a casserole. Top with ½ cup crushed potato chips, mixed with ¼ cup cheese. Bake in moderate oven 20 to 30 minutes.

PLENTIFUL VEGETABLES besides cabbage include corn, snap beans, squash, tomatoes, carrots, beets, onions, potatoes, peppers, lettuce and cucumbers.

BARTLETT PEARS from the West are beginning to roll in. There's a fine crop this year, and cheaper prices than last are promised. For best flavor, buy them when they're rosy. That means they've been ripened by a careful process, better than you can do with them at home. Keep them in the refrigerator if necessary to retard ripening.

CLINGSTONE PEACHES are arriving here in greater quantity and are more reasonable. Freestones are still high and, in some cases, of poor quality. Canteloupes and watermellon are a good buy.

EGGS are up a few cents. You can expect slowly rising prices from now until the end of the year, since the peak of egg production is past. Meat prices are little changed from last week-end, though hams and beef are just a shade lower at wholesale.

SEAFOOD SALADS are a good bet for these warm evenings, made with either fresh or canned fish. The crabmeat season is at its height. South African lobster tails make a de luxe salad, and are cheaper than native lobster. Canned salmon and tuna are among the easiest ingredients for fish salads, though any other left over fresh fish can be used in this way. New Englanders even use scallops in salad, slicing the cooked meat and combining it with celery, dressing and a dash of onion.

Engaged to Man Her Age, 24, Girl Feels Plans Must Be Suspended Until She Has Found Remedy For Mutual Antagonism That Clouds Their Love

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Dick and I are engaged to be married this fall. We are the same age, 24. All preparations have been started for the wedding, but now must be suspended until we clear up our trouble. I had thought time would iron out our antagonisms, but alas it hasn't.

We argue too much and it has become something I rather expect. I have hated arguments since I heard my parents arguing when I was small. They have been separated a long time, so I never really had a father. Dick's parents are divorced. It isn't a very good start, is it?

We love each other and want to create a better life for ourselves. Essentially it seems we want the same things, but can't get together on obtaining them. If you were to say I could overlook Dick's shortcomings if I loved him enough, I would reply that I don't love him all the time. Perhaps that sounds juvenile, but I have become quite nervous of recent months, and I suppose he has too; and just lately some of his mannerisms have been annoying to me.

I really feel I wouldn't be so critical if we could sit down and talk things over. We were able to do that occasionally at first, but I became discouraged when I received either a negative reaction or a trite "Don't worry about it." Apparently, I don't have the faith and confidence in him that I should. I am worried and unhappy, and have thought of postponing the wedding. Do you think that wise?

In a nutshell, I'd like to know—how can we learn to understand each other? Can you give us helpful advice; or should we go to a marriage clinic? Perhaps you are aware by now that there is more to this than I have been able to write. R. V.

Emotions Warped by Early Wounds

DEAR R. V.: It is axiomatic that love begets love, but in order to love creatively in adult life, one must have been creatively loved in formative years. And it appears that both you and Dick were shortchanged on this score when you were children. That is why you experience conflict rather than helpful harmony at close range now.

The essence of mature love consists in being intensely and appreciatively aware of another personality—sympathetic to his needs as noted, and realistic about his imperfections, in the sense of seeing and accepting them as part of his make-up, just as the grain in wood is intrinsic to its composition.

This is warmhearted, rational, loyal devotion, such as good parents feel toward their children; and such as good friends and wholesome married couples exemplify in their mutual dealings.

Speaking of love relatedness, psychologists explain that you cannot achieve it spontaneously in later life if you weren't tolerably loved in pre-conscious years. And I think this hits the cause of your friction with Dick. Neither of you is naturally loving in the real sense outlined above. And you aren't awake to your mutual handicap in this respect yet, a handicap that can be overcome, however, if you make it a task of first importance in self-development.

Rival Candidates for Consolation

AS of now, you and Dick are competing with each other, in courting sentimental help and support from each other. The unconscious purpose of this unrecognized contest is to wrest consolation from the sweetheart for parental neglect in formative years.

Each of you is activated by infantile drives, unrealized and voraciously unsatisfied. Thus you are blindly self-seeking, not humanely affectionate, in your reciprocal dealings.

That is why Dick shuts off your wistful demands for wisdom, reassurance and tender leadership from him; and why you feel intolerably affronted, frustrated and anxious about his negative reactions in this particular.

This may give you some understanding of the general line-up. But to attain understanding of individuals, you must learn to bring an open mind and a listening interest to their self-expressive views. In romantic relations, ordinarily the woman sets the pace in establishing this creative brand of rapport. And having listened fully, one may then declare his own opinions, offering points of difference as well as agreement, but in sympathetic rather than "corrective" spirit. Considering the magnitude of your problem, the best advice I can give at this distance is to study Alexander Magoun's fine, fascinating book, "Love and Marriage" (Harper & Bros.). M. H.

Helping Children to Hear

Training Transforms Disaster Into Miracle

By Ruth Allison Hudnut

"YOUR child has a serious hearing loss." Every parent whose child attends the preschool summer demonstration classes of the Washington Hearing Society has heard these words.

To some they come as a profound shock, though they've known all along something was wrong. To other parents, the diagnosis long delayed came as a relief. At last they knew what was wrong, why Tommy seemed so backward.

For two years Rickie's parents sought the answer before a hearing test at the Washington Hearing Society, a Red Feather agency, revealed the truth. By that time Rickie was already four. David's parents, equally baffled, were more fortunate for his hearing defects were discovered at two and a half, and instruction begun at once both privately and at the Society. Training and understanding have wrought a miracle in the lives of these little boys.

Incentive To Speak Can Wither Away

THE blow came swiftly to the parents of Becca and Julia. At two Becca had influenza meningitis and in a few days her hearing all but vanished. Two months ago at the age of five, the same catastrophe happened to Julia. Both youngsters could talk before their illness. But Becca was so young she lost her speech despite unremitting effort. At five Julia's speech pattern is more firmly established. Yet the struggle to keep her talking has already begun.

Sudden cessation of familiar sounds causes profound shock to both adult and child. Gone is the roar of traffic, the song of birds, clatter of dishes, running water, loved voices. In their stead is silence, life passing noiselessly by.

Probably Sam hears less than Becca or Julia, but he does not realize what he is missing. He has never heard any but the loudest sounds. Sally and Donald have multiple handicaps in addition to hearing loss. The one has cerebral palsy, the other an eye defect.

Sally, helpless at two, unable to stand and partly deaf besides, was mistakenly pronounced mentally deficient. Now that her difficulties are correctly diagnosed, she is progressing rapidly. Equipped with braces, she can sit alone, stand, and walk with assistance. She is also learning to use her voice as she hears the wonders of the Washington Hearing Society's new auditory unit which amplifies sound to 130 decibels.

Pictures Relate Sound to Object

WEARING headphones, children listen to records of birds singing dogs barking, the train choo chooing along. As they listen they are shown pictures which relate sound to object, for some of these children have never heard these sounds before.

Stella Lutz, the teacher, repeats the object's name over and over, and the child tries to imitate, often with his hand against her cheek, so he can "feel" how it sounds. In this way children are introduced to speech, lip reading and auditory training.

Today some children of three successfully wear hearing aids, if the wearing is accompanied by careful instruction. The way to communication demands perseverance and unremitting effort on the part of parent, teacher and child. Through the pre-school summer demonstration class (which ends this week) the Washington Hearing Society starts parents and children on the long road. Other classes are offered during the school year to both parents and pre-school children.

"The most normal environment possible is what I want for my child." How many parents of handicapped have expressed that wish! It is heartening to know that today in some cities, children with all degrees of hearing loss attend special classes in schools which also teach the normally-hearing. Thus they keep in constant touch with the hearing world. Success depends on the child's personality and behavior, his ability, background and the help given by his parents.

By Bob Burchette—The Washington Post

LISTENING to a story about a horse is teaching these children many sounds they would otherwise be unable to distinguish. Little Julia Moody, 5; Samuel Campbell, 3, and Rebecca Walthen-Dunn, 3, partially deaf pupils at the Washington Hearing Society's preschool summer demonstration classes, hear about Harry the Horse on an auditory training device which increases sound to 130 decibels. Julia, who lost her hearing after an attack of influenza meningitis two months ago, must still wear earphones to hear. The other children hear slightly more and can get along without earphones

HOW TO GET A HUSBAND

Jobé Says...

Let Instinct Shape Your Decision

Continuing our talk of yesterday—when you honestly determined what you want to be—you can become your own fashion adviser.

Look at all the new fashions in newspapers, and in advertisements of smart stores in your city. You may not like them. But before deciding against a new silhouette or color of fabric, go try it on in your favorite store. If you still do not like it, for goodness' sake, don't buy it. Your own instinct is better than the opinion of all the stylists in the world.

But even if you revolt against being a fashion sheep, neither should you be a lone wolf. Your clothes should be basically in the trend, but stamped with your own personality.

Voters' League Moving Into New Offices

Mrs. Donald Beatty, president of the League of Women Voters of the District of Columbia, has announced that the league has opened new offices located at 1829 M st. nw. The organization moved on August 1 from its Vermont Avenue location and is now occupying the entire second floor of the M Street Building which is on the corner of 19th.

The move was necessitated by the demands of an increased membership and a rapidly expanding program of activity. Under the unit system more than twice as many league members carried sustained league jobs throughout the last year than had the year previous; 226 new members were enrolled and the increase in attendance at general meetings jumped from 1400 to 3300. Indicative of the amount of activity centering in the office is the fact that 1800 hours of office work were put in by league volunteers last year and 19,701 pieces of mail were gotten out.

At the new headquarters it will be possible for unit meetings, committee meetings and office work to proceed simultaneously. Mrs. Beatty is being aided in the move by Mrs. Milton Dunn, first vice president; Mrs. Vance Johnson, treasurer; Mrs. Kenneth Fry, director of units; and Mrs. Philip Owen, director of public relations. The new office will be open on September 1 with Mrs. N. M. Pine and Mrs. Ellen Arnold, both league members, as office secretaries. The telephone number remains the same.

Prior to the opening of the office information on absentee voting can be obtained by calling Mrs. Clarence Fisher at Taylor 0056.

Light Summer Fare Preferred at August Pre-Nuptial Parties

JUNE is past but the tide of weddings rolls merrily on! Bells ring, brides search frantically for "something blue," fathers worry about the bills, and hostesses about what to serve at pre-nuptial parties.

DEAR ANNE:

Within the near future, I plan to entertain a bridal party of 16. Due to circumstances, it will be at 10 p. m. I would like to serve a light supper. Have you any suggestions for a menu and entertainment? Should I invite the minister and his wife? M. G. D., Midland, Va.

On a hot August evening, a frozen fruit salad should be a good dish to build your light supper around. With it, you could have hot rolls or beaten biscuit, with sliced ham inside if you want to add a little more sustenance to the meal. Iced coffee or tea could be served, too, and nuts and mints passed later.

Seems to me that, considering the late hour, very little entertainment will be required. The young guests will probably be full of conversation about the approaching wedding and perfectly content to sit around and chat until supper is served. Music always adds something, of course, if you have a record player or some talented member of the group who will play or sing.

About inviting the minister and his wife: If it's a party after the wedding rehearsal, by all means do. Technically, they're part of the wedding party at this time and at the wedding reception or breakfast. They can be invited to the other parties, if the hostess wishes, but it's not necessary.

DEAR ANNE:

How can I get several dents out of a table I am refinishing? I have taken off all the old surface. Must I sand it to get the top smooth and even where the dents are?

W. G., Alexandria, Va.

Remove these dents the "swell" way. Moisten a thick cloth (an old washcloth is fine for the job), using hot water. Fold and cover dent with it, and go over cloth with a hot iron. The steam will raise the fibers of the wood which were compressed by the blow that made the dents. Repeat treatment until dents disappear.

DEAR ANNE:

Help! I am going into a new home—rambler type with casement windows. I am nearly beside myself trying to decide on window treatments, room color schemes, etc. Can you tell me where I might find magazines or books with such illustrations in color?

Mrs. Kassens, Arlington.

Current numbers of home furnishings magazines may have pictures that will give you inspiration. Better still, why not visit the periodicals room of the Washington Public Library? Here, the back issues of such magazines are on file and you can browse through recent ones to your heart's content. While there, you also might take out on loan a couple of the newer books on home decoration. Two that are profusely illustrated and chock full of ideas are The American Woman's Encyclopedia of Home Decorating, by Helen Koues (Garden City Publishing Company), and House and Garden's Complete Guide to Interior Decoration, edited by Richardson Wright (Simon and Schuster).

DEAR ANNE:

I have an old sewing cabinet from which I have removed all varnish. However, the varnish was on so long that I now have stain to remove. How can I remove this stain or bleach the wood to make it light? I have used varnish remover and sand paper.

H. F. Boone, Arlington, Va.

If you've done your best with the remover and sanding, bleaching is your next step in getting the old color out of the wood. You can use a commercial wood bleach, bought at a paint shop, or a solution of oxalic acid. Oxalic crystals are sold at practically any drug store. Make a saturated solution of them (2 ounces crystals to 1 pint hot water.) Apply to the wood when hot. Repeat as required, concentrating on the dark spots. Wash off with hot water afterward to stop the chemical action.

ENJOY SUMMERTIME SHOPPING ALONG

Connecticut Avenue

WHERE MOST STORES WILL REMAIN OPEN

Saturdays during August

Because Saturday is so often the most convenient day of the week for you to shop, practically all the Connecticut Avenue merchants (some of whose names you see here on the draped curtain) have arranged to keep their stores open all day on Summer Saturdays—when so many down-town stores are closed.

A day of shopping on beautiful Connecticut Avenue, away from the push and hot hurry of crowds, is always a delightful experience. And, whatever it be you are looking for, you find it there in comfortable, courteously staffed shops, big enough to maintain wonderfully wide selections of attractive merchandise . . . yet small enough to take a personal interest in serving you well.
